

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2007 with funding from Microsoft Corporation

2945

ТНЕ

L

1945s .Eg

H I S T O R Y

ITALY,

Written in Italian by FRANCESCO GUICCIARDINI, A Nobleman of Florence. IN TWENTY BOOKS.

Translated into ENCLISH by the

Chevalier AUSTIN PARKE GODDARD,

Knight of the Military Order of St. Stephen.

VOL. VI.

Containing the ELEVENTH and TWELFTH Books of the Hiftory. 257684 257684 257684 257684

LONDON: Printed by JOHN TOWERS, in Piccadilly. M.DCC.LIV.

γ:> North State ¢ 1 ÷ comer ST CEELS TR Renishaw m D'Adanha Darmout Priare Dorner adlic

L I S T Of the Names of the SUBSCRIBERS.

Her ROYAL HIGHNESS The PRINCESS of WALES, Two SET'S.

	Α.
Hon. Richard	Arundel
Michael	Adolphus, Efq;
Mr. James	Adams
	B.
Earl of	Bath
Lady	Bathurft
Julian	Beckford, Esq;
Benjamin	Bowles, Esq;
Sir Cecil	Bishop, Bart.
William	Berrington, M. D.
William	Blaire, Efq;
Edward	Brownsden, Esq;
Robert	Barber, Esq;
	C
Imp. Env. Ext. Count	Colloredo
Earl of	Cork
Lord Viscount	Caftlecomer
Mr. Philip	Carteret, 2 Sets
James	Crowcher, Efq;
I	D.
Port. Env. Ext. D.L.	D'Acunha
Earl of	Dartmouth
Countess of	Dyfart
Hon. Robert	Dormer
Francis	Dillon, Eíq;

1

Names of the SUBSCRIBERS, John Talbot Dillon, Efq; Thomas Dawfon, Efq; E. -William Rawlinfon Earle, Efq; Rowland Eyres, Efq; Doddington Eggerton, Efq; Mr. Edward Easton, Bookfleer F. Lord Viscount Folkeftone Lord Fortroth Richard Frank, Efq; G. Sir William Gerard, Bart, Mr. Robert Griffiths Mr. Stephen Guion -H. Lames Huffey, Efq; Hall, Efq; George Lawfon Col. Philip Honeywood John Harding, Efq; Harris, Eíq; Tames George Hay, L. L. D. Mr. John Hildyard, Bookf. William Hancock, M. D. I. Lewis Jones, Efq; Jennens, Efq; Charles Charles Jones, Efq; К. Countefs of Kerry John Kelley, Efq,

Names of the SUBSCRIBERS. Ralph Knox, Efg; L. Luxborough Lord Sir Robert Long, Bart. Mrs. Leighton Matthew Lyfter, Efq; Leake, Books. 2 Sets Mr. James M. Middlefex Earl of Mackworth, Efq; Herbert Tames Maccartey, Efq; Macie, Efq; John Mr. Richard Molineaux 1 N. · Nichols Mis 0. Earl of Oxford Patrick Ohara, Efq; Ρ. Samuel Pechel, Efq; Mrs. Pultney Mr. Christopher Pinchbeck R. Lord Romney Sir John Rous, Bart. Mrs. Reynifon Mr. William Ruffell, Bookfeller S. Env. Ext. of 2 Sic. Pr. San Severino Earl of Strafford Earl of Shaftfbury

Names of the SUBSCRIBERS. Baron Ex. Sir SydneySmith Snow, Efq; Robert Swymmer, Efq; Ant. Langley Shaw, M. D. Peter Mr. John Stewart Mr. Robert Stanford Stroude, Efq; Edward Richard Salvin, Efq; .T. Lord Viscount Tyrawley Tichborne, Bart, Sir Henry Sir William Twifden, Bart. Bened. Tucker, Efq; John's wet all the Townley, Efq; Preb. of Weft. Dr. J. Thomas John Taylor, Efq; W. Weftmeath Earl of Widdrington Lord Swed. Seg. Monf. Arn. Wynans Webb, Efq; John Wodehoufe, Efq; Ermine Wade Col. George Henry Penrudock, Wynham, Efq; Whitshed, Esq; James Young, Efq; William Yates, Efq; John Z. Refid. of Ven. Sig. Zon

The Names of future Subfcribers will be inferted in one of the following Volumes. C3XX42C6xX42C5xX42C5xX42C5xX42C5xX42C5xX42 C3XX42C6xX42C5xX42C5xX42C5xX42C5xX42

Francesco Guicciardini's H I S T O R Y O F

The WARS in ITALY.

B O O K XI.

THE CONTENTS.

Reconciliation attempted between the Pope and the Duke of Ferrara. French defeated at Paterna. League between the Pope, Cæsar, and the Venetians diffolved. Congress in Mantoua. Transactions of the Florentines and of the Medici. Pope confederates with Cæfar against the Venetians. Maximilian Sforza created Duke of Milan. Wars of the English, Spaniards and Swifs against the French, who are defeated at Novara. Pope Julius II. dies; and is fucceeded by Leo X. League between the French and Vene-VOL. VI. A 2 tians, tians. Wars between Cæsar and the Venetians, who are defeated in the Vicentine.

4

₩XXXFTER the Pope was thus de-A. D. 1512. A 🐇 livered out of a most calamitous A B Inverse out on a second by a furprifing Train of fuccefsful Events, and had obtained the Victory over his Enemies, and recovered and enlarged the Dominions of the Church, it appeared that he had not relinquished his old covetous Pretenfions to the City of Ferrara, the Sparks that first kindled fo mischievous a Combuftion. And though he was ardently defirous of turning his Arms against the Duke, yet, either because he thought it eafier to obtain his Ends by way of Accommodation than by War, or trufted more to fecret Artifices than to plain and open Dealings, the chose to hearken first to the Marquis of Mantoua; who fupplicated him to grant Leave to Alfonso d'Este to come in Perfon to Rome, humbly to afk Pardon of his Holinefs, and beg that he would receive him into Favour on any

THE WARS IN ITALY. any honourable Conditions. He was A. D. 1512. afterwards pleafed to lend an Ear to the Aragonian Ambaffador, who interceded Reconcifor the Duke as a Relation by Confan-liation mediated guinity to his King, Alfonso being born of between a Daughter of the old Ferdinando King the Pope and the of Naples; and because it was more for Duke of his Mafter's Interest to lay an Obligation on Ferrara. the Duke by fo' great a Favour, than to fuffer the Church to increase its Grandeur by a further Addition of his State. The Colonna's also were unwearied in their Endeavours for the fame Purpofe, as they were become cordial Friends to Alfonfo, because the King of France, after the Battle of Ravenna, having demanded of him Fabritio Colonna his Prifoner, the Duke, first by denying, and afterwards interpoling various Excules; fo long delayed to grant the King's Request; till the fucceeding Revolution of Affairs put it in his Power to give Fabritio his Liberty, in the most acceptable Manner, without anv Compensation.

The Duke then took his Journey to Rome, having obtained a Pass from the Pope, and,

A. D. and, for his greater Security; the King of 1512. Aragon, by his Minister, with the Pope's Confent, paffed his royal Word for his fafe Going and Return. After his Arrival the Pope, having fufpended his Cenfures, admitted him into the Confiftory, where he humbly afked Pardon, and fupplicated, in the most submissive Manner, to be reftored to the Favour of his Holinefs and of the Apostolic See, promising for the future to perform all those Duties and Services that belonged to a most faithful Feodatary and Vaffal of the Church. The Pope heard him favourably enough, and appointed fix Cardinals to treat with him about Conditions of an Agreement, who, after feveral Days spent in Debates, intimated to him that his Holiness did not intend in any Manner to deprive the Church of the City of Ferrara, which belonged to it by lawful Reversion ; but that he would give him in recompense the City of Afti, which, by the Departure of the French, being reduced under the Power of the League, the Pope, pretending that all on this Side of the Po appertained to the Church, had fent, though without Effect, 3137 .1 the

THE WARS IN ITALY. 7 the Bishop of Agrigento to take Possessing and the Bishop of Agrigento to take Possessing and the Alfonson of it, But Alfonson constantly rejected the 1512. of it, But Alfonson constantly rejected the 1512. Proposal, and from this Demand, so con-Duke retrary to the Hopes that had been given jects the Pope's him, and no less from what had lately offer. happened at Reggio, began to be apprehensive that the Pontiff artfully amused him with Offers at Rome, that he might have an Opportunity at the the same time to execute fome Design upon Ferrara.

The Pope had invited the People of Reggio, who were under no fmall Apprehenfions from the prefent turbulent Juncture, to follow the Example of Parma and Piacenza, by putting themfelves into the Hands of the Church ; and, that his Sollicitations might have the more Effect, had ordered the Duke of Urbino, with fome Troops, into the Modenefe. Vitfruft had made the fame Attempt in behalf of Cafar, for which End he went in Perfon to Reggio; and the Cardinal d'Efle; who in the Absence of his Brother had the Management of his State, knowing that he could not preferve that City, and judging that it would be lefs pernicious to the Intereff A 4

A. D. Interest of his Family that it should come :1512. under the Power of Cafar, who had no Pretenfions on Ferrara, and in whofe Affairs a greater Variety might be expected*, advised the Inhabitants rather to acknowledge themfelves under the Jurifdiction of the Empire. But they answered that they would follow the Example of their Duke, who was gone to wait upon the Pontiff, Pope gets and not upon Cafar, and introduced into Poffeffion of Reggio. the Town the Troops of the Church, who > by their artful Management got Poffeffion alfo of the Cittadel, though Vitfrult had put a Garrifon into it. At last the Carfagnana alfo furrendered to the Duke of Urbino, who after, that returned to Bologna, where he difbanded all his Troops. For the Confederates being highly diffatisfied with the Pope at his taking Poffeffion of Parma and Piacenza, the Cardinal of Sion had caused it to be notified to the Duke that the common Enemies being vanquished and overthrown, it was not neceffary to proceed any farther. guivalet as

And confequently an Opportunity might offer from his Neceflities, which often constrained hm to Alienations. to redeem or purchase it out of his Hands; but the Property of the Church was not to be alienated or transferreg.

- 8

- - - -

9 A. D.

BUT the Duke of Ferrara, being under no fmall Apprehensions from the Pope's Obduracy, and his poffeffing himfelf of Reggio, demanded, by means of the Spanifh Ambassador and Fabritio Colonna, which Noblemen had never left him fince he came to Rome, his Leave to return to Ferrara. The Pope thewed himfelf reluctant to this Demand, and declared that the Pass he had given the Duke on account of his Differences with the Church was no Protection against his private Creditors, many of whom had demanded Juffice to be done them. The Ambaffador and Colonna frankly answered, that he ought not to perfuade himfelf that they would fuffer him to break his Faith with the Duke and them. And the next Morning, to prevent any new Obstacles from the Pope, Fabritio mounted on Horfeback, and rode towards the Gate of San Giovanni in La-Dake of terano, the Duke and Marc' Antonio Co-flies from. lonna following at a small Distance. At Rome. the Gate he found a much ftronger Guard. than ufual, which forbid his Paffage; but he being too ftrong overpowered them, and waited

.10

A. D. waited for the Duke at the Gate, and con-¹⁵¹² ducted him fafe to Marino; by which he fully recompenfed him, as is commonly believed, for the Kindnefs he had received of him in granting him his Liberty, fince none doubted but that the Pope, if he had not been prevented by the Colonna's, would have imprifoned him; but now his Paffage being intercepted by Land, he returned not long after by Sea to *Ferrara.

1311 + 135 111 1 + 10 3111 Ap. "

DURING these Transactions the Pontiff, retaining the fame Enmity that he had before to the Liberty of the Florentines, procured, by means of the Cardinal of Sion, that the auxiliary Soldiers which they had granted to the King of France should be difarmed and stripped. Of these Troops those which served in the Army under Luca Savello, to the Number of an most serve abund?

* Giovio fays that he was conducted from Caffle to Caffle by means of Proferro Colonna; difguiled fometimes in the Drefs of a Carrier, fometimes of a Hunter, fometimes of a Friar, till he arrived at a Place of Security. Bembo tells us that, finding his Return by Land was unfafe, he got into Puglia, from whence he paffed by Sea' to Sclavonia, and thence to the Mouth of the Po, and fo to his own Home.

Hundred and Twenty Men at Arms, and A. D. 1512. Sixty light Horfe, the reft under Francefco Torello remaining in Garrifon at Brefcia, had, before the French paffed the Po, obtained a País from Sion, and the Word of Honour of Gian Pagolo Baglione, and of almost all the other Venetian Commanders for their fafe Return into Tuscany. But as they were in their Quarters near Cremona, the Venetian Soldiers, according to the Directions which they had received, fell upon them, and plundered them, with the Confent of Sion, who, as fome affirm, Perfidious that the Fact might be committed with the Dealings more Safety, had fent thither Two Thou-Cardinal of Sien. fand Foot, confidering that they were quartered with the Regiments of Trivulzio and the Grand Shield-bearer of France, which, becaufe they were almost wholly composed of Italians, had alfo obtained 'a Paísu: As foon as the Plunder was committed, the Cardinal of Sion fent to Chri-Rophoro Moro and Pagolo Capello, the Proveditors of the Senates to demand the Booty as belonging to the Swifs; but they refusing it, and going the next Day to the Camp of the Swifs to confer with Sion, were

A. D. were feized and carried as Prifoners before ^{1512.} Jacopo Staffier their General, and by him conducted to the Cardinal, where they were forced to enter into an Obligation to pay Six Thousand Ducats in Compensation for what they had feized, his Eminence not chusing that any others but the Swi/s should reap the Fruits of his Perfidy; of which he gave another Specimen by infifting that Nicolo Capponi, the Florentine Ambaffador, who had retired to Cafal Cervagio, and had obtained a Pass from him, should be delivered up to him as a Prisoner by the Marquis of Monferrato.

> In the mean time the Venetian Senate, defirous to employ their Strength for the Recovery of Brefcia and Crema, earneftly follicited the Return of their Forces, which the Cardinal, on Pretence of leading them, in Conjunction with the Swifs, into Piedmont against the Duke of Savoy and the Marquis of Saluzzo, who had taken the Part of the King of France, would not permit. And that Reason afterwards ceasing by the great Increase of the Number of the Swifs, and the Assurance that that the French Troops were paffed beyond A. D. the Mountains, the Cardinal would nei- 1512. ther give his Confent nor Refufal to the Departure of these Troops; which was fuppofed to proceed from the Inftances of Cafar, with a Defign that the Senate should not recover those Towns. But while the Swifs were in Alexandria, the Venetian Troops on a fudden departed from Bosco, and paffed the Po without any Hindrance Venetians to Cava in the Cremonefe, the Cardinal, feparate from the who doubtlefs might have prevented them; Scuifs. conniving at their Departure, as it was fuppofed, at the Request of the Pope. The Venetians having passed the Po, divided their Forces, Part of which marched against Brescia, and the rest against Crema, which Towns were garrifoned by the French. The Garrison of Brescia making a Sally, and attacking the Venetians at the Village of Paterna, were repulsed within their Walls with the Lofs of above Three Hundred Men*. 10 111.1

Je's

THE

* The French had Two Hundred killed, and an Hundred and Fifty taken Prifoners, who were all knocked on the Head by the Pealants in Revenge for the Injuries they had fuffered. Mocenige.

worth bor (who in the in A. D. 1512. THE Stuils, now left alone in the Dutchy of Milan and in Piedmont, employed themfelves in taxing all the Country, being entirely fecure of the French : For the King of France, though, out of his. intense Affection to the Dutchy of Milan, he could not difpose himself, without much Regret, to leave the Affairs of Italy wholly abandoned, was yet conftrained by Neceffity to hearken to the Counfels of those who advised him to defer this Thoughts on that Head to another Time, and to attend, for that Summer, to the Defence of the Kingdom of France, confidering that the King of England, by Agreement with the Catholic King, had fent by Sea Six Thousand English Foot to Fontarabia, a Town of the Kingdom of Spain, feated on the Ocean, with a Defign, in Conjunction with the Forces of that King, to invade the Dutchy of Guyenne. Befides this, he had begun to infeft the Coafts of Normandy and Bretany with a Fleet, to the great Terror of the Inhabitants of the Maritime Parts. And there was no Hopes of regaining the Friendship

14

THE WARS IN ITALY. IS Friendship of Cafar; for by the Report A. D. 1512. made by the Bishop of Marfeilles, his Ambaffador to that Prince, the underftood that he was utterly averfe to a Reconciliation, and wheedled him with Abundance of Hopes, and freated with him about a Multitude of Affairs, with the King of deepeft Diffimulation, for no other End France but to gain an Opportunity to oppress him of Cafar. before he was aware, or, at least, to give him as it were a mortal Blow, as he boafted he had done in recalling the German Troops from his Service. and a strate of the total and the

ITALY then being fecured, for this Year, from the Arms of the French, tho' they were still in Possessin of Bressin, Differ-Crema, Lignago, the Castelletto and Lan-fions betern of Genoa, the Castelletto and Lan-fions betern of Genoa, the Castelletto and tween the Cremona, with some other Fortress in the Dutchy of Milan, there appeared some Signs of a Difference and Difunion between the Confederates, whose Views and Interests were very different. The Venetians were defirous to recover Bressia and Crema, First which were their Due by the Articles of Causetheir Alliance, and because they had so great great a Share in the Dangers and Trou-A. D. 1512. bles of the War; the Pope also was willing to gratify their Defires. On the other hand Cafar, by whole Will the King of Aragon must at last be directed, defigned to appropriate thefe Towns to himfelf. and befides to deprive the Venetians of all that was adjudged to him by the Treaty of Cambray. . Cafar and the Catholic King privately treated between themfelves about caufing the Dutchy of Milan to devolve on one of their common Nephews: On the contrary the Pope and the Swifs openly used all their Endeavours for the Restoration of Massimiliano, the Son of Lodovico Sforza, who after the Ruin of his Father had conftantly refided in Germany, to his paternal Dignity, according to the first Agreement. What induced the Pope was his Defire that Italy might not fall entirely under Slavery to the Germans and Spaniards; and the Swifs were moved, by the Confideration of their own Advantage, to wish that the State of Milan might not be governed by too potent a Prince, but by one who could not fupporthimfelf without their Affiftance. But this Affair

16

THE WARS IN ITALY. 17 Affair depending almost entirely upon A. D. 1512. them, in whole Power that State was, and the Terror of their Arms being in high Reputation, the Pope, to confirm them in their Refolution, and that he might use them on all Occasions as a Bridle ready at Hand, for reftraining the Ambition of Cafar and the Catholic King, employed all his Art and Industry to gain their Friendship. For this End, befides publicly extolling to the Skies the Valour of the Helvetian Nation, and magnifying the Exploits which they had performed for the Welfare of the Apoftolic See, to do them Honour he prefented. them with the Banners of the Church. and bestowed upon them the very glorious Title of Aiders and Defenders of the Ecclefiastic Liberty. Is more a sign of the

is for some bene sus stal, mucht

ANOTHER Caufe of Diffention among Second the Allies was occasioned as follows: The Caufe. Viceroy having recruited the Spanifh Troops which after the Defeat at Ravenna had all retired together with him into the Kingdom of Naples, and put himfelf in Motion to pafs with them into Lom-Vol. VI. B bardy,

A. D. bardy, the Pope and the Venetians refused

ï8

2 1

151 1.

to renew the Payment of the Forty Thoufand Ducats a Month, which had been intermitted after the Defeat, alledging that, fince the French were paffed beyond the Mountains, they were not fubject to that Obligation, which, according to the Articles of the Confederacy, ceafed whenever the French fhould be driven out of Italy. To this it was answered, in behalf of the King of Aragon, that the King of France could not be faid to be driven out of Italy while Brefcia, Crema, and fo many Fortreffes befides were in his Power.

" same to an dense it

BESIDES this, the Catholic King complained together with Cæfar that the Pontiff appropriating to himfelf the Rewards of the common Victory, and ufurping what manifeftly belonged to others, had, on Pretences either counterfeit, or grown obfolete by Length of Time, taken Poffeffion of Parma and Piacenza, Cities that for a long Succeffion of Years had been held by those who were Lords of Milan as Fiefs of the Empire.

Filhup

THERE

19 A. D.

1512. THERE appeared also among the Al-L lies a Diverfity of Sentiments with respect Fourth to the Affairs of the Duke of Ferrara, the Caule. Pontiff being inflamed with the fame covetous Defire of acquiring his State, and the King of Aragon equally defirous to preferve him, and befides provoked against the Pope, as it was fuppofed, for attempting to detain the Duke at Rome, contrary to his Word given to him. For these Reafons the Pope abstained for the prefent from molefting Ferrara, waiting perhaps till Affairs of greater Importance were first fettled; in the Determination of which Cafar being willing to intervene, fent into Italy the Bishop of Goritz, who had been appointed for that Expedition fo long ago as when, after the Battle of Ravenna, a Peace was treated of between the Pontiff and the King of France, because he was apprehenfive that an Agreement might be concluded between sthem without any Regard had to his Interest; and, though a. Revolution fucceeded in the public Affairs, he continued in his Resolution to fend the Bishop.

THERE

A. D.

1512:

20

Neutrality of the Florentines cenfured.

THERE came alfo under Confideration the Affairs of the Florentines, who labouring under Doubts and Sufpicions began to feel the bad Effects of that Neutrality which they had imprudently chosen; and to be convinced that it was no fufficient Security to rely on the Juffice of the Caufe where Prudence was wanting. For in the prefent War they had not offended the Confederates, nor lent the King of France any Succours but what they were obliged to furnish for the Defence of the State of Milan, by the Confederacy they had made with him in Conjunction with the Catholic King. They had not fuffered the Spanifs Soldiers, in their Flight from the Battle of Ravenna, to be molested in their Dominions, for which the King of Aragon, with his own Mouth, had returned Thanks to the Florentine Ambaffador. And, what is more, they had entirely gratified his Demands by correspondent Facts; for after the Departure of the Council from Pifa, both his Minifters' in Italy, and the King himfelf had offered to their Ambaffador to be obliged to defend their Republic againft against all Assaults, provided they promised A. D. not to defend Bologna, nor bear Arms, against _____ theChurchnorfavourthePifanConventicle; which wasobferv'd. But they, being prevented by their civil Broils from chufing the better Part, neither joined with the King of France nor. with the Allies ; and observing Day after Day a Kind of dubious Neutrality, the Refult of unfteady and broken Counfels, but never coming to an unanimous Refolution, nor making a public Declaration that they would observe it, they highly offended the King of France, who had at first promised himself great Affistance from them, not in the least mitigated the Hatred of the Pope, and fuffered the King of Aragon to enjoy, without any Recompense, the Fruits of their Neutrality, which he would gladly have purchased by an Agreement.

THE, Pontiff then, ftimulated by his Hatred of the Gonfaloniere, and by the antient Defire, inherent in the Popes, of having Authority in that Republic, earnestly follicited the Restoration of the Family of the Medici to its pristine Grandeur, the King

11

schn bat and in it

21

King of Aragon alfo, though his Words A. D. 1512. to the Florentine Ambaffador did not agree with his Actions, concurring, but not with fo much Ardor, in the fame Project, from an Apprehension that in cafe of any Movement the Republic would be biaffed, by the Authority of the Gonfaloniere, in favour of the King of France; nay it was fuspected that even if the Gonfaloniere were removed, and a free Government instituted, the new-created and antient Dependencies on the Crown of France would fway the Commonwealth to the fame Side. But the Refolutions to be taken on this Head were referved, together with other Points, for the Coming of Goritz, with whom the Viceroy and the Ministers of the other Congress Confederates had appointed a Congress at at Mantona. Mantoua.

Pope's Demands of the Florentines.

WHILE Goritz was on his Journey the Pope fent to Florence Lorenzo Pucci, a Florentine, his Datary, and afterwards a Cardinal by the Title of Santi Quattro, who, in Concert with the Agent of the Viceroy, follicited the Florentines to join in the League, and to contribute towards the Expences

22

23

A. D. Expences of the War against the French. 1512. This was the Pretext alledged for his Coming, but his real Business was to explore the Minds of the Citizens. Many Days were fpent in debating on his Demands, without coming to a Conclusion; the Florentines offering to pay a certain Sum of Money to the Confederates, but to the Demand of entering into the League, and declaring against the King of France, they returned a dubious Answer. The Reafon why they answered in general and evafive Terms was partly an Opinion (which was true) that these Proposals were made with an artful Defign to enfnare them; in which they were confirmed by the Anfwer made at Trent by the Bishop of Goritz to their Ambassador whom they had fent to meet him. For that Prelate, when he was put in mind of the Agreement made with Cæfar at Vicenza, and figned with his own Hand, by which he was bound to defend the Florentines, feemed to make no Account of it, but affured him that the Pontiff had a Defign to moleft them, and that Cafar, on their paying him Forty Thoufand Du-B 4 cats.

A. D. cats, would deliver them from that Danger. He added that the Confederacy between Cafar and the King of France still fubfisted, and therefore he advifed them not to enter into the League till Cafar had acceded to it. The Florentines would not have been averfe from purchasing their Tranquillity with a Sum of Money, had they not doubted that the Authority of Cafar alone, tho' Goritz affirmed that the Spaniards would conform themfelves to his Will, was not fufficient to fecure them from the ill Defigns of the others ; they flood therefore in Sufpenfe, that they might with the more mature Advice difpole of their Balm to him who had it in his Power to apply it to their Infirmity. This was perhaps wifely confidered; but then it happened that, either through Imprudence, or their ufual Contentions, or too much Confidence in the Militia of their own Dominions, they neglected to provide themfelves with a Body of welldisciplined Troops, which would have been always in readiness to defend them against a fudden Attack, or at least have ferved to facilitate an Agreement with the Coninited.

24

Confederates, who would be the more A. D. eafily difposed to it when they knew it 1512. would be difficult to force them into their Terms.

25

DURING thefe Transactions the Viceroy Spaniards at the Head of the Spanish Foot ar-mutiny. rived in the Bolognefe, but being in Want of Money, his Troops; difappointed of their promifed Pay, ran in fo tumultous a Manner to his Tent, threatening to murder him; that he had hardly Time to fave himfelf by flying privately towards Modena. Part of these Forces moved towards the Country of the Florentines ; the reft continued in their Quarters, but lived in a lawlefs Manner, without Order or Command, till after three or four Days their Spirits were composed by receiving Part of their Arrears, and the Viceroy and all the Troops returned to the Army, which engaged to remain in the fame Situation till the Viceroy fhould have finished this Negotiations lat Mantoua, where Goritz was already arrived. When that Prelate paffed through the Veronefe, the French who lay in Garrifon at Lignago, having

A. D. having refused many Offers from the Vene-1512. tians furrendered that Town to him, which they could no longer, hold, by Order, as it was supposed, from Palifie, who gave the fame Directions to the Garrifons of the other Towns, with a View to foment the Differences between Cafar and the Venetians. But the Garrifon of Lignago, tho' provided with a Pass from Goritz, had the Misfortune to be plundered by the Venetian Army which lay encamped before Brefcia, whither they had returned from Bosco, after they had without Difficulty recovered Bergamo; but. they forbore to befiege the Town, being prohibited, as it was faid, by the Cardinal of Sion. And all Si

PUTTLARY ONE STORE AND LEVE

IN the Congress at Mantona it was refolved that Maffimiliano Sforza should be put in Possession of the Dutchy of Milan, agreeably to the ardentDefire of the People, the Concession of Caefar and the King of Aragon, and the constant Intentions of the Pope and the Swifs; and that the Time should be fixed by the Pope with Goritz, who was to go to Rome, and treat with his Refolutions of the Congrefs at Mantoua. THE WARS IN ITALY. 27 his Holinefs of confirming the Friendship A. D. between him and Cafar, and of making an Agreement between Cafar and the Venetians, that by means of one common Union the Peace of Italy might be fecured from any future Disturbances by the French.

1

In the fame Affembly came under Debate an Undertaking against the Flo-Reftorarentines, which was follicited by Giuliano Medici de' Medici in his own Name and that of follicited. the Cardinal. A Revolution, he fuppofed, might be eafily effected in that State thro' the Divisions of the Citizens, many of whom defired their Return; and by a private Intelligence which, he faid, they maintained with fome noble and powerful Perfonages; and because the Florentines, having Part of their Men at Arms difperfed in Lombardy, and the reft confined in Brescia, had not a Force sufficient to defend themfelves against any fudden Attack. He laid before the Affembly the Confequence which, befides the Money offered, would refult from their Reftoration, which would be, the Taking the Power

A. D. Power of Florence out of the Hands of ^{1512.} one who intirely depended on the King of France, and committing it to the Management of Perfons who, being injured and abufed by that King, would acknowledge no other Dependence and Alliance but that of the Confederates. He was feconded in the Name of the Pope by Bernardo da Bibbiena, afterwards a Cardinal, who was deputed by the Pope for this very Purpofe, and had been educated with his Brothers from their Childhood in the Family of the Medici.

> A T the Congress was sent to the Bishop of Goritz, Giovan Vittorio Soderini, Ambassador of Florence, a Lawyer, and Brother to the Gonfaloniere; but nothing was faid to him, or demanded of him, by the Viceroy, or in the Name of the League. The Bishop only represented to him the Danger, and advised him to agree with Cæsar, by complying with his first Demand, on which Condition he offered that Cæsar and the King of Aragon should take the Florentines under their Protection. But the Ambassador, having no Authority to conclude an Agreement, could only A. D. 1512. make his Report to the Republic, and expect their Answer, while in the mean time he, neither by himfelf nor by others, made any Applications to the Viceroy, nor used any other Means to frustrate the Propofals of the Medici. The Enterprize was however attended with many Difficulties in itfelf; for the Viceroy's Army was not fo ftrong as to induce him to try its Force without Neceffity; and Goritz, to prevent the Venetians from recovering Brescia, or making any further Progrefs, was defirous that the Spaniards fhould march with all poffible Speed into Lombardy. It was believed therefore that Ill Parfiif the Florentines had laid afide their nig-mony of gardly chaffering about the Price, as the the Florentines. imminent Danger required, and confented to give to Cafar the Money he had demanded, and made a Prefent of a handfome Sum to the Viceroy, who was in extreme Neceffity, they might eafily have diverted the Storm ; and that Goritz and the Viceroy would perhaps have been more forward to come to an Agreement with the Florentines, who, they were fure, would

28

THE WARS IN ITALY.

29

30

A. D. would be careful to discharge their Obli-1512 gations, than with the Medici, who had nothing to give them before they were reftored by the Force of Arms to Florence. But, either through Careleffnels, or the Malignity of Men, the Caufe of that City being in a manner wholly abandoned, it was refolved that the Spanish Army, attended by the Cardinal and Giuliano de' Medici: should turn their March towards Florence ; and that the Cardinal, whom the Pope in this Expedition had declared Legate of Tuscany, should call to his Affiftance the Soldiers of the Church, and those of the neighbouring Towns whom he thought fit for his Purpole.

os is nel lige Towns of this

THE Bulinels of the Congress being difpatched, the Viceroy returned into the Viceroy Bolognese, and immediately put his Troops marches against in Motion against the Florentines, who the Flohaving not been before apprised of what rentines. was refolved at Mantoua, had very little Time to make the necessary Provisions for their Defence. The Viceroy near the Frontiers was joined by the Cardinal, who had brought with him from Bologna two

THE WARS IN ITALY. 31 two battering Pieces of Cannon, of which A. D. 1512. the Spaniards were quite unprovided. The Cardinal came attended by Franciotto Orfino, and the Vitelli, Commanders of the Church ; but without their Regiments, which, with the other Troops of the Church, were stopped by the Duke of Urbino, who, tho' he had maintained Giuliano de' Medici fome Years in his Court, and had always professed to defire the Advancement of his Family, yet, whatever might now be the Reafon, had denied to accommodate the Army with Artillery, or Affistance of any kind from his Soldiers or Subjects, difregarding the Pope's Orders, fignified both to him and to his Subjects of the neighbouring Towns of the Church, by ample Briefs, to affift them.

I LE I LO COT F. F. F. JEB S. J. Chill.

THE Viceroy was no fooner entered the Florentine Dominions than he was met by an Ambaffador of the Republic, who, after reprefenting to that General the great Refpect which the Florentines had always paid to the King of Aragon, and their unblameable Behaviour in this laft War, and what Adyantages the King might

A. D. might expect from receiving them into his Friendship, intreated him, that before he proceeded any further, he would pleafe to fignify what he required of them, fince they were ready to fatisfy all reafonable Demands as far as lay in their Power. The Viceroy answered, that his Coming was in Purfuance of a Refolution taken, not only by the Catholic King, but by all the Confederates, for the common Security of Italy, confidering that, while the Gonfaloniere remained at the Head of the Administration in their City, they could not affure themfelves that the Republic would not, on fome Occafion or other, declare for the King of France Where-Demands fore he demanded, in the Name of all. the Confederates, that the Gonfaloniere fhould be deprived of his Office, and that fuch a Form of Government should be eftablished as would not give Occasion of Umbrage to the allied Powers, which could not be effected without reftoring the Cardinal and Giuliano de' Medici to their? Country. If thefe Demands, he faid, ? were fatisfied, any other Matters in Difpute might be eafily accommodated; and · warmed or that

Viceroy from the Florentines.

32

THE WARS IN ITALY. 33 that he might return and make his Report, A. D. or by fome other Way acquaint his Mafters with the Intentions of the General, who in the mean time would not ftop his March in Expectation of an Anfwer.

ON Advice that the Spaniards were Florenon full march for Florence, where it was alarmed. believed that the Forces of the Pope were to fall upon it from another Quarter, the Government was in the greatest Consternation, being under terrible Apprehenfions alfo from the Divisions among the Citizens, and the Inclinations of Multitudes to a Change. They had but few Men at Arms, and no Foot, but fuch as were levied in Haste, or chosen from the Militia, the greater Part of whom had no Experience in War; no General of Note for Valour or Authority, on whom they could depend; and as for the inferior Officers. they were never worfe ferved in the Memory of Man. They were careful however to make the best Provisions that the Shortness of Time would permit, by affembling their Men at Arms, who were difperfed into various Places, and lifting VOL. VI. Foot.

34

Foot, fuch as could be had, and felecting A. D. , 1512. the most ferviceable Companies of the Militia. They reduced their whole Force to Florence, for the Security of the City, and to be at Hand for the Defence of those Places which the Enemy might threaten to attack. They were not alfo wanting, tho' late, to attempt an Accommodation; for, befides their continual treating by their Ambassador with the Viceroy *, they wrote to the Cardinal of Volterra, who was at Gradoli in the Territory of Rome, to wait upon his Holinefs, and endeavour, by Offers, by Prayers, and every winning Art, to mollify his Refentment. But the Pontiff, hardened more than ever, answered in Words contradictory to his Actions, that this Enterprife was none of his, and that his Troops had no Share in it; but, that he might not give Offence to the whole League, he had been constrained to confent to it, and to give Liberty to the Cardinal de' Medici ot Men arrived and to the Difference of > Promiting him and his Soldiers Prefents and great Pay, and that their City fhould have the fame Friends as the confederate Kings thould think proper for them to chufe. Giovio

THE WARS IN ITALY. 35 to convey the Artillery from Bologna: A. D. That he had it not in his Power to obviate the Expedition before it begun, much lefs to put a Stop to it afterwards.

THE Viceroy in the mean time was defcended from the Mountains to Barberino, a Town fifteen Miles diftant from Florence, whence he fent a Meffage to fignify that it was not the Intention of the League to make any Alteration in the Government or Liberty of the City, but only to remove the Gonfaloniere from the Ma-Propofala giftracy for the Security of Italy: The Con-^{of the} Viceroy. federates defired alfo that the Medici fhould enjoy their Country, not as Heads of the Government, but as private Perfons, living under Subjection to the Laws and to the Magiftracy in all Things conformably to the other Citizens.

WHEN these Proposals were published through the City various were the Opinions Opinions of Men, according to the Difference of of the Flortheir Judgments, Passions, and Fears. Some blamed the Measures of those who were for exposing the whole Body of Ci-C 2 tizens

A. D. tizens and all the Dominions of Elorence 1512. to fo great a Danger merely out of Regard to a fingle Perfon, confidering that by deposing him from the Magistracy the popular Councils and the Public Liberty would not be affected, but might also be eafily preferved from being violated by the Medici, if, while they were diverted of Reputation and Means, they should offer to exceed the Bounds of a private Station. It ought to be confidered, they faid, by what Means it was poffible for the City to refift the Forces and Authority of fo formidable a League; nof itself it was infufficient, all Italy was against them, and there were not the leaft Hopes of Relief from the French, who having bafely abandoned Italy were employed in defending their own/Kingdom, and confcious of their own Weaknefs had answered to the Demands of the Florentines, that they were content they flould make an Agreement with the League Others on the contrary reasoned that it was ridiculous to imagine that fo confiderable a Movement had been made only out of Hatred to the Gonfaloniere, or that the Medici might have Liberty sela

•

36

THE WARSIN ITALY. 37 berty to live in Florence as private Citizens. A. No, very different were the Intentions of the Confederates, who had no other End in View than to establish the Medici in a Tyranny, that they might have the City at their Command, and be able to extort from it a prodigious Sum of Money: That they difguifed their Intentions under lefs rigorous Demands, which however were of the fame Import. 20 For what elfe could be the Meaning of removing, by Menaces and Terror of Arms, the Gonfaloniere at this Time from the Palace, but to leave the Flock to wander without a Shepherd? Or what elfe can fignify the Entry of the Medicio amidit fo great a Tumulto into Florence, than erecting a Standard under which may refort all those who have no other Defign than to deftroy the Name, the Memory, and the very Footfteps of the Great Council, the Abolition of which will be the Abolition of Liberty And how is it poffible to prevent the Medici, attended by a Spani/h Army without, and followed by a Multitude of ambitious and feditious Citizens within," from feizing on our Liberties on the fame Day that 11. 2 C 3 they

A. D. they shall enter Florence ? It is our Duty to confider the Confequences that might poffibly arife from the Beginnings of Things, and from our once giving way to unjust and pernicious Demands. Nor ought we to be under fuch terrible Apprehenfions of Danger as to be unmindful of the Prefervation of the City, and how bitter it will be for one who was born and bred in Liberty to fpend his Days in Slavery. Let it be remembered with what a generous Ardor for the Prefervation of their Liberty our Citizens opposed Charles King of France when he was in Florence. with for powerful an Army, and let us confider how much eafier it will be to refift fo fmall a Number in want of Money, without Provision of Victuals, with few .. Pieces of Artillery, and without any Means for fupporting a Wars if we defend ourfelves from their first Affault. They will be under a Neceffity to remove in a flort Time out of Tulcany, and as they put themfelves in Motion on the Hopes given. them by the Exiles of obtaining an eafy Conquest by one fingle Attack, when they shall once meet with a vigorous Refistance. they

THE WARSIN ITALY. 39 they will be glad to come to an Agreement 4. U. on very honourable Conditions on our 1512. Side. Such were the Difcourfes and Arguments (ufed in Circles and in public Places; but the Gonfaloniere chuling that the Aniwer given to the Meffenger of the Viceroy fhould be in Concert with the People themfelves, convoked the Great Council, where before a full Affembly of the Citizens he made a Speech to this Effect. All has a speech to this

"HAD I believed, my worthy Fellow-Speech of Citizens, that the Demand of the Vice the Gonroy was levelled only at myfelf, and had faloniere concerned only my own Intereft, I fhould Great of my own Motion have taken that Re- Council folution which would have been conformable to the Ends I have in View. And as these have always kept me ready to expose my Life for your Welfare, it would have been much the eafier for me to abdicate the Magistracy which you have conferred upon me, that you might be delivered from the Eoffest and Dangers of War, efpecially confidering that during formany Years in which I have held this high C 4 Station.

40

A. D. Station, my bodily Frame and Spirits have 1512 been exhausted and worn out by the continual Troubles and Fatigues. But fince this Demand may poffibly import more than what concerns my private Intereft, it has been thought proper by thefe my honourable Colleagues and by myfelf; that concerning an Affair, in which the Interest of every Individual is fo nearly interested, no Resolution should be taken but by public Confent; and that a Bufinefs of fo weighty and univerfal Concern should not be debated by the ordinary Number of Citizens who have ufually the Cognizance of other Matters, but by you, in whom is vefted the Sovereign Power of this City, and to whom alone belong Con-) 12.1 fultations of fuch vaft Importance. For my own Part, I will not perfuade you to chufe ione Side more than the other, be yours the Counfel, yours the Judgment, whatever you determine thall be accepted and approved by me, who now here lay before you not only the Magifracy, which is yours but my Perforguand my own Lifed and thould efteem it a fingular Happinefs if I could believe that this would be the

THE WARSIN ITALY. 41 the Means of your Prefervation, Examine A. D. how much the Demand of the Viceroy concerns your Liberty, and may God give you Grace to illuminate your Understanding, and caufe you to make Choice of the better Part. If the Medici had an: Inclination to live in this City as private Citizens, in due Subjection to the Ordinances of the Magistrates and of your Laws: their Restoration would be a laudable Action, fince it would be the uniting the Members of one common Country into none common Body. But if they harbour other Defigns, look well to yourfelves, and beware of the Danger, and think wit not too mucho too fultain any Cofts or Difficulties to preferve your Liberty, the ineftimable Value of which you will know better, but to no Purpoler when; I fpeak it with Horror! you thall bendeprived of it. Let not cany Perfor perfuade himfelf that the Government of the Medici will be exercised in the fame. Manner as before their Expulsion, for the Form and Foundations of Thingsmare now changed . At that Time being bred amongft us they were by Cuftom become . . . in in a manner as familiar to us as private Citizens, and being possessed of vast Eftates in proportion to their high Dignity, and affronted by none, they laid the Foundation of their Greatness in the Affections of the Citizens, with the principal of whom they confulted in public Affairs, and endeavoured, under the Cloak of Civility, rather to difguife than to difplay their Grandeur. But now fince they have lived to many Years out of Florence, bred up in ftrange Cultoms, and confequently of fmall Infight into our civil Affairs, mindful of their Exile, and of the Severities used towards them, very indigent, affronted by fo many Families, and confcious that the greater Part of the People, and even in a manner the whole . City, detefts and abhors a Tyranny, they will have no Confideration for any Citizen, but, conftrained by Poverty and Sufpicion, will affume and engrois the Direction of all Affairs to themfelves, eftablishing their Administration not on the Foundations of Love and Benevolence, but on those of .: Fear and Force of Arms, in fuch a Manner that this City will in a very fhort time be--100% become like Bologna when under the A. Bentivogli, or like Siena and Perugia. 1 1512. was willing to fpeak this in particular to those who extol the Times and Admini-Aration of Lorenzo de' Medici, under whom tho'. Circumstances were hard, cand there was really a Tyranny, but milder than many others, yet the Days of his Government, in comparison of what we may expect from the Return of his Family. may be called a Golden Age. It is your Part now, my Fellow-Citizens, to take a prudent Refolution; mine, with a conftant and most joyful Heart, to relign this envied Magistracy, or, if you should refolye otherwife, with all Alacrity to attend to the Defence and Prefervation of Pople, c and èven in a man torvinette City, detefts and abhorsta Tyranny, they,

THE WARS IN ITALY.

NONE doubted what would be the Refolu-Refolution of the Council, from the Intion of clination of almost all the People to main-remines. tain the popular Government. It was therefore with wonderful Unanimity refolved to confent to the Return of the Medici as private Citizens, but to refufe the Removal of the Gonfaloniere from the Magi-

14

A. D. Magistracy, and that if the Enemy should obstinately perfist in demanding the last, they would freely expose their Lives and Fortunes in the Defence of their common Liberty and Country. All Hands were then fet to work on Preparations for War, and Provision was made for Supplies of Money; Troops were ordered to Prato, a Town distant ten Miles from Florence. which, it was fuppofed, would be the first the Viceroy would attack. Ditte banking - 15 The miller on whill

Let tot refer

THE Viceroy affembled his Troops with the Artillery at Barberino, from whence he marched with Difficulty over the rugged Appennine, because for Want of Money he was but ill provided with Pioneers and Inftruments for clearing the Roads. He directed his March, as it was expected, to Prato, where arriving early in the Morning, he erected a Battery the fame Day, from whence he play'd for fome Hours with Falconets on the Gate Mercatale, but to no Effect, becaufe it had a good Rampart within. The Florentines had put into Prato Two Thousand Foot, almost all of them of the Militia, VICIA and

THE WARS IN ITALY. 45

A. D. 1512. and the reft raifed in Hafte among all Sorts of Artificers, and People of the meaneft Callings, fo that there were very few, in fo great a Number, of any Experience in War. There were befides One Hundred Men at Arms under Luca Savello, an old Officer, but neither by his Age nor Experience arrived to any Degree of military Knowledge; and the Men at Arms were the fame as had a little before been difarmed and stripped in Lombardy. To this it must be added, that, from the Shortnefs of Time, and the Unfkilfulnefs of the Perfon who had the Charge of providing the Place, there was a good Quantity of Artillery, but a Scarcity of Ammunition, and of all Things necessary for the Defence of the Town. The Viceroy had Two Hundred Men at Arms, and Five Thousand Spanish Foot, and only Two Cannon: An Army inconfiderable in refpect of Number and other Provisions of War, but very confiderable with regard to their Goodneis; for the Foot were all of the fame Infantry that had, fo highly to their Honour, faved themfelves at the Battle of Ravenna, and now, like military Men,

46

A. D. Men, repofing great Confidence in their 1512. own Valour, they utterly defpifed the Unskilfulness of their Adversaries. But as they were come unprovided of Victuals. and found no Plenty of them in the Country, for, tho' Harvest was hardly over, the Corn had been conveyed into fortified Places, they foon began to feel the Want of Necessaries for Subliftence. The Viceroy, extremely uneafy in this Situation, was inclined to come to an Agreement, which was continually under Negotiation, on condition that, the Flo-"rentines confenting to the Return of the Medici on an equal Footing with the other Citizens, no more should be faid about deposing the Gonfaloniere; but that they hould pay the Viceroy, that he might depart out of their Dominions, a certain Sum of Money, which, it was fuppofed, would not exceed Thirty Thouland Dueats.d. With this Delign the Viceroy had confented to grant a Pafs for the Ambaffadors appointed to conclude a Peace with him, and would have defifted from carrying on the Attack of Prato till their Arrival, provided that in the mean time Isr Bette he

THE WARS IN ITALY.

he were supplied with Provisions from the A. D. Place, Nothing in Being has fwifter Wings than Opportunity, nothing is more dangerous than to judge from the Profeffions of others, and nothing is more prejudicial than an immoderate Sufpicion. All the principal Citizens were defirous of an Accommodation, being accuftomed, after the Example of their Ancestors, to defend their Liberties from Steel by Gold. They were preffing therefore that the Ambaffadors appointed should immediately fet out, and should be charged, among other Affairs, to take care that the Spanifb Army might be supplied with Victuals from Prate, that fo the Viceroy might patiently wait to fee whether the Agreement under Confideration would take Effect. But the Gonfaloniere, either perfuading himfelf, contrary to his natural Timidity, that the Enemies in Despair of Victory would of themfelves depart, or dreading the Return of the Medici, in whatever Manner, to Florence; or impelled by Fate to be the Caufe of his own Ruin and of the Calamities of his Country, artfully delayed the Setting out of the Ambaffadors in fo effectual

47.

48

A. D. effectual a Manner that they did not go 1512. on the Day appointed by a Refolution. The Viceroy therefore labouring under a Scarcity of Provisions, and uncertain whether the Ambaffadors would come at all, the next Night removed his Camp from the Gate Mercatale to the Gate called Seraglio, which leads towards the Mountain. Here he planted his two Cannon, and began to batter the Wall near that Gate, chusing that Place because there was a high Terrafs adjoining to the Wall, from whence it would be easy to mount any Breach made by battering the Wall above it. But the Facility on the Outfide became a Difficulty on the Infide, for the Breach which was made above the Terrafs was still very high above the Ground on the Infide. One of the Cannon burft at the first Shot, and the other, with which only they continued to batter, had its Force fo diminished by often Firing, that the Strokes came but weak, and did little. Execution; for after a Battery of many Hours they had made an Opening of not more than Twelve Braces. On this however fome Spanifb Foot got upon the Ter-: rais, AUS-

THE WARS IN ITALY. 49 rafs, from whence they mounted the A. D. Breach, and fo to the Top of the Wall, where they killed two Soldiers of the Prato Guard, at whofe Slaughter the reft began taken and to retire. But the Spaniards now afcend-facked by the Spanifs ed in Numbers by Ladders, and tho' there Army. was posted near the Wall on the Infide a Battalion of Foot, provided with Pikes and Fire-arms, who were ordered to prevent the Enemy from lodging themfelves on the Wall, and to difpatch any that should be fo rash as to leap down, or in any other manner descend on the Infide, yet at the first Sight of the Enemy upon the Walls, they abandoned their Defence, and without firking a Blow betook themfelves to Flight. The Spaniards, aftonished that fuch great Cowardice and little Experience thould be found amongst military Men, entered the Place at feveral Quarters without Opposition, and began to run through the Streets, where was no more Refiftance, but only Flight, Shrieks, Violence, Rapine, Blood, and Slaughters, the Florentine Foot throwing down their Arms, and furrendering to the Mercy of the Conquerors, from whole Avarice, VOL. VI. Luft, D

50

A. D. Luft, and Cruelty nothing would have 1512: been safe, if the Cardinal de' Medici had not placed a Guard at the great Church, and fo preferved the Chaftity of the Women, who were almost all of them fled thither for Refuge *. There perished, not in fighting, for none had the Heart to fight, but in flying, or in begging for Quarter, above Two Thoufand Men, and all the reft, with the Florentine Commiffary, were made Prifoners. After the Lofs of Prato the Pifloiefe, without withdrawing their Obedience to the Florentines in other Affairs, took upon them to agree with the Viceroy for fupplying his Army with Provisions, on receiving his Promife that they should not be molested.

> THIS fad Difaster, which caused the Ambassadors who were going to the Viceroy to stop in the Midst of their Journey, and return back, was no sooner known in Florence than it produced a vast Alteration

> * Buonacorfi fays that neither Virgins, Children, nor confectated Places were spared; and Giowio writes that the Cruelty of the Spaniards exceeded that of the Germani and French in the Pillage of Brefcia, and that there were killed above Five Thousand unarmed Men.

THE WARS IN ITALY. 51 tion in the Minds of the People. The A. D. Gonfaloniere repenting the Folly of his 1512. Counfel, terrified, and in a manner deprived at once of all Esteem and Authority, rather led than a Leader, and quite irrefolute, fuffered himfelf to be fubfervient to the Will of others, without making the least Provision for his own Prefervation or the public Safety. Others who were defirous of a Change of Government grew audacious, and publicly condemned the prefent Administration. But the greater Part of the Citizens unufed to Arms, and having before their Eyes the Example of Prato, tho' they were fond of a popular Government, stood exposed by their Fears as a Prey to any who had a Mind to invade them. This Situation of Affairs increafed the Audacioufnefs of Pagolo Vettori and Antonfrancesco de gli Albizi, young Noblemen, feditious, and defirous of Novelties, who, having fome Months before fecretly confpired with fome others in favour of the Medici, and, in order to fettle with them the Method by which they might be reftored, held a private Conference at a Coun-D 2 try try Seat, in the Florentine Dominions, on A. D. 1512. the Borders of the Senefe, with Giulio de' Medici, refolved to make an Attempt to force the Gonfaloniere out of the public Palace. And communicating their Defign to Bartolomeo Valori, a young Man of the fame Quality, and by his Prodigality overwhelmed with Debts, as was also Pagolo, on the Morning of the fecond Day after the Lofs of Prato, which was the last of August, they entered with a few Attendants into the Palace, where they found no Provision made for Refiftance, becaufe the Gonfaloniere had abandoned himfelf to the Difpofal of Chance or Fortune. They proceeded then directly to the Chamber of that Magistrate, and threatened to kill him if he did not leave the Palace; but if he would comply, they gave him their Word of Honour that his Perfon should be fafe. The Gonfaloniere submitting, and the City taking Alarm at the Tumult, there appeared many against him, but not a fingle Perfon in his Favour: On which the Aflociates in the Confpiracy gave Orders for immediately assembling the Magistrates, to whom

THE WARS IN ITALY. 53 whom the Laws have given a very ample Authority over the Gonfalonieres, and demanded that he might be deprived of his Office by Law, threatening otherwife to deprive him of his Life. The Fear of this induced the Magistrates, against their Gonfalo. Will, to depose him; after which they need conducted him in Safety to the Houfe of Pagolo, from whence the next Night he fet out well attended for the Territory of the Senefe, and from thence, pretending to go to Rome under a Pass obtained from _ the Pontiff, he privately took the Road to Ancona, and paffed by Sea to Ragufa. For he had been informed, by means of the Cardinal his Brother, that the Pope, either out of Malice, or a covetous Defire to deprive him of his Money, of which it was reported that he had a large Sum; intended to break his Word.

AFTER the Gonfaloniere had been deposed from the Magistracy the City of Florence immediately fent Ambassian to the Viceroy, with whom, by Means of the Cardinal de' Medici they easily came to an Accommodation. For the Cardinal D 3 was was content that nothing fhould the men-A. D. 1512. Conditions of Peace imposed on the Florentines.

54

tioned concerning his private Interefts, but the Reftitution of his Family and of all their Adherents to their own Country as private Citizens, with a Power to redeem within a certain Time the confifcated Eftates, indemnifying those to whom they were transferred for the Money they had expended in the Purchafe or Improvements. As to the public Affairs the Florentines entered into the League, and obliged themfelves to pay munto Cafar Forty Thousand Ducats in confequence of what the Medici, in answer to the Demand of Goritz at Mantoua, had promifed as a Reward for their Reftoration; to pay the Viceroy for the Ufe of the Army Eighty Thousand Ducats, Half at prefent, and the Remainder within Two Months; and for himfelf Twenty Thousand Ducats: On the Receipt of the first Payment the Viceroy was immediately to march out of the Dominions of the Florentines, evacuating all the Places of which he had taken Possession. Besides they made a League with the King of Aragon, under reciprocal Obligations of affifting each other

THE WARS IN ITALY. other with a certain Number of Men at Arms for the Defence of their States, and that the Florentines fhould take into their Pay Two Hundred Men at Arms of the Subjects of that King, the Command of which, tho' not expressed, was defigned for the Marquis della Palude, to whom the Cardinal had promifed, or at least given Hopes, that he should be constituted Captain General of the Florentine Forces.

55 A.D.

1512.

THE Gonfaloniere being expelled, and Forenthe Dangers of War removed by an Agree-tines alter their Goment, the Citizens applied themfelves to vernment, reform the Government in those Points in which the former Model had been judged to be of no Service; but with anuniversal Intention, except of a very few, and those either young Men, or almost all of them fcarce worthy of Notice, to preferve their Liberty and the popular Council. For this End they enacted, by new Laws, that the Gonfaloniere should no more be elected for Perpetuity, but only for one Year : That to the Council of Eighteen, which was changed every Six Months, and by whofe Authority the D 4 moft

56 A. D.

most weighty Affairs were determined, fhould be added for Perpetuity all those who had, to that Day, difcharged the great Offices of the State either at Homeor Abroad, with an Intent that the Citizens of the greateft Quality might always affift at their Debates ; at Home particularly fuch as had either been Gonfalonieres of Juffice, or of the Number of the Ten of the Balia, a Magistracy of great Authority in that Republic; of fuch as had ferved abroad, all those who being elected by the Council of Eighty had been fent Ambaffadors to Princes, or had been Commiffaries general in War. In all other. Points the Ordinances of the fame Government remained in Force without Alteration. in in myset

THESE Affairs being fettled, Giovan

Battifta Ridolfi, a noble Citizen, and of great Reputation for Prudence, was elected Gonfaloniere for the first Year, the People, as is ufually the Cafe in troublefome Times, not paying fo much Regard to those who were most acceptable to them for their popular Arts, as to a Perfon who by

THE WARS IN ITALY. 57 by his great Authority in the City, efpe. A. D. cially with the Nobility, and by his own extraordinary Talents was best capable of eftablishing the tottering State of the Commonwealth: But Things were now gone too far, and the Enemies of the public Liberty were become too powerful; in the Bowels of the Country was a fuspected Army, and within the City the most audacious of the Youth were greatly defirous of oppreffing that Liberty. With them concurred in Will, tho' in Words he pretended the contrary, the Cardinal de' Medici ;" for even from the Beginning he would not have thought the Reftoration of his Family merely as private Citizens a Reward worthy of fuch great Fatigues, and now he confidered further that their prefent Situation would not be durable, becaufe they would be univerfally detefted by the People, and himfelf in particular, on a Sufpicion that he would be continually inciting the other Citizens to confpire against their Liberty, but much more from an Indignation conceived against the Family for having conducted a Spanifb Army against their Country, and being 128 the

A: D. the Caufe of the most barbarous and cruel 1512. Saccage of Prato, and that the City was conftrained by the Terror of Arms to fubmit to dishonourable and unjust Conditions. The Cardinal was stimulated to the fame Purpofe by those who had before confpired with him, and had no honourable Station in the well regulated Commonwealth. But it was neceffary to have the Confent of the Viceroy, who still lay with his Army in Prato expecting the first Payment, which the Circumstances of the City rendered difficult to get in readinefs, and had no Inclination, whatever Caufe might be pretended, to favour a new Alteration in the City. UBut on the Representations of the Cardinal, who had procured himfelf to be feconded by the Marquis della Palude, and Andrea Caraffa, Count di Santa Severina, Generals in the Army, that it was to be feared left the City, to whom the Name of the Spamards could not but be henceforth perfectly odious on account of the Damages it had received from them, and which. would therefore on all Occasions adhere to the Enemies of the Catholic King, fhould, 1 Sai

58

THE WARS IN ITALY. 59 should, as soon as the Army had guitted A. D. their Dominions, recall the Gonfaloniere, whom it had been forced to expel, he complied with the Defires of his Eminence, being the rather induced by the great Difficulty the Citizens made of paying him the Money they had promifed, in which, had they been more expeditious, they would have laid angreater Foundation for a free Government. The Cardinal therefore having previoufly fettled. Matters with the Viceroy, unexpectedly entered Florence, and repaired to the Houses of the Medici. There entered Medici return to alfo, Part with him and Part feparately, Florence. a good Number of Italian Officers and Soldiers, the Magistrates not daring to forbid their Entrance on account of the Neighbourhood of the Spanish Army. The next Day a great Number of Citizensbeing affembled in Council in the public Palace on the prefent Juncture, and Giuliano de' Medici affifting, the Soldiers on a fudden forced the Gate, and rushing. up Stairs took Poffession of the Palace, and feized on the Plate which was kept there for the Use of the Magistracy. The Magi-

60

Magistrates then with the Gonfaloniere A. D. 1512. being forced to fubmit to the Will of a Man who could do more with Arms than they could do by their unarmed Reverence and Authority, immediately at the Motion of Giuliano de' Medici, called, by Sound of the great Bell, an Affembly of the People in the Square of the Palace. Here those that met, finding themselves furrounded by armed Soldiers, and the Youth of the City that had taken Arms for the Medici, gave their Confent that about Fifty Citizens, nominated with the Approbation of the Cardinal, should be invefted with the fame Authority in public Affairs as had refided in all the People, which fo ample a Power the Florentines call Balia *... By a Decree of this Affembly the Government was reduced to that Refume Form in which it fubfifted before the their Au. Year 1494, a Guard was stationed at the Palace, and the Medici refumed their former: Grandeur, but governed, more

Giovio, in his Life of Pope Leo X. fays that Fifteen Men were created with a Power to elect Sixty others of the best Effectm in the City, and most attached to the Medici, who with their Electors were to constitute a perpetual or standing Council for the Government of the State. THE WARS IN ITALY. 67 imperioufly, and with a more abfolute A. D. Authority than their Father had done. 100 Institute of A for the bill of Art and A

AFTER this Manner was the Liberty of the Florentines oppressed by Arms, being Florenreduced to this Condition principally by ligent of the Divisions among the Citizens. And, their Lito fay nothing of the Neutrality which berty. they had imprudently observed, and of the Remiffnefs of the Gonfaloniere in fuffering the Enemies of the popular Government to take too much Head, it is believed that this Revolution would not even after all have been effected, if the Caufe of the Public had not been negligently managed. For the King of Aragon at first had not fo great a Defire to fubvert the Liberty of Florence, as to detach the City from its Adherence to the King of France, and to fqueeze a Sum of Money from it to pay his Army. For as foon as the French had abandoned the Dutchy of Milan, he charged the Viceroy that when either the Circumstances of Affairs called him on fome other Enterprife; or that for any other Reason he should perceive that the Restoration of the Medici would be difficult

A. D. cult to accomplish, he should then take 1512. his Measures according to the Times, and agree or not with the City, as he faw most convenient. Such were his Orders at first : but afterwards being diffatisfied with the Pope for what he had attempted against Alfonfo d'Efte at Rome, and taking Umbrage at the Threats which his Holineis threw out in public against the Name of the Barbarians, he openly declared his Mind to the fame Florentine Ambaffador that had been fent to him at the Beginning of the War, and accordingly charged the Viceroy to attempt no Alteration in the Government, either becaufe he judged it fafer to preferve the Gonfaloniere who was obnoxious to the Pope, or was apprehenfive that the Cardinal de' Medici after his Reftoration would have a greater Dependance on the Pope than himfelf. But this last Refolution did not come to the Knowledge of the Viceroy, till the Day after the Republic was reduced under the Power of the Cardinalignal and and gate have with the second and all the starts used in the second by By what has been faid it appears that if the Florentines, after the Expulsion of the

French,

62

3518

THE WARS IN ITALY. 63 French, had been diligent in providing for A. D. 1512. the Security of their Affairs by means of an Harmony among themfelves, or had been guarded by a Body of well disciplined and experienced Troops, the Viceroy would either not have put himfelf in Motion against them, or have met with fuch Difficulties in his Attempt to oppress them, that he would have been glad to compound with them for a Sum of Money. But it was decreed that they should take none of these falutary Measures; fince, besides what might be comprehended by human Reafoning and Forefight, they had been warned from Heaven of the imminent Dangers. For not long before a Thun-Signs derbolt fell on the Gate by which you go prognofic from Florence to Prato, and struck off of the Refrom an antient Efcutcheon of Marble the volution. golden Flower-de-Luces, which are the Enfign of the King of France. Another falling on the Top of the Palace penetrated into the Chamber of the Gonfaloniere, and touching only the large Silver Box that contains the Balls used in electing the chief Magistrate, descended to the Bottom, where it ftruck a great Stone that was at the

A. D. the Foot of the Stairs, and fupported the ^{1512:} Frame of the Building, in fuch a Manner. that, being forced out of its Place without receiving any Damage, it feemed to be removed by fome very dextrous and fkilful Architect.

Caftelletto of Genoa furrendered.

64

A T the fame time, or a little before, the Castelletto of Genoa, which had been abattered by fome Cannon lent by the Pope, was furrendered to the Genoefe on the Payment of Ten Thousand Ducats to the Governor, who despaired of Relief because a Fleet, fent by the King from Provence to attend to the Defence of that City before he knew of its Rebellion, was returned back without daring to put to Shore. But the Lantern still held out for the King, having about the fame time received a Supply of Provisions and other Necessaries by fome French Ships.

THE Affairs of Florence being fettled, and the promifed Money received, the Viceroy put his Army in Motion for Brefcia, which City the Venetian Army, after mollifying the refractory Temper of the the Swifs, was employed in befieging. A. D. 1512. They lay before the Gate of San Giovanni, and battered the Town, and at the fame time, with fome Pieces of Artillery planted on an opposite Hill; played on the Castle. They were also in hopes of being let into the Place by the Gate of the Pile by means of a Plot, which was difcovered without taking Effect. But as foon as they were joined by the Spanish Army at the Castle of Gairo, near to Brescia, Aubigni, the Commander of the French who were furren. in Garrifon in the Town, chofe to furrender dered to Spaniards it, together with the Caftle, into the Hands of the Viceroy; on Condition that all the Soldiers fhould march out in Safety with their Effects, but with their Colours folded, their Pikes and Lances lowered, and leaving behind them their Artillery. It is fuspected that Aubigni chose to furtender to the Viceroy rather than to the Venetians by the Orders of his King, by which he was directed to give up the Place to the Spaniards, or to Cafar, not out of Hatred to the Venetians, but to fuggeft Matter of Contention between Cæfar and the King of Arragon. The fame Step was ... VOL. VI. E taken.

THE WARSIN ITALY. 6;

66

THE HISTORY OF

A. D. taken, before the Spaniards passed into Lombardy, by the French Garrison of Lignago, who defpifing the repeated Offers of the Venetians, put that Fortrefs into the Hands of the Bishop of Goritz, to whom alfo Pefchiera was in like manner furrender'd at the fame time that the Viceroy entered into Brefcia, the Poffeffion of which City alfo was demanded by the Bifhop, but the Viceroy was pleafed to keep it for the prefent for the Ufe of the League, in whofe Name he had received it. But the Enterprise against Crema took a different Turn, for Renzo da Ceri with a Part of the Venetian Army lying before the Place, on the Approach of Four Thousand Swifs fent by Ottaviano Sforza, Bishop of Lodi, and Governor of Milan, to make the Conquest of it in the Name of Maffimiliano Sforza, the future Duke, Benedetto Cribrario, cor-Crema rupted with Gifts and a Promife of being furrencreated a Nobleman of Venice, furrendered dered to the Vethe Town to the Venetians, with the Connetians. fent of Monf. di Durafo, who commanded in the Caftle, and would not depend for his Safety on the Faith of the Swifs.

Тне

THE WARS IN ITALY. 67

A. D.

1512. THE Bishop of Goritz after this took a Progrefs to Rome, where the Pope being extremely follicitous to gain his Affections Reception forced his Nature, and caufed him to be of Goritz received through his whole Dominions with all imaginable Honours, defraying the Expences of him and all his Attendants during the whole Journey in a most fumptuous Manner, and receiving him in all the Towns with exceffive and even unufual Marks of Honour. In many Places he was addreffed by new Embaffies of Prelates and honourable Perfons fent by the Pope, who would have perfuaded the College of Cardinals to walk in Proceffion and receive him at the Gate of Rome; but the College refufing it, as a Step not only without Precedent but full of the highest Indignity, the Cardinals of Agen and Strigonia went forth as far as the Meadows half a Mile from the Gate to receive the Bishop in the Name of the Pontiff, and conducted him, marching in the Middle between them, as Lieutenant of Cafar, to the Church of Santa Maria del Popolo, from whence, after the two E 2 Cardinals

A. D. 1512.

68

Cardinals had taken their Leave of him, he was accompanied by an innumerable Multitude to the Prefence of the Pontiff, who waited for him in a public Confiftory, vested in his Robes, and feated in the pontifical Chair. With the fame Formalities he had a few Days before very honourably received twelve Ambaffadors of the Swils, who were deputed from all the Cantons to pay their Obedience in a public Manner, and to offer the Service of the whole Nation for the perpetual Defence of the State of the Church, with their Thanks to his Holinefs for the fignal Honour he had done them in prefenting them with the Sword, Cap, Helmet, and Standard, and bestowing on them the Title of Defenders of the Ecclefiastic Liberty.

On the Arrival of Goritz a Council was held for fettling the public Affairs on a folid Foundation, which could only be done by removing the Caufes of Feuds and Contentions between particular Parties, that the Peace of Italy might be fo firmly established, that all its Powers might with united Counsels and Resolutions result the King

THE WARS IN ITALY. 69. King of France. The most difficult Part A. D. of this Work was an Accommodation, fo often attempted, between Cafar and the Agree-Venetian Senate: For Goritz confented ment treated of that the Venetians should have the Possession between of Padoua, Trevigi, Brefcia, Bergamo and Cafar and the Crema, but infifted on the Restitution of Venetians. Vicenza to the Emperor, and a Renunciation of all Right and Title to those Towns which Cæsar retained, befides the prefent Payment of Two Hundred Thoufand Rhenish Florins, and a yearly Tribute of Thirty Thousand more for ever. The Venetians thought it hard to acknowledge themfelves Tributaries for those Towns which they had held fo many Years in Poffeffion as their Property; harder to pay fuch a Sum of Money, though the Pope offered to lend them Part of it; but intolerable to reftore Vicenza, which being in the Hands of the Emperor would, as they alledged, by dividing the Body of their State, cut off the Communication of the Head and other principal Parts with the reft of the Members, by which Means their Poffession of Brescia, Bergamo and Crema would become very uncertain and E 3 precarious.

A. D. precarious. Befides this, they reprefented, 1512. as a more decent Excufe for their Refufal, that they had paffed their folemn Word to the Vicentines at their laft Surrendry, that they would never fuffer themfelves to be feparated from them.

> SOME other Articles came under Debate between the Pope and the Ambassadors of the King of Aragon, which were proposed by one Party more with a View to countervail the Complaints of the other, than in Hopes to obtain Satisfaction, For the Pope demanded that the King should, according to the Stipulations of the Confederacy, affift him in the Conqueft of Ferrara, and withdraw his Protection from Fabritio and Marc' Antonio Colonna, against whom his Holinefs had begun to proceed with fpiritual Arms, for having forced the Lateran Gate, and received Alfonfo d'Efte his Rebel into the Towns the Dominion of which directly belonged to the Church. He demanded also that the King should renounce the Protections which he had granted in Tuscany to the Florentines, Senefe, Lucchefe, and to Piombino, as done in Diminution

Pope's Demands of the King of Aragon.

70

THE WARS IN ITALY. 71 Diminution of the Rights of the Empire, A. D. and giving Umbrage to Italy in general, and particularly to the Church, fince as it could not be of any Service to the other Potentates that he should have fo many Adherents in Italy, fo it would be very dangerous for the Church to have a Province adjoining to its Dominions dependent on his Authority.

THE Answer of the Spaniards to those Answer Demands was, that the King their Mafter of the King's did not refuse to affist his Holiness against Ambassa. Ferrara, provided that, according to the dors. Obligations of the former Confederacy, he paid the Sums due to the Army for the Time past, and provided for future Payments; that his Proceedings against Fabritio and Marc' Antonio Colonna were by no means laudable; for by the Dependencies which they had contracted, and by the Reputation they had gained as Generals, the Profecution of them would furnifh Matter for new Combustions: That his Catholic Majesty could not abandon them without great Prejudice to his own Honour; and that the Exploits performed E 4 by

72

juftly

A. D. by both of them in the Service of the Pon π 1512. tiff, as well as of himfelf, in the War against the King of France, deferved a better Recompense: That the Complaint of the Protections of Tuscany did not arife from any just Umbrage or Jealousy, but was made with an Intent that Siena, Lucca and Piombino might be left as a Prey to the covetous Ambition of the Pontiff; That the King, however, as to these Points would refer himfelf to the Arbitration of the Emperor.

IT was the unanimous Defire of the Confederates that Massimiliano Sforza should be instated in the Dutchy of Milan, though Cæfar would not confent to grant him the Investiture, nor give him the Name of Duke or any Title of Jurifdiction. But there was revived a Complaint of Goritz and the Spaniards concerning the Seizure of Parma and Piacenza, in Pre-Parma judice of the Rights of the Empire, to and Piacenza unthe immoderate Increase of Power in the feized by Popes, and too much weakening the the Pope. Dutchy of Milan, which it would rather have been neceffary to render more powerful,

THE WARS IN IT ALY. 73 ful, because it was always fure to receive A. D. the first Impressions from the French. The Pontiff, it was faid, had not in the Articles of the League mentioned any other Cities than Bologna and Ferrara; but now, under Pretence of Rights of which there appeared no authentic Traces in the Memory of Man, usurped what had not for a vaft Space of Time been in the Poffeflion of the Roman Church, nor was there any certain Knowledge that she had ever been possessed of it even in the most antient Times, for of Donations made by Emperors there was nothing to fhew but one fimple Writing, which might have been forged by any one at Pleafure; and yet the Pope, as if the Cafe were manifest and notorious, taking Advantage of the Troubles of Lombardy, had taken upon himfelf to judge in his own Caufe.

ALL these Disputes were difficult to be terminated; but what by far occasioned the greatest Trouble and Disturbance was the Difference between Cæsar and the Vemetians, the Pope fatiguing himself to the utmost utmost of his Power, fometimes by Exhortations, fometimes by Intreaties, and fometimes by Menaces, being defirous, as tweenCa. he was at first, of the Prefervation of the Venetians for the public Good of Italy, for tians fol- he hoped by their Affistance, without employing the Spaniards, to make himfelf Master of Ferrara. The Ambassadors of the King of Aragon alfo laboured for a Reconciliation, being apprehensive that the Venetians, to the common Danger, might be induced to turn their Thoughts once more on uniting with the King of France. But they were under a Neceffity of acting cautioully for fear of provoking Cafar to enter into an Alliance with France, from which their King had taken fo much Pains to feparate him, and because his Catholic. Majefty for fome other Reafons would by no means forfeit his Friendship. The Swifs Ambaffadors also interposed their good Offices for adjusting these Differences; for they had obliged themfelves to defend the Venetians on the yearly Penfion of Twenty-five Thousand Ducats, and they defired not to be reduced to the Neceffity either of violating their Promifes.

1512 Agree. ment befar and the Venelicited in vain.

74

A. D.

THE WARS IN ITALY. 75 Promifes, or of oppofing Cæfar if he A. D. should attack the Venetian Dominions.

AT last, the Pontiff finding he could not induce Goritz to recede from his De-League mand of the Restitution of Vicenza, nor the Pope dispose the Venetians to give it up, and and Cajar that they difagreed also about the Sum of Money, and defirous above all things that, in order to extinguish the Name and Authority of the Pifan Conventicle, the Emperor might approve of the Lateran Council, protefted to the Venetian Ambaffadors that he should be constrained to profecute their Republic with fpiritual and temporal Arms. But his Proteft making no Impreflion on the Ambaffadors, he entered into a Confederacy with Cæfar alone, for the Spanish Ambassador refused to be a Party concerned, either because he had no Commission from his Master, or becaufe that King, though inclined to affift Cæfar, was yet follicitous to find fome-Means for keeping alive the Hopes of the Venetians.*

Means

* The English Ambassador also refused the League, it appearing to him, as Mocenigo fays, a fcandalous and unhandlome

Conditions on Cæfar's Part.

A. D. 1512.

I N the Preamble to this Confederacy, which was afterwards folemnly published in the Church of Santa Maria del Popolo, it was expressed that the Venetians having obstinately refused Peace, and the Pontiff, obliged by the Neceffities of the Christian Commonwealth, having protested to abandon them, Cafar had entered into and accepted of the League made in the Year 1511 between the Pope, the King of Aragon, and the Venetians, by Virtue of the Liberty which had been hitherto referved for his Acceffion; that he promifed to adhere to the Lateran Council, difannulling the Mandate, and revoking all Powers and Acts made or granted in favour of the Pifan Conventicle; and that he was obliged not to affift any Subject or Enemy of the Church, particularly Alfonso d' Este and the Bentivogli, the Poffeffors of Ferrara and Bologna; and he was also to recall the German Foot that, were in the Service of Alfonso and of Federigo da Bozzolo his Feudatory.

O N

handfome Action to engage against the Venetians, who, according to Bembo, had deferved infinitely well of the Pope.

THE WARS IN ITALY.

ON the other Part the Pope engaged 1512. to affift Cafar with fpiritual and temporal On the Arms against the Venetians, till he should Pope's have recovered all that was allotted him Part. by the League of Cambray. The Venetians were declared to be wholly excluded from the League, and from the Truce made with Cafar, becaufe they had feveral Ways acted in Contravention to both; and to be Enemies to the Pontiff, to Cafar, and to the Catholic King, to whom Room was referved for entering into the Confederacy within a certain Time, and on certain Conditions: The Pope was to make no Agreement with the Venetians without the Confent of Cafar, or before Cæfar had recovered all that belonged to him, as above: Neither the Pope nor Cæsar were at Liberty to enter into an Agreement with any Christian Prince without the Confent of the other Party: During the War against the Venetians the Pope was not to moleft Fabritio or Marc' Antonio Colonna, referving Liberty to proceed against the Bishop, Pompeo, Giulio, and fome other declared Rebels : Laftly, that

77 A. D.

78

A. D. that tho' by this Agreement the Poffeffion ^{1512.} of Parma, Reggio and Piacenza by the Pope was tolerated, no Prejudice was intended to the Rights of the Empire.

THE Confederacy being published, Goritz, at the next Selfion of the Lateran Council, gave his Approbation to that proves of Affembly in the Name of the Emperor, the Lateran Council. difannulling the Mandate, with all the Powers and Acts made and granted, and testifying before the whole Council that Cæfar had never affented to the Pifan Conventicle, but abhorred every one that had used his Name to authorise their Proceedings *.

THIS Bufinefs being difpatched, Goritz fet out from Rome to be prefent when Maffimiliano Sforza, who was arrived with the Emperor's Commission at Verona, took Possefition of the Dutchy of Milan. But the Cardinal of Sion, and the Ambassadors

* The Bishop of Goritz by his Adherence to the Lateran Council fo much ingratiated himself with the Pope, that he obtained of him a Monitory against the Venetians, and that Casfar should have Brescia. Mec.

THE WARS IN ITALY.

baffadors of the whole Swifs Nation, who A. D. 1512. were in Milan, were with Difficulty induced to wait the Arrival of the Bishop, for they were defirous that in the Ceremonies and Solemnities to be performed on that Occasion it should appear, by some Marks of Distinction, that the Swifs were the Caufe of this happy Event, that they were the Men who had driven the French out of that State, the Men to whole Labour and Valour Massimiliano was indebted for receiving it. The Viceroy however prevailed on them, more by Cunning and Industry than by Authority, to wait the Coming of Goritz. That Prelate having in the Name of Cafar ratified at Florence the Confederacy made in Prato, and received a certain Sum of Money from the Lucchefe, for taking them under his Protection, proceeded to Cremona, where he was expected by Maffimiliano Sforza and the Viceroy, and from thence they all fet out together for Milan to make their Entry into that City, on the Day appointed, with the Solemnities and Honours ufually attending new Princes. In the Cavalcade there was a great Difpute between the Cardinal

80

A.D. Cardinal of Sion and the Viceroy which of them was beft qualified to deliver the Keys at the Entrance of the Gate to the new Prince, as a Mark of putting him in Possefilion of his State. But the Viceroy at last submitting, the Cardinal in the public Name of the Swifs put the Keys in the Hands of the Prince, and that Day, which was about the latter End of December, performed all the Ceremonies that Massimili- were necessary to shew that Massimiliano ano Sforza put in Post-received Possessing from the Swiss. The settion of new Duke was received with incredible theDutchy of Milan. Demonstrations of Joy by all the People, > from a most ardent Desire to have a Prince of their own, and because they hoped that he would imitate his Grandfather or his Father, the former of whom had greatly endeared his Memory to the Inhabitants by his excellent Virtues, and their Weariness and Vexations under foreign Governments had changed their Hatred of the other into Benevolence; and before they had ended their Rejoicings the Castle of Novara was recovered, the Garrison furrendering that Fortress.

The star and at the start of a state block

320.00

т Тыв

THE WARS IN ITALY. 81 A. D.

1512. THE Confederacy made in Rome had not wholly broken off all Hopes of Ac-Accomcommodation between Cafar and the modation Venetians, for the Pope had immediately between Carfar and fent to Venice Jacopo Staffileo his Nuncio, the Venewho was accompanied by three Ambassa-tians mifdors of the Swifs, in order to induce them to come to an Agreement. On the other Side the Senate, to preferve the Benevolence of the Pope, and to avoid giving Cafar any Caufe to employ his Arms against them, had directed their Ambasfadors to profess their Adherence to the Lateran Council, and as foon as the Confederacy was made fent Orders for their Troops to retire into the Padouan. The Viceroy therefore, unwilling to difturb the Hopes of a Peace, had drawn off his Army towards Milan. But the fame Difficulties concerning the Restitution of Vicenza, and the Payment of the Money ftill fubfifting, all those Labours were to no Purpofe. And this was the Reafon why the Pope did not attack Ferrara. because had the Peace taken Effect, he would have been in Hopes that his own Vol. VI. F Forces.

A. D. Forces, with the Afliftance of the Vene-¹⁵¹². tians, together with the Report that they were to be joined, if needful, by the Spaniards, were fufficient to fecure him the Victory; but otherwife he had refolved to defer the Undertaking till the Spring, becaufe Ferrara was thought difficult to be taken in the Winter, being ftrong by Situation with refpect to the River, and Alfonfo had ftrongly fortified it, and was continually adding fome new Fortifications.

> In the party IT may perhaps feem foreign to my Purpofe, which was not to take any Notice of Occurrences happening without the Bounds of Italy, to give an Account of Transactions during the Course of this Year in France; but the Dependence of the State of Affairs in our own Country upon that on the other Side of the Mountains, and the Connexion of Events, fo often observed, in one with the Refolutions and Events in the other, oblige me not to pass them quite over in Silence .----So early as the Beginning of May Six Thousand English Foot had been transport-, ed

Engliß land at Fonterabia.

82

THE WARS IN ITALY.

ed in English and Spanish Ships to Fontara- A. D. bia, a Town on the utmost Border of the Kingdom of Spain towards France, and feated on the Ocean. Here they were to be joined by the Spanish Forces, and, according to the Agreement made between the Father-in-law and Son-in-law, jointly attack the Dutchy of Guyenne, which, according to the antient Names and Divifions of Countries, is a Part of the Province of Aquitaine. 'Against this Invasion the King of France, not as yet fecure on the Side of Picardy, had got in readinefs a Regiment of Eight Hundred Lances, which he had formed on a new Establishment, and had lifted a great Number of Foot in the lower Parts of Germany, not fubject to Cafar. And knowing how much more important it was for the Defence of the Dutchy of Guyenne to be fecure of the Kingdom of Navarre, which being appropriated in Dowry to Catherine de Foix was enjoyed in common by herfelf and John her Son by her Hufband Albert, he had invited Albert to his Court, and was very follicitous to gain him to his Intereft. And he had a very 4 F 2 fair

83

84 THE HISTORY OF A.D. fair Colour offered him for taking Possefilion T512. of the Country by the Death of Gaston de King of Foix, on which Occasion the King of France pretending that Navarre did not claims Navarre. belong to Females, but to himself as the next Heir male of the Family of Foix, had begun a Process at Law against John.

> ON the other Side the Catholic King, who had fet his Eyes on the Kingdom of Navarre, demanded of the King that he thould fland neuter between him and the King of France, should grant a free Passage through Navarre to his Troops that were to enter France, and for the Security of observing such Engagements should put into his Hands fome Fortreffes, which he promifed to reftore as foon as the War was ended. The King of Navarre being fenfible of the Tendency of these De-mands, for he knew that the Kings of Spain had of old a longing Defire to feize on Navarre, choie rather to expose himfelf to an uncertain Danger, than to embrace certain Ruine, in Hopes that he fhould not fail of the Succours promifed by the King of France, for whole Affairs it

85 THE WARSIN ITALY. it would be very convenient to keep the 4. D. War out of his own Dominions in Navarre. At the fame time, either to give more Leifure to the Troops for marching, as appointed, to his Affistance, or to free himfelf, if possible, from these Demands, he treated with the King of Aragon, who, according to his Cuftom, proceeded in this Affair with profound Policy. But he was no more injured by the Diligence and Sollicitude of the Catholic King, than he was by the Negligence of the King of France, who taking Encouragement because the English who had been landed at Fontarabia had lain still in their Quarters for many Days, and being confident that the King of Navarre could for fome Time defend himfelf with his own Forces, proceeded but flowly in fending him Succours. On this Occasion the King of Aragon, who had craftily amused Navarre with fallacious Hopes, turned his Forces that were prepared to join with the English, with the utmost Expedition, King of against the Dominions of that King, who King aragon being unprepared, and despairing of Re-feizes on fistance, Navarice F 3 3 mist A Atom

86 THE HISTORY OF A. D. fiftance, fled over the Pirenean Mountains ^{1512.} into Bearn.

> THUS the Kingdom of Navarre, except fome garrifoned Fortreffes, which held out for the fugitive King, being abandoned, was without any Expence or Difficulty, and more from an Awe of the Neighbourhood of the English than by his own Forces, reduced under the Power of the King of Aragon. That Prince knowing himfelf incapable of afferting his Right to that Kingdom by any other Title, alledged that he had taken lawful Poffeffion of it by Authority from the Apoftolic See. For the Pope, not fatisfied with his profperous Succeffes in Italy, had a little before published a Bull against the King of France, in which, calling Pope ex- him no longer most Christian but most communi-illustrious, he subjected him and all his king and Adherents to all the Punishments of Here-Kingdom of France. tics and Schismatics, granting a Power to any one lawfully to seize on their Goods, Estates, and whatever else belonged to them. With the same bitter Spirit, being highly offended with the City of Lions for THE WARS IN ITALY. 872 for receiving the Cardinals and the other A. D. Prelates who had fled from Milan, he had commanded, under grievous Cenfures, that the Fair ufed to be kept four times a Year, with a vaft Concourfe of Merchants, at Lions, fhould be held for the future in the City of Geneva, from whence Lewis XI. had, for the Benefit of his Kingdom, removed it; and at laft he fubjected the whole Kingdom of France to the Ecclefiaftic Interdict.

Sei Mer + Cak - 11 .

BUT the King of 'Aragon' having' got Possession of Navarre, a Kingdom, though of fmall Extent and Revenues, yet very commodious by its Situation, and a great Security to Spain, had firmly refolved to proceed no further, not thinking it for his Purpose to go to War with the King of France beyond the Mountains." Hence he had been but flow in preparing his Forces even from the first Landing of the English, and after his Acquisition of Navarre, when the English follicited him to join his Forces with theirs, that they might march in conjunction, and lay Siege to Bayonne, a City in the Neighbourhood F₄

A. D. hood of Fontarabia, and feated almost on the Ocean, he proposed other Enterprises in Places distant from the Sea, alledging that Bayonne was fo well fortified and garrifoned, that there were no Hopes of taking it. But the English opposing his Schemes, and fetting no Value on any Conquest in the Dutchy of Guyenne without Bayonne, after much Time spent in these Disputes, grew tired, and thinking themselves deluded, embarked without Orders or Leave from their Prince, and returned to England.

English return home.

bonnor to a cilia

By their Departure the King of France remained fecure on that Side, and he was no longer under Apprehenfions from the English, who had attacked him by Sea, for he was become at length fo powerful in his naval Armaments, that he commanded all theOcean between the Coafts of England and Spain. He refolved therefore French at- now to attempt the Recovery of Navarre, tempt in vain the Recovery of Navarre.

G1 7011

England and Spain. He refolved therefore now to attempt the Recovery of Navarres to which he was encouraged not only by the Departure of the English, but because by the ill Success of his Wars in Italy his Troops were all collected within the Kingdom of France. The King of Aragon, at A. the Time when he gave Hopes to the English that he would make War, had, in order to fecure the whole Kingdom of Navarre, fent some Troops to St. Jean Pied de Port, a Town on the utmost Borders of Navarre, and feated at the Foot of the Pirenean Mountains towards France; and when afterwards the French Forces began to fincreafe in the neighbouring Places, had fent thither Federigo Duke of Alva, his Captain General, with his whole Army. But at length being much inferior to the French, who were joined by the Dauphine, Charles Duke of Bourbon, and Longueville; Lords of the first Quality, the Duke of Alva entrenched himfelf in a ftrong Post between the Plain and the Mountain, and judged that he fhould do enough if he could prevent the French from entering so Navarre. The Enemy, being fenfible that they could not hurt him in that Place becaufe of the Strength of its Situation, refolved that the King of Navarre with Seven Thousand Foot of his own Country, accompanied by M. la Paliffe with Three Hundred Lances, fhould 571

THE WARSON NITALY. 89

A. D. fhould march from Salvaterre near St. Jean Pied de Port, where the whole Army was 'encamped,' and pass the Pirenean. Mountains by the Way of Valdironcales, and approaching Pampelona, the Capital of Navarre, in which the People, taking Encouragement from the near Approach of the French, began already to be very tumultuous, from a Defire after their King, should feize the Pass of Roncifvalle, by which alone Provisions were conveyed to the Spanish Camp, which in its prefent Situation, by means of the Barrennefs of the Country, did not abound with Victuals. The Event was, that, after the King of Navarre and Paliffe had feized a País on the Summit of the Pirenean Mountains, they took by Storm Borghetto, a Town feated at the Foot of those Mountains, and defended by Baldes, a Captain in the King of Aragon's Guards, with a confiderable Number of Foot. And if they had hastened with due Expedition to feize the Pafs of Roncifvalle, Hunger alone would have been fufficient to fubdue the Spanifb Army, which would have been furrounded with Enemies on all Sides; in Sect a

THE WARS IN ITALT.

a Country beyond Measure rugged and A. D ... difficult. But they were prevented by the Expeditiousness of the Duke of Alva, who leaving a Garrifon of a Thoufand Foot in St. Jean Pied de Port, with all the Artillery, paffed to Pampelona through the País of Roncifvalle before the Enemy arrived. But the King of Navarre and Paliffe, who had received a Reinforcement of Four Hundred Lances and Seven Thousand German Foot from the Dauphine, being disappointed of their Hopes, made their Appearance before Pampelona with four Pieces of Artillery, which they had conveyed with great Difficulty over the rough and craggy Mountains. They attempted to take the Place by Storm, but were repulfed, and conftrained by the Seafon of the Year, it being in December; and the Want of Provisions in that barren Country; to raife the Siege; and repais the Pirenees, on which by the Difficulties of the Paffes, and the Obstructions they met with from the Peafants, they were forced to leave their Artillery. At the fame time Lautrech, who had made an Inroad into Bifcay with Three Hundred Lances and Three

91

Three Thousand Foot, and plundered and A. D. burnt all that came in his Way, after an unfuccessful Attempt on the Town of St. Seoaftian, repassed the Mountains, and returned to the Army, which, having nothing farther to fear or hope, broke up, and left the King of Aragon in free and peaceable Poffeffion of the Kingdom of Navarre.

> AT this Time it came to be discovered that Ferdinando, Son of Federigo, late King of Naples, and declared Duke of Calabria, had made a private Agreement with the King of France, and was contriving to make his Escape to the French Army, which lay not far from the Town of Logrogna. On this Difcovery the King of Aragon, who was at that Time in Logrogna, fent the young Prince to the Caftle of Sciativa, in which the Kings of Aragon use to imprison fuch Persons as are diffinguished by their Nobility, or extraordinary Merit; and Filippo Copola, a Neapolitan, who had gone fecretly to the King of France to treat about the Affair, was quartered; Fortune fo varying the Lot Sant

92

1512.

THE WARS IN ITALY. 93 Lot of Mortals, that he received his Punish-A. D. ment in the Service of a Prince whole 1512. Grandfather by the Father's Side had caufed his Father the Count di Sarni to be beheaded. And the Difcovery of this Confpiracy, which had its Original from a Fryar who was privately fent to Ferdinando from the Duke of Ferrara, had fome Influence on the Affairs of Italy: For the Catholic King, who was before inclined to fatisfy the Pope, was now much more incited to it by this Affront, fo that he fent Orders to the Viceroy and his Ambaffador at Rome to lead his Army against Ferrara whenever the Pope pleafed, without demanding any Money of him more than was neceffary for the Subfiftin ence of the Soldiers." all all a la all all are all in the set

THESE were the Transactions during the Course of this Year in Italy, France and Spain. The following Year 1513 1513. was as full of memorable Events as the preceding: It began with a Cessation of Arms on all Sides; for the Venetians neither gave nor received any Molestation. Only the Viceroy went with Three Thoufand

94

fand Foot to befiege the Caffle of Trezzo, A: D. 1513. which furrendered on Condition that the Garrison might march out in Safety with their Effects. But the Minds of the People in general were difquieted with the Thoughts of future Events; for it was King of known that the King of France; having France meditates delivered his Kingdom from Foreign Arms, the Reand refumed new Spirits from his numecovery of rous Levies of German Infantry, and the Milan. confiderable Addition he had made to his Establishment of Lances, had nothing fo much in View as the Recovery of the Dutchy of Milan. But though he fet his Heart upon this Enterprife, and was extremely defirous to haften it while the Caftles of Milan and Cremona were still in his Poffeffion, yet confidering the great Difficulties that would occur from the Oppofition of fo many Enemies, and being not without Apprehenfions that the King of England might next Summer attack his Dominions with a very potent Army, he refolved to make no Movement unlefs he could either feparate fome of the Confederates from their common Affociation, or procure an Alliance with the Venetians: That one or other 10180

THE WARS IN ITALY. 95 other of these Events might happen he A. D. had various Reasons to hope from the 1513. Transactions of the last Year: For the Grounds Bishop of Goritz, when he was on his of his Hopes of Journey from Rome to Milan, had given a Success. favourable Audience to a Domestic of Cardinal San Severino, fent to him in the Name of the Queen of France, and had afterwards privately fent to France a Confidant of his own with Overtures, proposing that the King should affist Cafar against the Venetians; that a Marriage should be contracted between the fecond Daughter of the King and Cæsar's Grandfon Charles, with the Dutchy of Milan for her Dowry; that the King should make over to his Daughter and future Sonin-law his Pretenfions to the Kingdom of Naples; and that the Emperor might not be obliged to truft to bare Words and Promifes, the Spoule should immediately be delivered into his Hands; and that when the King should have recovered the Dutchy. of Milan, Cremona and the Ghiaradadda should be put in the Possession of Caefar. The King was also in Hopes of entering into an Alliance with the Venetians, who + + + + + were

96

A. D. were highly provoked at the Viceroy's 1513. taking Poffeffion of Brescia, and much more at the fubfequent Convention at Rome between the Pope and Cæfar; for which Reafon the King, taking Advantage of that Juncture, had very privately ordered to Court Andrea Gritti, who was taken at Brefcia, and still remained a Prifoner in France, and contrived that Gianjacopo da Trivulzi, in whom the Venetians put great Confidence, should, under Pretence of other Business, send his Secretary to Venice. He had alfo fome Profpect of an Agreement with the King of Aragon, who, according to his usual Way of entrusting his Concerns with Perfons in religious Orders, had privately fent into France two Fryars, who, under a Show of Zeal for the public Good, should begin with addreffing the Queen with Propofals relating to a Peace, either univerfal, or particular between the two Kings. But they had but fmall Hopes of Succefs, for the King of France knew that his Catholic Majesty intended to retain Navarre, and that it would be an Act of great Cruelty, and of the higheft Indignity imaginable,

THE WARS IN ITALY. 97 imaginable, to abandon a King who, for A. D. procuring his Friendship, and in Confidence of his Assistance, was fallen into so great a Calamity.

BUT the chief Concern of the King of France was a Reconciliation with the Swifs, on which he knew that Victory infallibly depended, by the vaft Authority which that Nation had at prefent obtained, great Renot only by the Terror of their Arms, but putation. by their Conduct, which no longer appeared like that of mercenary Soldiers or Grafiers, but of Men educated in the Administration of States, keeping a strict Eye, as is usual in a well managed Commonwealth, over every Step taken in public Affairs, and fuffering no Movement to be made but at their Difcretion. Hence Swifferland became the Refidence of Ambaffadors from all the Christian Princes, and the Pope, and almost all the Italian Powers, paid them yearly Penfions, to be received into their Confederacy, and for Permission to lift Soldiers of that Nation; when Occafion required, for their own Defence. The Swifs, grown proud at VOL. VI. this G

A. D. this Authority, and remembering that by their Arms first Charles King of France had fubverted the happy State of Italy, and Lewis his Succeffor had acquired the Dutchy of Milan, recovered Genoa, and overthrown the Venetians, they behaved towards every one after an imperious and infolent Manner. The King of France, however, befides the Encouragement given Courted him by many private Perfons among the Swils, and his perfuading himfelf that he France. should work upon them by Offers of a very large Sum of Money, entertained Hopes of Success because the Cantons had never ratified the Agreement concluded between the Government of Milan in the Name of Maffimiliano Storza and their Ambaffadors, by which, as foon as he should be put in Possession of the Dutchy of Milan and its Fortreffes, he was to pay them an Hundred and Fifty Thousand Ducats, and Forty Thoufand more every Year for Five and Twenty Years to come, on which Confideration they were to receive him under their Protection, and allow him to lift their Foot into his Service. Wherefore in the Beginning of this by the King of

198

THE WARSIN ITALY. 99 this Year the King, tho' he had before A. D. in vain attempted to obtain an Audience ^{1513.} for the Ambasfadors whom he defigned to fend in order to treat about a Reconciliation, confented to give them free Possefilion of the Fortreffes of the Val di Lugana, and Lugarna, as a Price at which he defired to purchase only a bare Hearing. With so much Indignity did great Princes court the Friendship of that Nation !

Mons. de la Tremouille then, by Commiffion from the King, arrived at Lucern, where a Diet was called to give him an Audience. But tho' he met with a chearful Reception, he foon found that his Labours in regard to the Dutchy of Milan would be fruitlefs. For a few Days before Six of the Cantons had ratified and figned the Articles of the Agreement made with Maffimiliano Sforza, three had refolved to ratify it, and the other three feemed as yet to stand in Suspense. There was no more Talk therefore about the Affair of Milan, but Tremouille proposed to them their Affistance of the King at least in the Recovery of Genoa and Afti, which G 2

100

A. D. which were not included in the Conven-1513. tion made with Massimiliano. To give Weight to this Demand Trivulzio, under Demands Pretence of treating about his private of the King of Concerns, requested Leave to come to France rejected by the Diet, and obtained a Pafs, but on the Swife. Condition that he should treat of nothing relating to the King of France; and as foon as he was arrived at Lucern, he received Orders not fo much as to converfe with Tremouille either in public or private. At last the Articles of the Treaty with the Duke of Milan were ratified by the common Confent of all the Cantons, and every Demand of the King of France was rejected, and it was further refolved that no Leave should be granted him to list Soldiers of their Nation for his Service either in Italy or elfewhere.

> THE King of France thus excluded by the Swifs, found it neceffary to reconcile himfelf either with Cæfar or with the Venetians, who at the fame time were treating also with Cæfar. For the Confederates entertaining a Sufpicion of their embracing a Reconciliation with the King of

THE WARS IN ITALY.

of France, Goritz confented that they A. D. 1513. should retain Vicenza. But the Senate taking Encouragement from the fame Caufe as excited the Fears of the Enemy, refused to make Peace without the Reftitution of Verona, for which they offered to recompense Cæsar with the larger Sum of Money. But finding their Demand attended with Difficulties, they were the more inclined to embrace the Friendship of the French, and agreed, by Trivulzio's Secretary, to enter into a Confederacy with the King on the Foot of the first Alliance, by which they were to have the Poffession of Cremona and the Ghiaradadda. But the Secretary having expresly mentioned in the Inftrument that nothing should be of any Validity unless it were approved by the King within a certain Time, various were the Debates in Council whether it was more expedient to chufe a Reconciliation with the Emperor, or a Confederacy with the Venetians. Robertet, Debate in a Secretary of State, and of great Autho-the French rity, Trivulzio, and almost all the chief Council on chu-Men of the Council advifed the latter, fing an reprefenting that prefent Experience had Ally. de-G 3

ioi

102

A. D. demonstrated the great Prejudice they 1513. had received from the Inconstancy of Cafar, the Hatred he had conceived Reafons against the King, and his Defire to refor preferring the venge himfelf, especially as they had Venetians. learnt with deep Concern from Authors of no mean Credit, that he had been often heard to fay, and very lately, that he had fixed in his Mind the Memory of feventeen Injuries that he had received from the French, and that he would not lofe the Opportunity which now offered of revenging himfelf for every one of them; that he would enter into a Treaty with no other Defign than, by means of a fraudulent Reconciliation, to have the greater Conveniency to do Mifchief, or at least interrupt what he knew to be under Negotiation with the Venetians, or to retard the Preparations of War; that the Man deferved no Pity nor Excuse who being once deceived by another, was fo unwary as ever to truft him again. 11. . 30 - 10

> ON the Contrary the Cardinal of San Severino, induced rather by his Zeal for a Party in Opposition to Trivulzio, as his Ad-

Ci T(

THE WARS IN ITALY. 103 Adverfaries faid, than for any other Rea- A. D. 1513 fon, because when he was in Milan he himfelf with his Brothers had always fol-Cardinal lowed the Faction of the Ghibellines, re-S. Severiplied, that nothing would be more for an Allithe King's Interest than to affociate him- $\frac{\text{ance with}}{C \ll /ar}$. felf with Cafar in order to break the Union between his Enemies, efpecially when a Conjunction could be effected by fuch Means, as, it was to be hoped, would render it durable; that it was the Property of Princes in their Refolutions always to prefer Interest before Benevolence. Hatred, or any other Paffion; and what could be of greater Benefit to Cælar than a present Affistance against the Venetians, and putting him in Hopes that his Grandfon would fucceed; to the Dutchy of Milan?. If Cæfar were once separated from the others, the Catholic King would make no Opposition to his Authority, out of Regard to the Interest of his Grandson, and for other Confiderations; and nothing could ftrike a greater Terror into the Pope. On the contrary, a Confederacy with the Venetians would be highly diffionourable on account of the Ceffion which must be G 4 . . 71 made

A. D. made to them of Cremona and the Ghia-^{1513.} radadda, which are fo effential Parts of the Dutchy of Milan, that the King had fet all Europe in a Combustion to recover them; and yet a Conjunction with the Venetians was not fufficient to obtain the Victory, if the Union between the others were not diffolved.

104

THIS Opinion at last prevailed through the Authority of the Queen, who was defirous of the Aggrandizement of her Alliance with Cæfar folli-Daughter, provided that till the Time of cited in Marriage she might be permitted to reyain. main under the Tuition of her Mother, who would engage her Word to keep her in the Name of Cæfar as a Spoufe defigned for his Grandfon, and to refign her to her Husband, as soon as she should be of an Age fit for Matrimony. But the King being afterwards affured that Cæfar would not confent to this Restriction; and, what is more, that he had artfully made his Propofals rather to give him Occasion to proceed more flowly in his other Projects, caft off all Thoughts of this Negotiation, and recalled A/parot, Brother of Lautrec; who

THE WARS IN ITALY. 105 who had fet out from Court with his Com- A. D. miffion to treat with Goritz on this Affair.

ON the other Side, the Apprehenfions of a Union between the King of France and the Venetians increasing daily, the Calar ad-King of Aragon advised Cafar to reftore vised to Peace Verona; and proposed to him, with the with the Help of the Money which he would re-Venetians. ceive of the Venetians, and with the Spanish Army, to remove the War into Burgundy. Of the fame Opinion was Goritz, who, in Hopes that he could work upon Cafar by his Prefence, returned to Germany, attended not only by Don Pedro Durrea, who came with him, but also by Giovan Battista Spinello Count of Carriati, the Spanish Ambaffador at Venice, having first induced the Senate, that no new Difficulties might interrupt the depending Negotiation, to make a Truce for the whole Month of March, and paffed his Word to the faid Ambaffadors that Cæfar should reftore Verona, on a Promife of the Payment of Two Hundred and Fifty Thoufand Ducats at certain Times, and Fifty Thousand Ducats yearly.

106 D. 1513.

fick. Projects.

I N this turbulent Juncture and trouble-Pope falls fome Times, the Pope fell Sick at a Time when his Imagination was teeming with grander Ideas and Conceptions than, per-His vaft haps, it had ever been before, for his Schemes were not contracted, but always enlarged by the Accomplifhment of his Defires. Hence he had refolved to undertake in the Beginning of the Spring the Enterprife fo long meditated against Ferrara. That City being left deftitute of all Affiftance, and expecting to be attacked by the Ecclefiaftic Troops in conjunction with the Spanish Army, it was believed, would make but fmall Refiftance. He had fecretly purchased of Gafar for Thirty Thousand Ducats the City of Siena for the Duke of Urbino, to whom he would never grant any Lands belonging to the Ecclefiaftic State except Pefaro, that he might preferve unblemished the Glory of fincerely feeking the Aggrandifement of the Church. He had agreed to lend Cæfar Forty Thoufand Ducats, for which he was to receive Modena in Pledge. He threatened the Lucchefe for having in the

THE WARS IN ITALY.

107

A. D. the Troubles of the Duke of Ferrara feized on the Carfagnana, and infifted that they should give it up to him. His Indignation was kindled against the Cardinal de' Medici, because he fancied that he was more devoted to the Catholic King than to himfelf, and becaufe he was vexed that he had it not in his Power, as he had before imagined, to difpose of Florence, having formed new Defigns, and new Negotiations, to change the State of that City. He was angry with the Cardinal of Sion for appropriating to himfelf a Revenue of above Thirty Thousand Ducats yearly out of the Estates and Poffeffions of feveral Perfons in the Dutchy of Milan, and had deprived him of the Title of Legate, and cited him to Rome. The better to establish the Duke of Urbing in the Government of Siena by a good Understanding with his Neighbours, he had lately taken into his Pay Carlo Baglione with a Defign to expel from Perugia Gian Pagolo, who was very clofely allied by Affinity to the Sons of Pandolfo Petrucci, Succeffors to their Father's Grandeur. He defigned to constitute Ottaviano Fre-

4

108

A. D. Fregolo Doge of Genoa, and to remove 1513. Janus from that Dignity, with the Confent of the other Fregoli, because it appeared from the Rank which the Anceftors of Ottaviano had held in that City that the Office belonged rather to him. He had it continually in his Thoughts to remove out of Italy, or oppress by Help of the Swifs, whom alone he magnified and careffed, the Spanish Army, that he might feize on the Kingdom of Naples, by which Means Italy would remain (to use his own frequent Expression) free from Barbarians*. With this View he had prevented the Swi/s from entering into a Confederacy with the Catholic King; and yet, as if it had been in his Power to finite all the World at once, he continued eagerly bent against the King of France, though he had given Audience to a Meffenger from the Queen, and > * Julius was fo fond of the Title of Deliverer of Italy, that he permitted every one to give it him. But Cardinal Grimani freely telling him one Day that there yet remained under the Yoke the Kingdom of Naples, one of the largeft and richeft Members of Italy, the Pope fhaking his Staff on which he leaned, and fretting with Anger, replied, that in a fhort Time, unlefs Heaven had otherwife difpofed, the Neapolitans as well as the reft fhould have the Yoke taken off their Necks. Giovio, in his Life of Alfon/o.

THE WARS IN ITALY. 109 and excited against him the Arms of the A. D. King of England, to whom he had appointed that the Title of Most Christian King should be transferred by a Decree of the Lateran Council, for which Purpose there was already drawn up a Bull, which also contained a Deprivation of Lewis of the Dignity and Title of King of France, with Leave for any one to seize upon that Kingdom.

In the Midst of fuch and fo great Defigns; and perhaps of greater unknown Death of (for of fo fierce and refolute a Mind no Pope Conception is incredible, however vaft Julius II. and boundless) Death intervened after a Sicknefs of many Days. When he was fenfible that he was drawing near his End, he ordered a Confiftory to be called, at which his Weaknefs would not permit him to be prefent in Perfon, but he caufed the Bull to be confirmed which he had before published against him who should obtain the Pontificate by Simony, and declared the Election of a Successor to belong to the College of Cardinals, and not to a Council, and that the Schifmatic Cardinals

A. D. dinals should have no Power to intervene 1513. in the Election; but he forgave them, he faid, all their Offences committed against himfelf, and prayed God to pardon them the Injuries they had done to his Church. After this he befeeched the College of Cardinals to gratify him fo far as to grant the City of Pefaro in Vicarage to the Duke of Urbino, putting them in mind that it was chiefly by means of that Duke that at the Death of Giovanni Sforza it had been recovered to the Church. This was the only Inftance in which he fhewed any private Affection or Concern for his own Family; on the contrary, when the Lady Felice his Daughter inftantly befought him, as did many others by her Interceffion; to create Guido da Montefalco a Cardinal, becaufe they were Brother and Sifter by the Mother's Side, he positively answered that he was not a Perfon worthy of that Dignity. Thus in all Refpects retaining his nity. Thus in all Refpects retaining his ufual Conftancy and Severity, with the fame Judgment and Vigour of Mind which he enjoyed before his Sicknefs, after devoutly receiving the Sacraments of the Church, on the Night of February 21, when THE WARS IN ITALY. III when it was near Day, he finished the A. D. Course of his painful Life.*

HE was a Prince of ineftimable Courage His Chaand Constancy, but impetuous, and boundlefs in his Conceptions, which would have carried him headlong to his own Ruine, had he not been fuftained more by the Reverence of the Church, the Difcord of Princes, and the Condition of the Times, than by his own Moderation or Prudence. He would certainly have been worthy of the highest Honour had he been a secular Prince, or employed the fame Ardor and Vigilance with which he profecuted the Advancement of the Church in temporal Greatness by the Force of Arms, in promoting her Progress towards Purity and fpiritual Perfection by the milder Arts of Peace. His Memory, however, is most dear and honoured above that of all his Predeceffors, especially by those who having lost the true Names of Things, and confounded the Diftinction that arifes from weighing them in a just Balance, think it more the Duty

• Gradinico and Giustiniano write that he died under an Oppression of Grief, being apprehensive that he should be deposed by the Council from the Popedom. II2

A. D. Duty of Pontiffs to increase the Empire of ¹⁵¹³ the Apostolic See by Arms and the Blood of Christians, than to ftrive and labour, by the Example of a good Life, and by correcting and healing a Degeneracy and Corruption of Manners, to promote the Salvation of those Souls for whose Benefit they boast that Christ has constituted them his Vicars upon Earth.

ON Advice of the Pope's Death the Confequences of Viceroy of Naples marched with the Spahis Death. nifb Soldiers towards Piacenza, and conftrained that City to return, as it formerly used to be, under the Dominion of the Dukes of Milan; and the Parmefans, induced by the fame Terror, followed the Example of the Piacentines. - On the other Side the Duke of Ferrara foon recovered his Towns in Romagna, and then came before Reggio; but his Approach occasioning no Commotion in the Place, he would not venture to flay there, because the Spanish Army had extended their Quarters between Piacenza and Reggio. There was no other Movement in the Ecclefiaftic State, nor did Rome or the College of Cardinals

THE WARS IN ITALY. II3 dinals find themselves under those Diffi- A. D. culties that had embarraffed them at the .1513. Death of the two last Pontiffs. Wherefore, after the Performance of the funeral Rites according to Cuftom, Five and Twenty Cardinals peaceably entered the Conclave, having first declared the Marquis of Mantoua's Son, whom Julius had kept as a Hoftage, free from his Word of Honour, and at Liberty to return to his Father. The first Care of the Conclave was to moderate, by very ftrict Articles, the Authority of the future Pontiff, which the Deceafed, they faid, had exercifed beyond the Bounds of Moderation; but as among Men fome have not the Courage to oppofe the Will of the Prince, and others are follicitous to gain his Favour, fo these fame Perfons not long after voluntarily repealed almost every one of these Articles.

ON the Seventh Day of the Conclave PopeLeoX the Cardinals unanimoufly elected Pontiff Giovanni Cardinal de' Medici, who affumed the Name of Leo X. aged 37; which was very furprifing on account of his Youth with Regard to the Cuftom of paft Times, - Vol. VI. H but

114

A. D. but principally owing to the Diligence of 1513. the young Cardinals, who had long before tacitly agreed together to create the first Pontiff out of their own Number. This Election gave vast Satisfaction to almost all Chriftendom; every one perfuading himfelf that Leo would prove a most accomplished Pontiff, from the dear Memory of his Father's Merits, and from the Fame which fpread every where of his own Liberality and good Nature, having the Reputation of a chafte Person, and of unblameable Manners; and it was hoped too that he would imitate the Example of his Father in being a Lover of learned Men, and of all those of an illustrious Genius; and those Expectations were increased by confidering that he was chofen fairly without Simony, or Sufpicion of any corrupt Practice. It feemed alfo as if Heaven itfelf gave its Approbation in the very Beginning of this Pontificate, for in the fourth Day after the Election the deprived Cardinals of Santa Croce and San Severino came into the Power of the new Pope. These Prelates having Advice of the Death of Julius fet out for Rome by Sea, accompanied

THE WARS IN ITALY. 115

panied by the French Ambaffador, and put A. D. in at Legborn, where being informed of the Election of the Cardinal de' Medici, trufting to his Good-nature, and the Cardinal of San Severino in particular depending on his intimate Friendship with the new Pontiff and his Brother, obtained a Pass of the Governor of Leghorn, which did not extend beyond the Bounds of his Jurifdiction, and went ashore. From Leghorn, without requiring any farther Security, they boldly ventured to Pifa, in which City they were refpectfully received, and thence conducted to Florence, where they were put under Schifmahonourable Cuftody, without any Power tic Cardito depart. They were confined at the Cuftody. Defire of the Pontiff, who by the Bishop of Orvieto, fent for that Purpofe, exhorted them, with very civil and gracious Expreffions, that for their own Security, and for the Good of the Church, they would be content to ftay at Florence till it should be determined in what Manner it was proper for them to go to Rome; and that, fince they had been legally deprived of their Dignity, and their Deprivation was confirmed in the Lateran Council, they H 2 would

A. D. would no longer appear in the Habit of ^{1513.} Cardinals, for their fhewing outward Marks of Humiliation would facilitate his Defign of reftoring their Affairs to a happy Situation.

116

THE first Transaction of the new Pope was his Coronation, which was performed, according to Cuftom, in the Church of Pompous San Giovanni Laterano, with fo pompous Coronation of the an Appearance of his Family and Court, newPope. of all the Prelates, and many Nobles from divers Parts, and with fo great a Concourfe of the Roman People, that it was univerfally believed that Rome had never feen a more fuperb and magnificent Day fince the Inundations of the Barbarians. In this Solemnity the Standard of the Church was carried by Alfonfo d'Efte, who had obtained a Sufpenfion of his Cenfures, and was come to Rome in great Hopes, from the gentle Difposition of the Pope, The Standard of the to fettle his Affairs. Knights* of Rhodes was carried by Giulio de' Medici.

> * Orig. Religione; for the Knights of Rhodes, now Knights of Malta, were a religious Order, wore a Habit and Crofs, and were fworn, like the Knights Templars, to defend the Christian Faith against the Infidels.

THE WARS IN ITALY. 117 Medici, all in Armour, and mounted on A. D. 1513. a large Courfer; he was by Nature inclined to the Profession of Arms, but his Deftiny drew him against his Will to a facerdotal Life; in which he was to be a furprifing Example of the Variety of Fortune, and what rendered that Day the more memorable and remarkable, was to confider that the Man who now carried with fo much Pomp and Splendor the Enfigns of fo great a Dignity, had but the Year before on the fame Day been made a miserable Captive. This magnificent Parade confirmed the Vulgar in their Expectations from this Pontificate, every one flattering himfelf with Happiness under a Pontiff that abounded in Liberality, and delighted in Splendor, for it is certain that the Expences of that Day amounted to an Hundred Thousand Ducats. But Men of better, Judgment would have been more pleased if the Affair had been conducted with greater Gravity and Moderation, being of Opinion that fo much Pomp did not become a Pontiff, and that it was by no means fuitable to the Condition of the prefent Times to fquander away the Trea-G 3 fure 118 THE HISTORY OF A. D. fure accumulated by his Predeceffor in ¹⁵¹³ ufelefs Expences.

Bur neither the Change of the Pontiff nor any other Events were fufficient to establish the Quiet of Italy; on the contrary, the Disposition of Affairs began manifeftly to tend more to War than to Peace. For Cafar being quite averfe to the Reftitution of Verona, by which he imagined that he should deprive himself of an easy Entrance into Italy, though the Truce had been prolonged for all April, rejected the Articles of the Agreement negotiated at Milan; and being difgusted at the Importunities of the Ambaffadors of the Catholic King, told the Count di Carriati that, from the Inclination which he shewed towards the Venetians, he ought rather to be called a Venetian than a Spanif Ambaffador.

THIS Tendency of Affairs towards a Rupture was yet much more increased by 'Truce be- the Truce made between the most Christian tween the Kings of and Catholic Kings, for a Year only,"for France their Dominions beyond the Mountains. and Aragon. By

6 316 10

Cafar refules to reftore Verona.

3

THE WARS IN ITALY. IIG By this Truce the King of France, being A. D. freed from all Apprehensions on the Side of 1313. Spain, found it very eafy to renew the War in the Dutchy of Milan. The Catholic King was at all Times averse to a War with the French on the other Side of the Mountains; for not abounding with Money, and therefore obliged to affift himfelf with the Forces of the Nobility and People of Spain, either these Succours were not in due Readinefs, or he was neceffitated in Time of War to ftand as it were in Subjection to their Pleafure. But at this Juncture he was mightily confirmed in his old Counfels by his Defire to establish his newly acquired Kingdom of Navarre in Peace, and much more becaufe, fince the Death of Ifabella, being no longer King but Governor of Caftile, he had not fo well founded his Authority in troublefome Times, as he had lately found by Experience in the Defence of Navarre, which, though it ended happily, was however rendered very hazardous by the Slownefs of the Succours. The King therefore, unwilling to be reduced to fuch Straits, agreed on the Truce before he knew of H 4 the

Motives of the King of Aragon.

120

A. D. 1513.

the Death of the Pontiff, though it had not been published till he was informed of the Election of another. He alledged, in. Justification of this unexpected Refolution, that the Pope and the Venetians had violated the League, fince after the Battle of Ravenna they would never pay the Forty Thoufand Ducats, which they were bound to do as long as the French had any Poffeffions in Italy. As for himfelf it was manifest he had only in View the common Welfare of the Confederates, for he had not appropriated to himfelf the Rewards of the common Victory, nor poffeffed in Italy fo much as a fmall Tower more than what he was in Poffeffion of before the War. But the Pope had his private Ends in Profpect, and had made a Property of what should have remained in common, by feizing on Parma, Piacenza and Reggio, and had employed all his Thoughts on making himfelf Mafter alfo of Ferrara; by this covetous Defire he had diffurbed the Measures for the Recovery of the Fortreffes of the Dutchy of Milan, and the Lantern of Genoa: That he himfelf had interpofed all his Diligence and Authority

THE WARSIN ITALY. 121

thority for procuring an Agreement be- A. D. tween Cafar and the Venetians, but that the 1513. Pope had for his own Interest precipitately excluded the Venetians from the League; in which Affair, his own Ambaffadors had acted imprudently, for they had not confented that his Name should be inferted in the Article in which the Confederacy was introduced, becaufe they knew that fuch was his Intention, and yet had fuffered him to be named in the Article by which the Venetians were excluded : That the Venetians had not in that Transaction behaved in a Manner answerable to the Opinion People had entertained of their Prudence, having fet fo high a Value on Vicenza as to refolve not to part with it, though it were to free themfelves from a burdenfome War : That it was impoffible for him to maintain the Army which he had in Italy without the Payment of the Subfidies which had been promifed him, and he was lefs able to fuftain the whole War on the Frontiers of his own Kingdoms, which he well knew all the reft defired, and were labouring to procure : That the Pontiff did not diffemble his late

A. D. late unjust Defire to deprive him of the 1513 Kingdom of Naples: That he was not however moved by these Injuries to think of abandoning the Church or the other States of Italy, while he found a fuitable Correspondence, and that he was in Hopes that the Powers concerned, being induced by the Truce which he had made with the King, would be the more ready to enter into an Agreement with him for their mutual Defence. Ferdinando had inferted in the Inftrument of the Truce the Names of Cæfar and the King of England, tho' he had communicated nothing of the Negotiation to either of these Princes; and it was ridiculous to obferve, at the Time when the Truce was folemnly proclaimed throughout all Spain, the Arrival of a Herald from the King of England to notify the vaft Preparations made by his Mafter for attacking the Kingdom of France, and to follicit the King of Aragon to be ready at the fame time, as he had promised, to invade it on the Side of Nierjan r . . . Spain. is in station of a station in 2 m 1 THE will a mound front of a light -

THE WARS IN ITALY. 123 A. D. 15¹³

THE Truce made in this Manner struck the greatest Terror into all the Italy Italians who had been uneafy-under the alarmed French Government, as they were firmly at the Truce. perfuaded that the King of France would fend with all Speed an Army on this Side the Mountains, that, through Cafar's obstinate Refufal of a Peace, the Venetians would join with the French, and that it would be very difficult to refift their united Forces, because the Spanish Army, that had Time after Time drawn Sums of Money from the State of Milan, which was impoverished and exhausted with infinite Expences, had no longer any Means of Subfistence. As to the new Pontiff. they could not 'as yet dive into his Intentions, for tho' he was thought fecretly to with that the Power of the King of France might be bounded by the Mountains, yet being but newly placed in the pontifical Chair, and as much perplexed as the reft at the Truce made by the Catholic King at a Time when he was believed to be employing all his Thoughts on War, he ftood in great Sufpense of Mind, being disgusted alfo

124

A. D. alfo that when he had follicited with great Earnestness the Restitution of Parma and Piacenza to the Church, he found a Readinefs to give him Hopes, but Slownefs in the Execution, all the other Allies being defirous to preferve those Cities to the Dutchy of Milan, and perhaps expecting that the Pope's Defire to recover them would induce him to the Defence of that State. The Affiftance of the Swifs was more certain as well as more powerful; but when it was confidered that neither Massimiliano Sforza nor the other Confederates were in a Condition to advance the Money necessary, according to Agreements, to put them in Motion, it was feared they would refuse to descend into the State of Milan when they were most wanted. the second time - a advantation > web Hilas ON the other Side the King of France, depending on the Truce, refolved to fend an Army into Italy, being put in Hopes of Succefs by the Reafons mentioned above, to which might be added that he knew very well that the People of the State of Milan, being plagued with the repeated 1:

53.2.14

THE WARS IN ITALY. 125 repeated Exactions and Rapines of the A. D. 1513. Swifs, and the Quarters and Payments provided for the Spaniards, heartily wished to return under his Dominion, having found by Experience the Government of the French eafy and defirable in comparifon of the fevere and oppreffive Administration of others. Befides, many private Noblemen, by particular Meffages, directed fome to the King, others to Trivulzio, whom the King had fent to Lions, that he might be nearer at hand to treat with the Milanefe, encouraged his Ma-King of France injefty not to delay the March of his Army, vited to promifing, as foon as it had paffed the recover Milan. Mountains, to take up Arms, and openly declare for him. To these Motives were added the conftant and preffing Sollicitations of Trivulzio and of the other Exiles, who, as is ufual with those who are forced to leave their native Country, reprefented the Undertaking as very eafy, especially as the Venetians were to affift in it. The King was also constrained to hasten his Enterprife by flattering himfelf that he should be able to attain his Ends before he was attacked by the King of England, who

126

A. D. who could not be in Readinefs till after fome Months. For the Kingdom of England, having been for many Years in a State of Peace, was unprovided of Armour, Artillery, and almost of every Thing elfe neceffary for a War; there were no War-Horfes, becaufe the English fight all their Battles on Foot, and their Infantry too being unexperienced, it was neceffary for the King, who defigned to pass into France with a very powerful Force, to hire a great Number of German Foot; all which Provisions could not be made under fome Length of Time. What further urged the King to make the utmost Expedition was his Fear of losing the Caftles for Want of Provisions, and particularly the Lantern of Genoa, into which he had a few Days before unfuccefsfully attempted to put a Supply of Provisions by a Ship fent for that Purpofe: This Vefiel failed out of the Port of Albenga, whither the had been convoyed by three Ships and a Galeon, with a profperous Gale, by favour of which the paffed through the Midst of the Genoefe Fleet, and caft Anchor under the Caftle,

to

THE WARS IN ITALY. 127 to which the faftened herfelf by a Cable, A. D. and began to unload her Provifions. But Andrea Doria, who was afterwards fo famous and fuccefsful a Commander at Sea, very dangeroufly thruft in with a large Veffel, of which he was Mafter, between the Lantern and the French Ship, and cutting the Cable that faftened her to Brave the Caftle, with the Cables of her An-Action of Andrea chors, attacked her with great Refolution, Doria. and tho' in the Engagement he received a Wound in the Face, he yet took her.

THE King therefore refolving to begin the War without Delay, for which Purpofe, that he might be ready on all Occafions, he had before fent a great Number of Lances into Burgundy and Dauphine, applied himfelf with all Diligence to perfect the Treaty with the Venetians, which had been many Months under Debate, but had met with Delays and Obftructions as well from one Party as from the other. For the King was held in Suspense fometimes by his Hopes of a Peace with Cæsar, fometimes by the obstinate Demand that the Venetians made of Cremona and the Ghia-

128

A. D. Ghiaradadda. And in the Venetian Senate 1513. were different Opinions; for many of great Authority in the Republic propofed anAgreement with Cæfar, reprefenting that it was more for their Interest to ease themfelves at prefent from fo vaft an Expence, and to free themfelves from Danger, that they might be enabled the more readily to embrace fuch Opportunities as should offer themfelves, than, at a Juncture when the Republic was exhausted, and the Substance of private Perfons much impaired, to involve themfelves in new Wars in conjunction with the King of France, who had fo lately flown them how much Faith and Security they were to repofe in his Friendship. The major Part however being of Opinion that fo fair an Opportunity would very rarely offer for recovering their antient State, and that an Agreement with Cæsar while he retained Verona would not free them from Troubles and Dangers, it was refolved to enter into a Confederacy with the King of France, without infifting on Cremona and the Ghiaradadda; and the fame was concluded in the King's Court by Andrea Gritti, who had had lately appeared more like an Ambaf- A. D. 1513. fador than a Prifoner. By this Treaty Bartolomeo Alviano and Andrea Gritti ob-League tained their Liberty, the Venetians were between the King bound to affift the King of France with of France Eight Hundred Men at Arms, Fifteen and the Venetiant, Hundred light Horfe, and Ten Thoufand Foot against all who should oppose his Recovery of Afti, Genoa, and the Dutchy of Milan; and the King was obliged to affift the Venetians till they had intirely recovered all that they poffeffed in Lombardy and in the Marquifate of Trevigi before the League of Cambray. As foon as the Confederacy was stipulated Gianjacopo da Trivulzi and Bartolomeo Alviano fet out for Sula ; Alviano that he might proceed from thence by a fafer Way to Venice, and Trivulzi to affemble there the Army defigned for the War, which confifted of Fifteen Hundred Lances, Eight Hundred light Horfe, and Fifteen Thousand Foot, Eight Thousand of whom were Germans, and the reft French, all under the Command of M. de la Tremouille, whom the King, to give the more Reputation to the Proceedings, appointed his Lieutenant. Vol. VI. T LEWIS

THE WARSIN ITALY. 129

130 A. D.

1513. LEWIS at this Juncture very earnesly intreated the Pope not to obstruct the Re-Ţ covery of his Dutchy, offering him not only to ftop any farther Proceedings after that Conquest, but always to make Peace at the Difcretion of his Holinefs. The Pope lent a gracious Ear to these Affurances. and, to gain the greater Credit to his Words, treated with the King by the Ministry and Mediation of his Brother Pope ful. Giuliano. The King, however, fulpected pefied by him on many Accounts; as, the Memory Lewis. of Things preceding his Pontificate; his difpatching to him, immediately upon his Affumption, Cintio his familiar Friend with a Letter expreffing much Civility, but in fuch general Terms as manifested that he was not well affected in his Heart towards him; befides, he had given Confent that Prospero Colonna should be constituted by the Duke of Milan his Captain General, which Julius, out of Hatred to the Colonna's, had always opposed. But what gave much more Umbrage to his Majefty was the Pope's intimating to the King of England that he was willing to adhere to the 01

THE WARS IN ITALY. 121 the Confederacy contracted with Cæfar, the Catholic King, and himfelf; and his Letter to the Community of the Swifs, in which he feemed to exhort them to the Defence of Italy, and and did not diffemble that he was willing to continue the Confederacy made with them by Julius, in which they undertook, for the yearly Penfion of Twenty Thousand Ducats, the Protection of the Ecclefiastic State. Leo alfo fufficiently betrayed his Inclination by not receiving the Duke of Ferrara into Favour, and delaying, under various Pretences, the Restitution of Reggio till the Return of his Brother the Cardinal to Rome, who, to avoid the Perfecutions of Julius, and the Instances of the King of France for his repairing to the Pifan Council, was retired to his Bishopric of Agria in Hungary. But what gave the King most Reason to suspect the Pontiff was that he had, though as fecretly as it was possible, advised the Venetian Senate to agree with Cæfar; which was an Attempt in direct Opposition to the Defigns of the King, who had alfo taken it ill that the Pope, pretending no other Motive than the Duty of his pontifical Chie T 2 Office.

132

A. D. Office, had written to him a Brief ex-^{1513.} horting him to ceafe his warlike Preparations, and to fhew himfelf difpofed rather to put an End to the War by fome honourable Composition: A pious Pretence, which in itfelf the King would not have blamed, if his Holiness, moved by the fame Defire of Peace, had exhorted the King of England to forbear molesting France.

Caufes of THE King of France indeed had good the Pope's Reason to be jealous of the Pope, for Leo fection to defired nothing more than that the French the French fhould have no longer any Footing in Italy, either becaufe he thought it moft conducive to the common Security, and to the Grandeur of the Church, or becaufe he retained the Memory of the Injuries received from the Crown of France. For though his Father and his other Anceftors had been firmly attached to the French Intereft, and had on feveral Occafions reaped both Honour and Profit from their Adherence, yet he was moft affected with what had more lately happened when he and his Brothers were driven out of Florence by the

T . 1778. 15 318

THE WARS IN ITALY. 1330 the Coming of King Charles; and this A. D. present King was known to favour the 1513. popular Government, and had always despised the Medici, or if at any Time he feemed inclined to espouse their Cause, it. was only with a Defign to employ them as Tools for drawing the Florentines by that Sufpicion into Conventions for his own Advantage, and then caft them quite out of Remembrance. His Refentment might perhaps too be aggravated by reflecting that after the Battle of Ravenna he himfelf had been carried Prifoner to Milan, and had been ordered by the King to be con-, ducted to France.

But though the Pope, either for the abovementioned or for fome other Reafons, was thus difaffected towards the French, yet, fince he faw no ftrong Foundations, as he could have wifhed, for Refiftance, he was obliged to proceed with Caution, and to diffemble, as much as he could, his Intentions, yet always gladly hearkening to any Suits or Inflances made to him against the King. The Swifs, who were very ready to put themfelves in Motion for I 3 defending

134

A. D. defending the Dutchy of Milan, offered 1513. to take the Field with a much greater Swissoffer Number of Men, if they were supplied to defend with but a moderate Sum of Money, which, Milan. through the Inability of the other Allies, could be expected only from the Pope. But the Defigns of the Viceroy were uncertain, and his Speeches various and myfterious: For fometimes he offered the Pontiff to oppose the French, and openly to interest himself in the Cause by fending his Troops to join with his own, and maintaining a good Number of Foot for three Months; and to make himfelf the more eafily believed he had recalled his Soldiers from the Territories of Parma and Reggio, and was encamped with his Army on the River Trebbia; but fome of his Troops, which remained in Garrifon at Tortona and Aleffandria, he had never moved from their Quarters: Sometimes he affirmed that he had received Orders from his King, at the fame time that he fignified to him that he had made a Truce, to lead back the Army into the Kingdom of Naples.

> BUT Gieronimo Vich, the Aragonian Ambaffador to the Pope, talked in a different

THE WARS IN ITALY. 135 ferent Strain, in which he affured him A. D. 1513. that the King his Mafter promifed, if his Holinefs would undertake the Defence of Milan, to have no Regard to the Truce he had made, but begin a War in France, which he might lawfully do without Breach of Faith. By this Conduct many were perfuaded that the King of Aragon, Politic being apprehenfive that there would be Conduct none to oppose the Progress of the French King of on account of the Truce, had ordered the Aragon. Viceroy that if he fhould find no hearty Concurrence of the Allies in the Defence of the Dutchy of Milan, he should not labour to provoke the King of France by new Injuries, but march off with the Army for Naples. And for these Reasons Ferdinando was inclined to a Peace with France, and offered to bring into it Cafar and the King of England; and to render Lewis the more eafy and tractable, in cafe he fhould recover Milan, he did in a manner affure him that his Army fhould not oppose his Enter-Fans. 11 - 31-2. prife. in the states and an 1.22

THE Vicercy therefore intending to depart recalled the Soldiers who were in I 4 Garrifon

136

A. D. Garrifon at Tortona and Aleffandria under 1513. the Marquis of Pescara, fignifying, as it was reported, at the fame Time his Refolution to Trivulzio, with an Intention that the King of France should regard his Departure as if it were made upon his Account. He did not however immediately put his Defign in Execution, becaufe the Swifs, being most ardently intent on the Defence of the Dutchy of Milan, had by a public Decree fent thither Five Thoufand Foot, and given Hopes of fending a much greater Number; but, rather pretending the contrary, fent Prospero Colonna to treat with the Swifs about appointing a Place for joining their Forces against the French. It was thought he proceeded in this Manner, either because he had been informed that Cæsar was greatly difpleafed with the Truce, or that he had received new Orders from his King to obey the Commands of the Pontiff, who, between the Struggles of his fmall Hopes on one Side, and his own Inclinations on the other, remained in the fame Perplexity. The Swifs, however, were arrived in the Tortonefe, where, as Prospero gave

THE WARS IN ITALY. 137 gave them Notice, the Viceroy defigned A. D. 1513to join them; but now that General excufed himfelf on various Pretences, and requested that they would come and join him on the Trebbia. By this Demand they plainly perceived the Difference between his Speeches and Intentions, and fiercely answered, that he did not make fierce anthis Request in order to go boldly and the Swife face the Enemy, but that he might turn to the Viceroy. his Back with the greater Security; that it was of no Importance to the Swifs, if he was afraid to fight the French; that it was all one to them whether he went, staid, or ran away, for they were fufficient of themfelves to defend the Dutchy of Milan against all Invaders.

BUT now the whole Country was in a Tumult; the Count of Musocco, Son of Gianjacopo, had taken Possessin of Asti and Alessandria without Opposition; the French were in full March from Susa; and the Duke of Milan coming too late to secure Alessandria had joined the Swiss near Tortona, who receiving express Notice from the Viceroy that he had resolved

to

A. D. to depart, they marched from thence to ¹⁵¹³. Novara. The Milanefe, on the Report that the Viceroy was departed, fent Ambaffadors to Novara, to excufe themfelves to the Duke for that, having none to de-Milan fur. fend them, they had, to avoid utter Derenders to ftruction, agreed with the French. The the French Duke feemed to accept their Excufes very favourably, and even commended them for affectionately confulting the Safety of their common Country. On this Occasion Sacromoro Vifconti, who commanded at the Siege of the Castle, revolted to the French, and supplied that Fortrefs with Provisions.

I. L. L.

138

THE Viceroy then decampted from the Trebbia with all his Army, in which were Fourteen Hundred Men at Arms, and Eight Thousand Foot, to return into the Kingdom of Naples, as if he despaired of the Affairs of Lombardy, and was therefore only follicitous to fave his Army. But on the same Day, while he was on his March between Piacenza and Firenzuola, receiving Letters from Rome, he immediately turned about and marched back

THE WARS IN ITALY. 139 back to his Camp. So fudden an Altera- A. D. tion happened because the Pope, who 1513. about this Time had Parma and Piacenza reftored to him, having refolved to try whether the Dutchy of Milan could be preferved by Means of the Swifs, had very privately delivered to Girolamo Mo-Pope rone, the Duke's Ambassador at Rome, fends Mo-ney to the Forty-two Thousand Ducats to be fent to Swifi. the Swifs; but with this Pretence, if it should come to the Knowledge of the others, that Twenty Thousand Ducats were on the Account of Penfions, and the other Twenty-two Thoufand in Satisfaction for what the three Cantons pretended to be due from his Predeceffor, who had always refused to pay them.

By the Return of the Viceroy on the Trebbia, and the Report of the March of more Swifs, the Milanefe, repenting their hafty Refolution, put Maffimiliano Sforza in Hopes that they would return under his Dominion whenever the Swifs and the Spanifh Army should join together in the Field. The Viceroy, who was attended by Prospero Colonna, to encourage these

140

Alviano Captain

of the

A. D. these Hopes, laid a Bridge over the Po, 1513. promifing continually to pafs without putting it in Execution, because, as he prin-Motions cipally confulted the Safety of his Army, of the Armies. he refolved to proceed according to the Succefs of Affairs; it appearing to him very dangerous to have in his Front the French, and at his Rear the Venetians, who having already taken Poffeffion of the City of Cremona, and thrown a Bridge over the Po at Cava, were in his Neighbourhood.

BARTOLOMEO D'ALVIANO was gone from Sufa by a long Way about to Venice, where having in their Councils without Contradiction thrown all the Blame of the Overthrow of the Ghiaradadda on the Count of Pitigliano, and talked in a magnific Strain of the prefent War, he was constituted by the Senate Captain General with the fame Powers that were General conferred on Count Pitigliano when he Venetians. was promoted to that high Poft, and, as it happened, (through the frequent Sports of Fortune with the Ignorance of Mortals!) on the fame Day that four Years before he

THE WARS IN ITALY. 141 A. D. he fell into the Hands of his Enemies. 1513. He immediately fet out for the Army, which was affembled at San Bonifacio in the Veronese, being accompanied by Teodoro da Trivulzi, as Lieutenant of the King of France, and with the greatest Speed imaginable, on the fame Day that the French Army moved from Sula, approached the Gates of Verona, into which City fome had confpired to receive him. But the next Day there entered into that Town by the River Adice Five Hundred German Foot, and the Plot alfo being difcovered, Alviano lofing all Hopes of getting Poffeffion of the Place; refolved, contrary to the Authority of the Venetian Proveditor, to march towards the Po, to prevent the Spaniards from paffing it, or, if Occasion should require, to join with the French *. He did not fignify this Refolution to the Senate till after he was got one Day's March from Verona, becaufe, tho' he alledged that the final Event of the War intirely depended on the Succefs

* Alviano was willing to take his own Way to ingratiate himfelf with the French, contrary to the Authority of those who had more Care of the Republic than of the French Concerns. Mocenigo.

142

A. D. cefs of the Efforts in the Dutchy of Mi-1513. lan, and that if the French were unprofperous in that Country, whatever Attempts or Acquisitions were made in any other Parts would be fruitless and not durable, and that the Victory of the French in that State was therefore by all poffible Means to be promoted, he was vet apprehensive, and not without Reafon, that the Senate would contradict this Measure, not so much out of a Desire that he should first attend to the Recovery of Verona and Brescia, as because some of their other Commanders had condemned the Paffage of the River Mincio, before they had received a particular Account of the Progress of the French, and represented how difficult it must be, if any Difaster should happen, to retire with Safety through the Veronefe and the Mantouan, Countries either fubject or devoted to Cafar. lor. Minch odr bo

He takes ALVIANO by his Menaces fo intimi-Valeggio, Pefchiera, dated the Garrifons of Valeggio and of the Gr. Town of Pefchiera, that they furrendered; whence the Governor of the Caftle of

THE WARS IN ITALY. 143 of Pefchiera despairing of Defence gave A. D. up that Fortress on the Payment of a very 1513. fmall Sum of Money to himfelf, and for fome German Foot that were in Garrifon. About the fame Time fome of the principal Inhabitants of the Mountain, with a Multitude of Peafants, entered Brescia in favour of the Venetians; and yet Alviano, tho' earnestly entreated by the Brescian Ambassadors, who found him at Gambera, and preffed by the Venetian Proveditor, would not confent to turn his March to Brefcia, tho' it were only to tarry there for a Day, in order to recover the Caftle, which was garrifoned in the Name of the Viceroy; fo great was his Ardor to profecute without Intermiffion his first Resolution! With the utmost Expedition he came before the Gates of Cremona, and finding that Galeazzo Pallavicino, at the Invitation of fome Cremonefe, was at the fame time entering the Place in favour of the King of France, he refolved to have no Sharers in the Glory of recovering that City, but fell upon his Troops and plundered them, and then entering the Town routed and made Booty

144

A. D. Booty of Three Hundred Horfe and Five Hundred Foot of the Duke of Milan, who lay in Garrifon under the Command of Celare Fieramusca. He had no Occafion to lofe Time in the Recovery of the Caftle, for that had always held out for the King of France, and had a little before been fupplied with Provisions by Renzo da Ceri, who in his Return to Crema, of which he was Governor, had met at Serezana and routed Two Hundred Horfe of Alefandro Sforza. Alviano after this posted himself at Cava on the Po, where he had a Bridge laid in readinefs to pafs, and did not prohibit his Soldiers from fometimes marauding on the Pope's Territories. From thence he proceeded to Pizzichitone, the Revolution of Cremona having given Occasion to Soncino, Lodi, and other circumjacent Towns to hang out French Colours. But first, as foon as he had recovered Cremona, he had ordered Renzo da Ceri to Brescia with Part of the Troops, to provide for the Establishment of that City, and for the Recovery of the Caftle, but much more to check the profperous Success of the Germans. For as

THE WARS IN ITALY. 145

as foon as Alviano was decamped from A. D. 1513. before Verona, Roccandolf, who commanded the German Foot, accompanied Success of by Federigo Gonzaga da Bozzolo, marched the Gerout of Verona, with Six Hundred Horfe man Garand Two Thousand Foot, for San Boni-Verona. facio, where Alviano had left Three Hundred light Horfe and Six Hundred Foot under the Command of Sigifmondo Caballo and Giovanni Forte. These Troops being under no military Discipline, but difperfed about the Country, as foon as they perceived the Coming of the Enemy fled to Cologna, whither they were followed by the Germans, who forced an Entrance into the Town, and made them all Prifoners, after which they plundered and burnt the Place. They afterwards treated Soave in the fame Manner, broke the Bridge which the Venetians had laid over the Adice, and would in the fame Career of Succefs have feized on Vicenza, if a vaft Number of Peafants had not fpeedily entered the Place. This Progress of the Enemy gave the more Concern, as it was reported that a Reinforcement of Foot VOL. VI. K was 146 THE HISTORY OF A. D. was marching from the Country of Tirol 1513. to Verona.

French recover Genoa.

IN the mean time the French Fleet, confifting of Nine light Galleys and other Veffels, approached Genoa by Sea; while Antoniotto and Gieronimo, Brothers of the Family of the Adorni, by the Favour of those of the Rivieras who were of their Faction, and with other Soldiers hired by the King, marched against it by Land. They had a very fair Opportunity given them by the Breach which had happened a little before between the Fielchi and the Doge of Genoa, with whom they were before united against the Adorni. For Gieronimo, Son of Gianluigi dal Fiesco, coming out of the public Palace, either on fome accidental Quarrel arifing, or fome preconceived Jealoufy, was murdered by Lodovico and Fregofino, Brothers of the Doge. On this barbarous Fact Ottobuono and Sinibaldo, Brothers of the Affaffinated, retiring to their Caftles, foon after entered into an Agreement' with the King of France, and into a Confpiracy with the Adorni, and approached Genoa on another Quarter with

THE WARS IN ITALY. 147 with Four Thousand Men. The Doge A. D. 1513. was not fufficient of himfelf to refift the Partifans of the Fiefchi and Adorni in conjunction, and the Expeditioufnefs of his Adverfaries prevented the Succours which he had requested of the Viceroy from coming in Seafon, and, to render his Affairs quite desperate, One Thousand of his Foot posted on the neighbouring Mountains were over-powered by the Enemy and defeated. The Doge therefore, together with Fregofino, having hardly had Time to fave his own Life, fled by Sea, leaving his other Brother Lodovico to guard the Castelletto, and the Conquerors entered Genoa, where the Brothers of the Fielchi, transported with the Fury of Revenge, maffacred Zaccheria, another Brother of the Doge, who was taken Prifoner in the Fight on the Mountains, and was an Acceffary to the Murder of their Brother, and barbaroufly tying the dead Body to the Tail of a Horse dragged it through the whole City. Thus was Genoa reduced to the Obedience of the King of France, who appointed Antoniotto Adorno to govern the K 2 Place

A. D. Place under his Authority, and the French ^{1513.} Fleet, after putting a Supply of Men and Provisions into the Lantern, and then plundering Specie, came to an Anchor in Porto Vencre.

148

THE French had now intirely recovered what they had loft the Year before, except Novara and Como, which two Cities only in the whole Dutchy of Milan still remained in the Poffession of Massimiliano Sforza. But the Glory of this War, to the great Shame of all the Reft, was deftinated, not to the French, not to the German Foot, not to the Spanish Arms, not to the Venetians, but wholly to the Swifs, against whom the French Army, leaving in Aleffandria a Garrison sufficient to fecure the Country on that Side the Po, now advanced, and approached them at Novara. They were become fierce and in high Spirits from fuch a Train of Succefs, from the Confession of the Enemies, who had fhut themfelves up within Walls, and from the manifest Fears of the Spaniards. Befides this, the prefent Face of Affairs feemed in a manner to reprefent

to

THE WARS IN ITALY. 149 A. D. to the Memory of Men the Image and 1513. Refemblance of Times paft. For this was the fame Novara in which Lodovico Sforza, the Father of the prefent Duke, had been made Prisoner; the fame Generals, ka Tremouille and Gianjacopo da Trivulzi, were in the French Camp; and fome of the fame Colours, and of the fame Officers of those Cantons which had at that Time fold the Father, were now in the Service of the Son. Hence Tremouille had proudly written to the King that he would make Boaft of him a Prefent of the Son for his Prifoner, Tremoufrom the fame Place whence he prefented ille. him with the Father.

THE French battered the Walls of Novara with great Fury, but in a Place whence it would be very difficult and dangerous to defcend into the City; and the Swifs feemed fo little afraid of them, that they never fuffered the Gate of the City toward their Camp to be fhut*. A fuffi-K 3 cient · The Swils Commander would never fuffer any Bank to be caft up, or any Trench or Ditch to be dug, repofing all his Defence in his Arms, and Robultnefs and Vigour of Body; and fent a Trumpet to acquaint the French that the Gates of Novara were left open, and to advife them not to wafte their Powder Giaria.

150

cient Breach being made in the Walls, the A. D. 1513. Befiegers gave a very fierce Affault, but were repulfed with incredible Valour, and obliged to retire to their Quarters; where being informed that a Reinforcement of Swils had the fame Day entered Novara, and that Altofallo, a General of great Reputation, was expected with a much greater Number, they defpaired of Succefs, and retired the next Day two Miles from Novara, in Hopes of obtaining their Ends more by temporifing, and taking Advantage of the Diforders and Diftrefs of the Enemy for Want of Money, than by Force of Arms. But their Hopes were all frustrated by the Fierceness and highfpirited Courage of Mottino, one of the Swifs General Officers, who called an Affembly of the Multitude in the Square of Novara, and encouraged them with the warmest Expressions not to wait the Affistance of Altofasso, whose Arrival was expected the next Day, but to march out and attack the Enemy in their Quarters, and not fuffer the Glory and the Victory, which they might fecure to themfelves, to be fhared in common, or rather to become wholly

THE WARSIN ITALY. 151 wholly transferred to others. For as A. D. Things confequent attract to themfelves Things preceding, and the Increase covers and eclipses the Part increased, fo all the Praise and Honour would be ascribed not tothem but to the new Comers.

"THE more difficult and dangerous Speech of the Attempt, fays Mottino, may poffibly Swill Geappear, fo much the more eafy and fafe it neral to will prove in the Execution ; for Accidents trymen. ftrike Men with the greater Terror in proportion as they are unforefeen and unexpected. The French at prefent have not the least Thought of being attacked by us ; as they have removed the Camp but this Day, they must have taken up their Quarters in a diforderly Manner, and without any Fortification. French Armies are not ufually very eager to fight, unless fupported by our Foot. And if they have for fome Years past ventured to fight without us, yet they have never fought against us. What Amazement, what Terror will feize them, when they shall fee themselves fuddenly and furioufly attacked by those whose Valour and Ferocity used to be their Confidence K 4

152

A. D. fidence and Security! Let not their Ca-1513. valry, or their Artillery give you much Concern, for we have on another. Occafion experienced how much they rely on these Preparations when they have to deal-Did not Gaston de Foix, so bold with us. a General, with fuch a Number of Lances, and fo formidable a Train of Artillery, always retire before us on the Plains, when without Cavalry, or any other Arms than Pikes, we defcended two Years ago to the very Gates of Milan? They have now in their Army German Foot; and this is what moves my Refentment, and makes me eager to embrace the Opportunity which this very Juncture offers us to convince the Man that he never took a worfe Refolution, either for himfelf or for his Kingdom, than when he was prompted by bafe and unreafonable Avarice and Ingratitude to defpife and fet fo low a Price on our Labours and our Blood; and alfo to demonstrate to those who imagined their Service of fufficient Merit to deprive us of our Bread, that the Lanskenets are no Match for the Swifs; and that though they have the fame Language, and the fame Discipline,

THE WARS IN ITALY. 153 Discipline, yet they have not the fame A. D. 1513. Valour and Fiercenefs. The only Difficulty will be to feize the Artillery; but this will be alleviated by its not being planted within a fortified Place, by attacking it unexpectedly, by the Darknefs of the Night, by the Fury of the Affault, and by the very fmall Space of Time which it will have to annoy us, and that too interrupted by the Tumult, Diforder, and fudden Confusion. The other Business of the Field will be difpatched with the greateft Eafe; the Horfe will not venture to come and run themfelves upon our Pikes, much lefs will the defpicable Rabble of French and Galcon Foot dare to come to clofe Engagement with us. In this Refolution our Prudence will be no lefs confpicuous than our Valour. Our Nation is arrived to fuch a Pitch of Renown, that the Glory of our Name can no longer be fupported but by attempting fomething beyond Expectation and the ordinary Reach of Men. And fince we are now -about Novara, the Place itfelf admonifhes us that we have no other Means to wipe off that antient Reproach which we incurred in

154

A. D. in the Service of Lodovico Sforza at this ^{1513.} fame Novara. Let us go on then boldly with the Help of God Almighty, who is the Punisher of Schismatics, Excommunicated, and Enemies to his Name; let us go to a Victory, if we behave like Men, secure and easy; a Victory, in which the greater the Danger it shall appear to carry with it, the greater and more glorious will be the Name of the Swiss, and the more we are exceeded by the Enemy in Number, the more shall we enrich ourfelves by their Spoils."

> A T this Speech of Mottino all the Troops gave a fierce Shout, and every one ftretched forth his Arm in token of Approbation of what he had faid*. The General, after promifing them a certain Victory, ordered them to go to their Repofe, and take care of themfelves, that they might be in Readinefs at Beat of Drum to repair to their Colours. The Nation of the Swifs

> * The Learned observe, that in military Assemblies lifting up the Hands, and stretching out the Arm are Signs of Approbation and Consent. So we often read in Xenophon that the Soldiers were ordered, if they approved sf what was proposed to them, to lift up their Hands.

THE WARS IN ITALY. 155 never took a prouder or bolder Refolution, A. D. Few against Many, without Cavalry or 1513. Artillery against an Army very strong in Bold Refolution of both, and not induced by any Necefsity, the Sewift. for Novara was freed from Danger, and they expected the next Day a confiderable Reinforcement. They voluntarily chose to try a Measure attended with less Security but greater Hopes of Glory, before another which would be more fecure but less glorious in the Event.

On the Sixth Day of June, then, after Midnight, the Swifs in a very boifterous Manner marched out of Novara, in Num-Battle of ber about Ten Thoufand, and difpofed in Novara. fuch Order that Seven Thousand were to attack the Artillery, about which were the Quarters of the German Infantry, and the reft to post themselves with their Pikes upright, opposite to the Men at Arms. " The French had not fortified their Camp on account of the Shortness of Time, and because they had no Apprehensions of fo quick and fudden a Visit. At the first Alarm therefore given by the Centinels of the Approach of the Enemy, the Suddennefs

A. D. dennefs of the Accident, with the Darknefs of the Night, concurred to increase the Confusion and Terror. The Men at Arms, however, foon affembled and formed themselves into Squadrons, and the German Foot, followed by the reft of the Infantry, quickly got into Rank, and prefented themselves in Order of Battle. The Artillery was now difcharged with a horrible Noife against the Swifs that went to attack it, making a terrible Slaughter among them, which might be perceived by the Cries and Roarings of the Men more than by the Benefit of Sight, the Use of which was as yet prevented by the Night. The Swifs however with incredible Refolution, not regarding prefent Death, nor terrified at the Fate of those who fell by their Side, marched with all poffible Speed against the Artillery, where being arrived, they entered into a most furious Engagement with the German Infantry, both Parties combating with the greatest Rage, which was still inflamed with Hatred and a Defire of Glory. You might have feen, as now the Sun began to appear, now one Side giving giving Way, now the other, oftentimes A. D. 1513. that Party to get the Advantage which at first feemed to be worsted; on the fame Side, and at the fame Time, fome giving Way, others advancing forwards, fome refifting with Difficulty, others violently prefling upon and infulting the Enemy, while every Place was full of Dead, Wounded, and Blood. The Officers fometimes most valiantly discharged the Office of common Soldiers, striking the Enemy, and defending themfelves and their Men; fometimes they most prudently performed the Duties of their Station, encouraging, providing, fuccouring, difpofing, and commanding. On another Part the Men at Arms flood quietly in their Armour without ftriking a Stroke, for their Fears operated fo ftrongly upon them, that all the Authority, Encouragements, Commands, Intreaties, Exclamations and Threatenings of Tremouille and Trivulzi could not infpire them with Boldnefs fufficient to charge the Enemy, whom they had in their Front; and the . Swifs thought they did enough in keeping them confined, and preventing them from

THE WARS IN ITALY. 157

158

A. D. from fuccouring their Infantry. At laft 1513. in fo fierce a Conflict, and fo great Valour shown on both Sides, Victory de-French defeated. clared for the Swifs, who with irrefiftible Force made themfelves Mafters of the Artillery, and turned it against their Enemies, who by that Means and by their Valour were put to Flight. With the Foot fled alfo the Men at Arms, in whom appeared no military Virtue, nor any thing that deferved Praife; only Ruberto della Marcia, prompted by paternal Affection, entered with a Squadron among the Swifs, to fave his two Sons Floranges and Denefio, Captains of German Foot, who, lay, on the Ground covered with Wounds, and fought with fuch Ardor and Fiercenefs, that, to the great Amazement of the Swifs themfelves, he brought them both alive out of fo great a Danger. The Battle lasted two Hours with very confiderable Lofs on both Sides; of the Swifs were killed about Fifteen Hundred, among whom was Mottino, the Author of fo glorious a Refolution, who while he was fighting received a Thrust with a Pike in the Throat. The Lofs of their Enemies

THE WARSIN ITALY. 159 Enemies was much greater, fome make A. D. it Ten Thousand, but the greater Part of 1513. the Germans were killed in fighting, whereas most of the French and Gascon Foot perifhed in their Flight. The Cavalry escaped almost intire, and were in no Danger of Pursuit from the Swifs, who if they had been provided with Horfes might have eafily difperfed them, fo great was the Terror in which they fled out of the Field. The victorious Army remained Masters of all the Carriages with Twenty-two Pieces of heavy Cannon, and all the Horfes that belonged to the Train of Artillery. The Swifs returned in a triumphant Manner the fame Day to Novara, with fuch universal Honour and Renown, that many who confidered the Magnanimity of the Refolution, the most manifest Contempt of Death, the Fierceness of the Fight, and the Felicity of the Success, did not fcruple to prefer this Action to almost all the memorable Facts that are recorded of the antient: Romans and Greeks. The French fled into Piedmont, from whence, Trivulzio in vain exclaiming against it, they im-

160 THE HISTORY OF A. D. immediately paffed beyond the Mouri-1513. tains, and beyond the Mouri-

ochester in up br -/ 1

AFTER the Victory Milan and the other Towns that had adhered to the French, fent to demand Pardon, which was granted on condition of paying a certain Sum of Money, the Milanefe in particular Twenty Thousand Ducats, and the reft according to their Abilities; all which was paid away to the Swifs, who ought in Justice to reap the Profit as well as the Glory of a Victory obtained by their Valour, and with their Blood. In order to collect as much Money as could be had, the Swifs after this entered the Marquifate of Monferrato, and Piedmont, which were accused of entertaining the French, Army, and partly by Plunder, partly, by Contributions, tho' abstaining from all Acts of Violence to Life and Honour, raifed vaft Sums on the miferable People. Norwwere the Spaniards wholly excluded from the Rewards of the Victory ; for after the Battle Janus and Ottaviano Fregofi, the former of whom had been lately driven out of Genoa, and each

THE WARS IN ITALY. ъбf each aspired to be Doge, having applied A. D. 1513. to the Viceroy, he preferred Ottaviano, for whom also the Pontiff highly interested himfelf on account of their old Friendfhip, and received from him a Promife to pay him Fifty Thousand Ducats as foon as he had entered Genoa. The Viceroy then, after furnishing Ottaviano with Three Thousand Foot under the Marquis of Pescara, moved with the rest of the Army to Chiefleggio, flewing himfelf ready to proceed further if Occasion required. But as foon as the Marquis with Ottaviano approached Genoa, the Brothers Adorni, confcious of their Inability to refift, left the Place, into which Ottaviano made his Entrance, and was created Doge of that City, which in the fame Year faw itfelf under the Government of the French, Janus Fregofo, the Adorni, and Ottaviano.

BUT Bartolomeo Alviano, as foon as he had received Advice of the Defeat of the French Army, being apprehensive that the Spaniards would immediately march in Pursuit of him, retired in all Haste to Vol. VI. L Ponte

10 112 1 1

A. D. Ponte Vico, leaving for the more Speed ^{1513.} fome Pieces of Cannon that were flow of.

162

Carriage on the Road. From Ponte Vico, leaving Renzo da Ceri in Crema, and abandoning Brescia, because it was of no Service to diminish the Army, in which remained but Six Hundred Men at Arms, One Thousand light Horse, and Five Thousand Foot, he continued his March with the fame Expedition, and under fuch Dread and Difaffection of the Country, that, had he been purfued by any fmall Party, his Troops would have been broken and routed by themfelves, till he arrived at Tomba near the Adice, not having given himfelf Time to reft in any Place, but merely fo long as he was conftrained by Neceflity for the Refreshment of the Men and Horfes. At Tomba he halted, and laying afide all Fear, becaufe he was not purfued, got together as great a Quantity of Provisions as he could draw from the Veronese, and took care to have it conveyed to Padoua and Trevigi. At the fame time he fent Gian Pagolo Baglione with Sixty Men at Arms and Twelve Hundred Foot to Lignago, where he

THE WARS IN ITALY. 163 he was immediately received by the Men A. D. 1513. of the Town, which had no Garrifon, and stormed the Castle, in which were One Hundred and Fifty Spanish and German Foot, after he had first battered it on the Side that looks towards the Square. In the Success of the Assault it is difficult to fay whether Fortune or Valour had the greater Share; for during the Attack a Fire got hold of the Stores, occafioned by fome Inftruments of artificial Fires thrown Lignago taken by by the Besiegers, and burnt Part of the the Vere Castle, in which Confusion the Enemy tians. partly through the Breach and partly by Scaling-Ladders entered the Place, took the Spanish Governor, and killed or took Prisoners all the reft.

LIGNAGO being thus taken Alviano laid a Bridge over the Adice, and being Veranaput in Hopes by fome Veronefe of an In-attempted in vain by furrection against the Germans went and Alviano. encamped at San Giovanni four Miles from Verona, from whence the next Morning he approached the Gate of San Martino, and planting his Cannon play'd with great Fury on the Turret of the Gate, and the L 2 con-

A. D. contiguous Wall, expecting in the mean 1513. Time fome Tumult to arife in the City. The Breach in the Wall, being Forty Braces' wide, and, the Turret, thrown down, which fell in fuch a Manner as to make a very ftrong Fence before the Gate, the Affault was given with great Fury. But in Verona were Three Hundred Horfe, and Three Thousand German Foot under Roccandolph, a General Officer of great Reputation, who made a valiant Defence. The Breach in the Wall being of a good Height from the Ground on the Infide, and the Veronefe making no Movement in Favour of the Venetians, as it was hoped; Alviano feeing it would be difficult to take the Place, called off his Troops from the Wall, and had begun to draw off his Cannon; but changing his Mind in a Moment, on receiving, as it was fuppofed, fome Meffage from the Inhabitants, he made his Soldiers return to the Wall, and gave, a fresh Affault more vigorous than the first, but met with the fame Difficulties as before, and the fame Remissers in those who had recalled him. Caffing off therefore all Hopes

164

THE WARSIN ITALY. 165 Hopes of Success, with the Loss of above A. Two Hundred of his Men, among whom was Tommafo Fabbro of Ravenna, Captain of Foot, he drew off his Artillery from the Walls with wonderful Speed, and returned the fame Day to his Camp from which he had fet out in the Morning, having acquired no Reputation from the Counfel or Event of that Day, but he was highly celebrated through all Italy for his Quicknefs, in doing as much in one Day as other Generals used to do with Difficulty in three or four. After this he laid wafte the Territory of Verona, to try whether the Fear of feeing their Country defolate would constrain the Veronese to come to fome Agreement. ware to bis Care , his change

BUT now the Spanifb Army was advancing forwards; for the Viceroy on Advice of the Lofs of Lignago being apprehensive that Verona; through the Difaffection of the Citizens, would open its Gates to the Venetians, as he was no longer retarded by the Affairs of Genca, which had taken a happy Turn, now refolved to fuccour without Delay the de-L 3 clining 166

THE HISTORY OF

A. D. clining Interests of Cafar. For this End 1513. having paffed the Po' at Stradella, and taken Poffeffion without Difficulty of the Cities of Bergamo and Brescia and the Town of Peschiera by their Surrendry, he laid Siege to the Caftle of this laft Place, in which was a Garrifon of Two Hundred and Fifty Foot, and tho' the Place was generally expected to hold out fome Days, he took it at once with Sword in Hand, making the Venetian Proveditor, with those of the Garrison that remained alive Prifoners. Alviano at the Approach of the Spaniards retired to Albere on the other Side of the Adice, and to increase his Army as much as possible, not only recalled fome Foot that were in the Polefine of Rovigo, but those whom he had left in Lignago. And foon after the German Foot joining the Viceroy at San Martino, and marching after (they had recovered Lignago to Montagnana, the Venetians, who had nothing left in these Parts but Padoua and Trevigi, attended only to the Prefervation of these Cities, and appointed the Army to be distributed between them. In Trevigi they placed

a

THE WARS IN ITALY. 167 a Garrison of Two Hundred Men at Arms, A. D. Three Hundred light Horfe, and Two Thousand Foot under Gian Pagolo Baglione, affisted by Malatesta da Sogliano, and the Chevalier della Volpe. Alviano with the reft of the Army took up his Quarters Alvians in Padoua, where he employed himfelf fortifies Padoua. in fortifying the Place, repairing the Baftions that had been erected, and perfecting many Works that were left unfinished; and that the Enemy might not be able to approach the Place without extreme Danger and Difficulty, and without a vast Number of Pioneers, he demolished all the Houfes, and felled all the Trees within three Miles of Padoua.

WHILE the military Operations pro-Pope Leo ceeded in this Manner, the Pope used his feeks to utmost Care and Diligence for extirpating the Schifm the Division made in the Church by the Pifan Council; and that Affair depending wholly on the Will of the King of France, he be mployed abundance of Arts for fostening the Mind of that Prince, assuring him that the Report of his fending Money to the Swifs was utterly false, protesting L_4 that

768

A. D. that he defired nothing but Peace, and to 1513. be the common Father of all Chriftian Princes, and that he was extremely grieved that his Majefty, by his Diffention from the Church, had deprived him of the Power of demonstrating to him how much he was by Nature inclined to be his Friend, and that he was neceffitated for the Honour of the Apoftolic See, and of his own proper Perfon, to proceed feparately with him till he was returned to the Obedience of the Roman Church. when it would be lawful for him to receive him as a most Christian King, and to embrace him as the eldeft Son of the Church.

THE King was defirous, for his own Sake, of a Union of his Kingdom with the Church, which was earneftly demanded by all the People, and by the King of whole Court, and to which the was France mightily ftimulated by the Queen; he and Prelates follicit a Re- knew alfo that he could never hope to agree with the Pope in temporal Concerns, conciliation with the Roman if the spiritual Differences were not first Church. composed. Trusting therefore, + or pretending tending to trust, to the Pope's Words, he A. deputed the Bishop of Marseilles his Ambaffador to treat with his Holinefs about thefe Affairs. On his Arrival at Rome. the Pontiff caufed, by a Decree of the Council, the French Bishops, and other Prelates, to be reftored to the Power of purging themfelves from Contumacy during the whole Month of November next. The late Pope had proceeded very rigoroufly against these Reverend Dignitaries as Schifmatics by way of Monitory. And the fame Morning in which the Decree was ordered, a Paper was read in the Council, fubscribed by Bernardino Carvagiale and Federigo da San Severino, in which, not ftyling themfelves Cardinals, they approved of all that was done in the Lateran Council, promiting to adhere to that Council, and to obey the Pope, and by confequence conferred that their Deprivation of the Cardinalfhip made by Julius, and confirmed by the faid Council before his Deceafe, was lawful and right. The Reftitution of thefe' Prelates had been under Debate before," but delayed by the Opposition of the Ambassa-1411157 dors

THE WARS IN ITALY. 169

170

M. D. dors of the Emperor, and King of Aragon, and of the Cardinals of Sion and York, who exclaimed against it as an Act unworthy of the Majesty of the Apostolic See, and of very bad Example, to grant Pardon to the Authors of a Crime so pernicious, and full of abominable Impiety, putting the Confistory in Mind of the Constancy of Julius, who retained his just Resentment against them, from no other Motive than the public Good, to his last Moments.

> BUT the Pontiff, inclining to the more merciful Side, judged it eafier utterly to extinguish the Name of the Pifan Council by Clemency than by Rigour, and was not willing to exafperate the King of France; who earneftly interceded for the Delinquents; befides, he was not hindered in his good Intentions by any private Malice; for the Offence was not committed against him, nay, he himfelf and his Brothers had been intimate Acquaintance of Federigo before his Pontificate." For these Reasons, following his own Judgment, he had caufed to be read before the Fathers of the Council a Paper of the deprived Cardinals containing containing their Humiliation, and after- A. D. 1513. wards appointed a Day for their Reftitution, which was transacted in the following Order. Bernardino and Federigo entered Rome privately by Night without ny of rethe Habit and Enfigns of Cardinals, and ftoring the next Morning being appointed to prefent Cardinals. themfelves before the Pope fitting in Confiftory, accompanied by all the Cardinals except Sion and York, who refused to be prefent, they first passed along, clothed like fimple Priefts with black Bonnets on their Heads, through all the public Places of the Palace of the Vatican in which they had lodged the Night before, a vaft Multitude of People flocking to fee them, and every one faying that fo public a Difgrace must needs be a stinging Rebuke to the exceffive Pride of Bernardino, and to the no lefs immoderate Arrogance of Federigo. Being admitted into the Confiftory, falling on their, Knees with Marks of the greatest Humility, they asked Pardon of the Pope and Cardinals, teftifying their Approbation of what had been transacted by Julius, and particularly their own Deprivation, and the Election of a new Pontiff, as done canonically,

THE WARS IN ITALY. 171

A. D. canonically, and condemning the Pifan 1513. Conventicle as schismatic and detestable. When an authentic Copy of this their Confession, figned with their Names, had been entered upon Record, they role on their Feet, did Reverence, and embraced all the Cardinals, who ftirred not from their Seats; after which they were vefted in the Habit of Cardinals, and admitted to fit in the fame Order in which they had fat before their Deprivation. By this Act they recovered only the Dignity of the Cardinalship, but not the Churches and other Revenues which they used to enjoy, for these had been long before disposed of to others as Vacancies. ton tests Gunnan

> In this Transaction the Pope fatisfied, if not wholly yet in a great Meafure, the King of France, but he did not fatisfy him in other Actions, for he was follicitous to procure an Agreement between the Emperor and the Venetians, which from the prefent Circumfances of Affairs feemed not difficult to be accomplished; it being believed that Cæsar, invited by fair Opportunities beyond the Mountains, was inclined clined to ease himself of this Burden, A. D. 1513. that he might the more readily attend to the Recovery of Burgundy for his Grandfon. And there were much more Grounds to hope that Peace was the Defire of the Venetians, who were terrified at the Defeat of the French, and knew that the King of France, on account of the Multiplicity of Dangers that threatened his own Kingdom, had-laid afide all Thoughts of Italy for the prefent Year. They perceived that the Spanish Army was approaching, and that it was to join the Troops which were in Verona; they found themfelves exhaufted of Money, weak in Soldiers, efpecially in Foot, and obliged to ftand the Brunt alone, without the least Glimmerings of approaching Constancy Light to difpel their gloomy Apprehen-of the fions; and yet the Senate very constantly Senate. anfwered to all Propofals, that they would come to no Accommodation without the Restitution of Vicenza and Verona.

THE WARS IN ITALY.

173

THE Emperor now requested of the Pope to supply him with Two Hundred Men at Arms to act against the Venetians, and

t soll

174

and tho' the Demand was very difagreeable A. D. 1513. to the Pontiff, who doubted that by granting it heshould difgust the King of France, and did not comprehend how it could answer any Purpose of Caefar or of himfelf to give Umbrage to the Venetians in a Matter of fo fmall Importance, yet the Emperor obstinately perfisting in his Importunity, he fent him the Number defired under the Command of Troilo Savello, Achille Torello, and Mutio Colonna. Pope affifts Cæ-far against not chufing by a Refusal to shew any Sign the Vene-that he did not intend to continue in the tians. Confederacy contracted by the late Pontiff, and not thinking himfelf reftrained by any Obligation to the Venetians, who, befides fuffering their Troops, when Alviano lay at Cremona, in no very friendly Manner, to go marauding over the Parmefan and Piacentine, had never appointed any Ambaffadors to pay him Obedience, according to antient Cuftom, till the French had been defeated, and had repassed the Mountains.

I the training of the second s

THIS Step of the Pontiff alarmed the Venetians, not so much for the Importance

THE WARS IN ITALY.

175

tance of fuch a Succour as out of an A. D. Apprehension that this was but a Prelude 1513. to much further Proceedings, taking it as a most evident Sign that his Holiness never intended to feparate himfelf from their Enemies. They made no Alteration however in their first Refolutions, but, being rather disposed to brave Fortune as well as they could, fent Orders to their Proveditor of marine Affairs, who lay at Corfu, to affemble as many Ships as he could, and attack the maritime Towns of Puglia. But foon afterwards reflecting on the important Consequence of fo highly provoking the King of Aragon, a powerful Prince, and who had always Prudent appeared to advise Cafar to an Agreement, Reflection they countermanded those Orders, as the of the Venetians. Refult of Animofity rather than of Prudence. The Viceroy lay encamped at Montagnana, undetermined as yet what he was to undertake; for the Germans were in high Expectations, the Enterprifes on Padoua or Trevigi, which only remained on Hand, were difficult, and the Forces were much inferior to the Difficulties; for the whole Army confifted of no more than

A. D. than One Thousand Men at Arms, no 1513. great Number of light Horfe, and Ten Thousand Foot between Spaniards and Number Germans. The Refolution on this Point of the " Viceroy's being at last referred to the Determination Army. of the Bishop of Goritz, who was to be in the Army within a few Days, his Arrival was earneftly expected.

176

Ceri.

Add in

IN the mean time, while the Spanifs Commissary in Bergamo was collecting the Fine of Twenty-five Thousand Ducats, imposed on that City when it furrendered to the Viceroy, Renzo da Ceri fent thither a Party from Crema, which Successful entered by Night with the Assistance of Action of fome of the Town, feized the Com-Renzo da miffary with that Part of the Money > which he had received, and then returned to Cremation that to out 1 203 Thore but Accounty had Reclare 13

PREPARATION'S were also making much about the fame Time for raifing new Disturbances in Genoa, in compliance with the Inclinations of the Duke of Milan and the Swifs, to whom Antoniotto and Gieronimo Adorni had Recourfe; 1. 1 1 11 put-1 5° 1

THE WARS IN ITALY. 177 putting the Duke in Mind of the De- A. D. 1513. pendéncy of their Fathers on his Father Lodovico, who by the Affiftance of the Adorni had recovered, and many Years The Adorenjoyed in Peace the Dominion of Genoa, their Reof which he had been treacheroufly de-foration. prived by the Doges of the Family of the Fregofi: That the Adorni had also a Share in the Misfortunes of the Sforzas, for at the fame Time that Lodovico loft the Dutchy of Milan the Adorni were driven out of Genoa; it feemed reafonable therefore that they fhould in like manner partake of their good Fortune, fince there remained the fame Affection, and the fame Fidelity: That they were not to be charged with the Fault, if, being deftitute of all Hope, and finding none to hearken to them, they had at last, not out of Choice but Neceffity, had Recourfe to that King by whom they had before been expelled : On the other Side he ought not to forget the inveterate Hatred of the Fregoli, and the Multiplicity of injurious and fraudulent Practices with which his Father had been abufed by Battifla and the Cardinal, both of that Family, and VOL. VI. M fuc-

178

A. D. fucceffive Doges of Genoa; he fhould 1513. confider also how it could be proper to put any Confidence in Ottaviano Fregofo, who, befides his inveterate Enmity, had refused to have a Superior in that City. To the Swifs they had proposed the powerful Incentives of Profit, Safety, and Honour; to pay them, if by their Affiftance they should be restored to their Country, the fame Sum of Money that Fregolo had paid to the Spaniards. They represented to them that as the Dutchy of Milan had been preferved by their Valour, fo to them alfo belonged its Protection; they ought to confider therefore how inconfistent it would be with the Security of that State for Genoa, a neighbouring City, and of fuch Importance, to be under the Dominion of a Doge dependent on the King of Aragon; that it would be greatly unworthy of their Name and of their Glory to fuffer Genoa, the Fruits of the Victory of Novara, to fall a Prize to the Covetousness of the Spaniards, who, while the Swifs marched with fo much Refolution to the Mouths of the French Cannon, or, to fpeak more pro-

.

THE WARSIN ITALY.

179

properly, ran to meet Death, fat idle on A.D. the Trebbia, keeping themfelves on the Watch, and prepared, according to the Event of the Battle, either to fly like Cowards, or fraudulently steal away the Fruits of a Victory obtained by the Blood of others. These Representations had such an Effect, that the Duke put his Troops in Motion, and the Swifs were ready to march with Four Thousand Foot; but the Threats of the Viceroy against the Duke, and the Authority of the Pontiff, who had the Interests of Ottaviano very much at Heart, put a Stop to their Proceedings.

In the mean time the Viceroy took his March to Battaglia, a Place feven Miles diftant from Padoua, where Bernardino Carvagiale, inconfiderately advancing with a few Horfe to view the Situation of the Country, was taken by Mercurio, Commander of the Venetian light Horfe. The Bifhop of Goritz being now arrived in the Army, a Council was held on the future Operations, in which Goritz proposed the Siege of Padoua, re-M 2 prefenting prefenting that fo great a Dependence A. D. 1513. might justly be laid on the Valour of the Germans and Spaniards, when exerted Siege of against Italians, that it was to be hoped Padoua debated. they would in the End furmount all Difficulties; that the Conquest of Trevigi would indeed be fomewhat lefs laborious, but the Advantage to be reaped from it was very different, for to become Master of, Trevigi alone, conduced but little to a Decifion of the War, but the Acquisition of Padoua would entirely fecure the Towns fubject to the Emperor from all Infults and Dangers of War, and deprive the Venetians of all Hopes of ever retrieving The Viceroy was of a diftheir Loffes. ferent Opinion, as were almost all the other General Officers, judging it rather impossible than difficult to force Padoua, becaufe of its Fortifications, which were almost incredible; it was also extremely well provided with Artillery and all Things neceffary for its Defence, and had a very numerous Garrifon, among whom were arrived, as at other Times, a good Number of the noble Youth of Venice. The Town itfelf, they faid, was of a very large SI MARY

180

THE WARSIN ITALY.

181

large Compass, and upon that Account, A. D. with the Multitude of Defendants, and 1513. other Difficulties, it required two good Armies to furround and befiege it ; which was to far from being the Cafe at prefent, that they were not able fo much as to form one confiderable Army, the Number of Soldiers not being great, and of thefe, the Germans efpecially, who used to be very uneafy under flow Payments, not being over zealous for the Service; that befides they did not abound with Ammunition, and laboured under a Scarcity of Pioneers, whofe Service was very neceffary for carrying on fo difficult a Siege. 17 . 1 1

But the Reafons alledged by the Viceroy and others were at laft obliged to Second give Way to the Will and Pleafure of the Padoua. Bithop of Goritz, purfuant to which the Army drew nearer to Padoua, and possed itself at Baffanello, on the Right of the Canal, within a Mile and Half of the City. But the Camp in that Place being pretty much annoyed by fome double Cannon planted on a Bastion of the Town, the Troops passed the Canal, and en-M 3 camped

182

A. D. camped at a fomewhat farther Diftance 1513. from the Place, from whence they ordered fome Foot to take Post at the Church of Sant' Antonio within half a Mile of Padoua, and, in order to make their Approaches with lefs Danger, fet themfelves at Work in cafting up Trenches towards the Gate of Sant' Antonio. But the Works were very great, and in a Country whence all the Inhabitants were fled there was an extreme Want of Pioneers : so that the Trenches advanced but flowly, and not without Danger, the Workmen being greatly incommoded Day and Night by frequent and fudden To this was added a Dearth of Sallies. Provisions; for as but a small Part of the Town was furrounded by the Befiegers; the Stradiotti, having free Liberty to fally from the other Parts of the City, ranged over the Country at Difcretion, and intercepted all Convoys defigned for the Camp, which were also prevented by fome armed Boats, which the Venetians had manned for that Purpose on the River Adice; for the Crews were continually ACTORIAL AND MARK landing

THE WARS IN ITALY. 183 landing in one Part or other, and infefted A. D. all the open Country.

Ed fonte r . L 'L

12301 2 74

THE Viceroy befet with these Difficulties; and laying the State of Affairs once more before a Council, every one freely gave his Opinion that it would be lefs difgraceful to correct a Refolution imprudently taken by raifing the Siege, than by perfifting in an Error to give Occasion for greater Lofs, attended with greater Shame and Reproach. This Opinion being reported by the Viceroy, in the Prefence of many of the General Officers, to Goritz, who had refused to be prefent at the Council, he answered that, as the military Art was not his Profession, he was not ashamed to confess his Want of Judgment in Affairs relating to War, and tho' he had advifed the Siege of Padoua he was - not, prompted to it by trufting to himfelf in that Refolution, but by trufting and ofollowing the Authority of the Viceroy, hwhowboth by Lettersy and by private Meffengers had feveral times advised Cafar v to the Undertaking, and given him mighty Hopes of Succefs. At length, as Com-M 4 plaints

 A. D. plaints and Difputes could not remove the 1513. Difficulties which every Moment increased, the Siege was raifed, after the Army had lain eighteen Days before the Walls of Padoua; and the Besiegers, who had been continually harassed in decamping and afterwards in their March by the Siege stradiotti, retired to Vicenza, which was then void of Inhabitants, and a Prey to whoever was Master of the Field.

184

IN the mean time the Troops of the Actions of Duke of Milan, affifted by One Thoufand Parties. Foot fent by the Viceroy under Antonio da Leva, made themfelves Mafters of Ponte Vico, garrifoned by Two Hundred Venetian Foot, who valiantly fuftained the Siege, undaunted at Batteries or Mines, but after a Month were conftrained to furrender for Want of Provisions. About the fame Time Renzo da Ceri marched out of Crema, and routed Silvio Savello, who by Orders from the Duke of Milan, with his own Regiment and Four Hundred Spanifs Foot, was marching to Bergamo. And 'a few Days after on Advice that a Spanifb Commiffary was returned to Bergamo

THE WARS IN ITALY. 185 game in order to collect Money, he de- A. D. tached thither a Party of Three Hundred 1513. Horfe and Five Hundred Foot, who took the Commiffary, together with the Caffle whither he was fled, and the Money that he had gathered, the Place having very few Defendants. In order to recover Bergamo there marched out of Milan Sixty Men at Arms, Three Hundred light Horfe, and Seven Hundred Foot, with - Two Thousand Men of the Mountain of Brianza, under Silvio Savello and Cefare Fieramofca, who in their March meeting with Five Hundred light Horfe, and Three Hundred Foot, ordered by Renzo for Bergamo, eafily put them to Flight, on which the others who were before in. Poffeffion of Bergamo abandoned it, only leaving a Garrifon in the Caftle, called Capella; that stands on a Mountain without the Town

THE Viceroy and the Bishop of Goritz, stayed fome Days at Vicenza, and sent Part of the Spaniards under Prospero Colonna, to pillage Basciano and Maroslico, not for any Fault, but that the Substance of all 2 a - "? but at bas is

186

of these unhappy People might go as far A. D. 1513. as poffible towards the Maintenance of the Army, which wanted their Pay; for Cæsar always laboured under the fame Difficulties, the King of Aragon was not able to fupport, fo great a Burden alone; and the Dutchy of Milan, exceffively burdened by the Swifs, was incapable of contributing towards the Afliftance of The Army was vaftly incomothers. Viceroy in moded in its Quarters at Vicenza by the Vicenza. continual Molestations of the Enemy's light Horfe, who fcoured all the Country Night and Day, and intercepted all Conyoys of Provisions, not attended with a ftrong Guard, in which, becaufe they had but very few light Horfe, they were obliged to employ their Men at Arms. Goritz therefore, I to avoid this Vexation, marched off with the German Foot to Verona, much diffatisfied with the Viceroy, whon following d him by reafy Journeys halted at Alberg on the Adice, where he refted fome Days to give the Veronefe an Opportunity to gather in their Corn and their Vintage, but not able to reftrain the continual Incursions of the light Horse, who' THE WARS IN ITALY. 187 who carried off the Oxen belonging to A.D. the Artillery from the Germans under the very Gates of Verona.

THE Viceroy had intended to distribute the Army into Quarters in the Brefcian and Bergamasco, and at the fame time to diffress Crema, the only Place possesfed by the Venetians beyond the Mincio; and the Report of his Defign being fpread, the Inhabitants of the adjacent Countries thought themfelves fecure, fo that the Padouan was full of People and Goods. On this Confideration the Viceroy, who had no other Means of maintaining his Army than by Plunder, altered his Purpose, and sending for the German Foot Ravages the Ventmarched to Montagnana and Efte, whence tian Terhe proceeded to the Village of Bovolenta, ritory. which, after making a vaft Booty of Cattle, the Soldiers burnt with many ftately Seats in that Neighbourhood. From Bovolenta, allured by a Defire of Plunder, and emboldened by knowing that the Venetian Troops were distributed into Garrifons at Padoua and Trevigi, the Viceroy took a Refolution, tho' contrary to

188

to the Advice of Prospero Colonna, who cen-A. D. fured it as rafn and dangerous, to ap-1513proach Venice. Paffing therefore the River Bacchiglione, he pillaged Pieve di Sacco, a populous and plentiful Borough, after which he proceeded to Mestri, and from thence he arrived at Marghera on the Salt Water, where, to render the Memory of this Expedition the more famous, he difcharged ten Pieces of heavy Artillery towards Venice, the Balls of which reached the Monastery of the Temple of San Se-At the fame time the Troops condo. plundered and laid wafte the whole Country, from whence all the Inhabitants were fled, and very unfairly made War against the Walls; for not being fatisfied with the vaft Booty of Animals and Moveables, they burnt, in a most barbarous Manner, Mestri, Marghera, and Lizzafusina, with all the Towns and Villages in the Country, befides every Houfe of more than ordinary Beauty and Appearance. In these Devaltations the Savageness of the Pope's Soldiers and of the other Italians diftinguished itself as much as that of the Barbarians, and was the more uppardonable in in them, us they unnaturally fpent their A. D. Fury and Malice in defacing the Magnificence, and deftroying the Ornaments of their own Country.*

THE WARS IN ITALY.

1.80

Bur in Venice, when from the Smoke by Day, and the Flames by Night, the Inhabitants difcerned the Burning of their Country Seats and Palaces, and heard in their own Houfes and Habitations the thundering Noife of the Cannon, which was planted on Purpofe to render their Difgrace the more notorious, it was impoffible to express the public Indignation and Grief, every one taking to Heart, and bitterly regretting beyond Measure fo difmal a Change of Fortune, that instead of fo many Victories obtained both in Italy and foreign Parts, by Land as well as Sea, in Times paft, they now faw a little Army, 1n

* Mutio Colonna was first detached with some Squadrons of Horse and a good Body of Germans to Messre, where he took the Town and Castle, putting all the Defendants to the Sword, after which the Viceroy and Colonna advanced thither with the whole Army. Lissafusina, which is the Place where Vessels are halled by Windlasses out of the Brenta into the Adriatic Sea, was plundered by Troilo Savello, who also was the first that passed the Brenta, and made a large Booty of Castle. Geovic.

nd P'lly in the Country

190

A. D. in Comparison of their antient Forces and Power, fo fiercely and in fo outrageous a Manner infult the Name of for glorious a Republic. Provoked by fuch Indignities the Senate, which was hitherto determined not to try the Fortune of a Battle, whatever Hopes of Success might be offered, now changed its Refolution, and confented to the preffing Importunities of Bartolomeo d'Alviano that they would give him Leave to affemble all the Soldiers. raife all the Peafants of the Plains and of the Mountains, and endeavour to intercept the Retreat of the Enemy. This Attempt was represented by Alviano as very eafy, because having rashly advanced fo far beyond their Bounds, and got into the Middle between Venice, Trevigi and Padoua, it was impoffible for them, especially as they were encumbered with fo much Plunder, to retire without very great Danger, on account of the Inconveniencies of procuring Subfiftence, and the Obffacles of Rivers and difficult Paffes. The Spamards were now fenfible of the Preparations on Foot against them, and hastening their March were arrived at Cittadella, but were prevented 1 + + 50 m prevented from taking Pofferfion of it by A. D. the Entrance of a good Number of Sol- 1513. diers into the Place. They took up their Quarters therefore under Cittadella by the Side of the Brenta, in order to proceed to Villa Conticella, at which Place the River was fordable; but they were deterred from attempting the Paffage by Alviano, who had posted himself on the other Side with Troops drawn up in Order, and had planted Cannon along the Bank of the River, carefully providing not only for the Defence of that Place, but of feveral others, which would have been eafy to be paffed without Refistance. The Viceroy continually making a Show as if he defigned to pass the River at the Part below, to which Alviano had bent all his Forces, paffed it the next Night without Refistance at the Pafs of Nuovacroce three Miles above Cittadella, whence he directed his March with great Speed towards Vicenza. But Alviano refolving to oppose his Passage of the River Bacchiglione prevented him, and near to Vicenza was joined by Two Hundred and Fifty Men at Arms and Two Thousand Foot from Trevigi under Gian Pagolo

THE WARS IN ITALY.

IQI

192

A. D. Pagolo Baglione and Andrea Gritti. It was the Intention of the Venetian Generals not to engage the Enemy, who were making towards Vicenza; in a pitched Battle in an open Place, but by guarding the strong Passes, and advantageous Posts, to prevent their Paffage to whatever Quarter they turned. For this Purpofe they had fent Gian Pagolo Manfrone with Four Thousand Militia to Montecchio, and Five Hundred Horfe with a Multitude of other Peafants to Barberano to ftop the Paffage of the Mountains, and had caufed the Peafants to poffers themfelves of all the Paffes that lead to Germany, and to fortify them with Ditches, Trenches and Stones, and with Trees thrown across the Roads. Alviano left Teodoro da Trivulzi with a fufficient Garrifon in Vicenza, and he himfelf with the reft of the Army posted himself at Olmo, a Place two Miles distant from Vicenza on the Road that leads to Verona, blocking up that Pafs and another near it with Trenches, Ditches, and Artillery difpofed in proper Places infuch a Manner that it was almost impoffible to pais that Way. The Road then which Sec. 362 which the Spaniards defigned to take towards A. D. Verona being thus ftopped up, it was difficult also for those who marched along by the Mountains to extend themfelves in a marfhy Country, full of Pools of Water; and it was no lefs difficult and hazardous to take the narrow Way over the Mountains, which was guarded by a Multitude of armed Men. As they were thus furrounded with Enemies on all Sides, in Front, Flank and Rear, and continually harrafied by great Numbers of light Horfe, and could come to no Refolution but what was attended with Difficulty, and much Hazard, when Night came on, after fkirmishing a while, they took up their Quarters within half a Mile of the Venetians. The Generals, after holding a Council of War in the Night on the best Method to extricate themfelves from fuch preffing Difficulties and Dangers, refolved, as least hazardous; to take the Road to Germany, in order to return to Verona by the Way of Trent, though they were under ftrong Apprehensions that, non-account of the Length of the March, and the small Garrifon they had left in the Place, the Ve-VOL. VI. netians N

THE WARS IN ITALY. 193

194

A. D. netians would prevent them, and enter the 1513. Town before they could arrive. At Break of Day they put themfelves in Motion towards Baffano, turning their Backs to the Enemy; which above all things disheartens and is pernicious to an Army; and though they marched in Order with fo little Hopes of Safety that they thought the Lofs of their Baggage and their least ferviceable Horfes the smallest Misfortune that was like to befal them, Alviano did not very quickly perceive their Decampment, which was made in great Silence, without Sound of Trumpet, or Beat of Drum, and a very thick Fog that happened that Morning intercepted all Prospect. But as foon as he had difcovered that they were gone he haftened to follow them with all his Army, in which, it was faid, were a Thoufand Men at Arms, a Thoufand Stradiotti, and Six Thoufand Foot, harraffing them on every Quarter with the Stradiotti, and an infinite Number of Peafants who defcended from the Mountains, and annoved the Enemy with Harquebuses. Hence the Dangers in the March fill increased as well as the Difficulties, which were augmented

THE WARS IN ITALY. 195 mented by the Multitude of Carriages, A. D. 1513. and the vaft Body of Cattle which they drove, and becaufe they proceeded thro' narrow Roads between Ditches, which they had not the Conveniency of widening by levelling the Ground. But tho' they marched a great 'Pace' they kept themfelves in firm Order by the Goodnefs of the Troops, and the diligent Inspection of the Officers; and yet after they had proceeded in this diffreffed Condition about two Miles, they could not themfelves but think it very difficult to hold out much longer. But the Rashness of the Enemies would not fuffer them to wait with Patience the Maturity of fo fair an Opportunity, which was almost brought to Perfection. Alviano incapable, as he always Battle of was, of reftraining himfelf, attacked, not Vicenza. in a tumultuous Manner, but with his Army drawn up in Order of Battle, and with Cannon, the Rearguard of the Enemy commanded by Prospero Colonna. It is reported for a Truth that Alviano delaying to engage was very fharply reprimanded by Loredano, one of the Proveditors, for not charging the Enemies, but fuffer-5.112 N 2 ing

196

A. D. ing them, when now they were already 1513. discomfited, to march off in Safety. These Reproaches were so provoking to a General of fuch extraordinary Fiercenefs, that he hurried himfelf into precipitate Measures, and in a Rage gave the Signal of Battle. Others afcribe the Caufe of the Engagement to Prospero Colonna, by whose Advice the Viceroy chofe rather to try the uncertain Fortune of the Field, than to act otherwife in Dependance on the flender Hopes he could entertain of faving himfelf. They add that when the Viceroy gave the Signal for returning towards Vicenza, Alviano had posted Gian Pagolo Baglione with the Troops arrived from Trevigi; in the Suburbs of that City, and he himfelf with the reft of the Army had taken Poft at Creatia, two Miles from Vicenza, where was a little Hill from whence he could conveniently do Execution upon the Enemy with his Cannon. 10 At the Foot of this Hill was a Valley capable of an Army in Battle Array, but acceffible only by one narrow Road near the Hills, and almost furrounded by Marshes; this Place Prospero knew to be very incommodious for ti i atthe

THE WARS IN ITALY. 197 the Enemy, and advifed to attack them A. D. 1513. on that Side. However it were Prospero began the Fight with much Valour, and fent to haften the Viceroy who commanded the main Battle; and the Spanish Infantry on one Side, and the German on the other, under the Command of the Marquis of Pescara, moving at the fame Time, they attacked the Venetians with fuch waft Impetuofity that they could not stand the Shock, but were broken and put to Flight almost in an Instant. For the Foot not fustaining the Fury of the first Venetians Onfet threw their Pikes on the Ground, defeated. and immediately began to fly in a most shameful Manner, the Regiment of Romagna, of which Babone di Naldo of Brifighella was Colonel, being the first to give fo difgraceful an Example to the others; and the fame vile Cowardice and Panic ran through the reft of the Army, there being fcarce any, that offered to fight, or turn their Faces to the Enemy. Thus was the Valour of Alviano rendered ufelefs at leaft by the Flight of his Soldiers, and he was forced to leave without fighting the Victory to his Enemies, who remained Mafters of N_3 the

108

A. D. the Artillery and all the Baggage: The 1513. Venetian Foot were dispersed into different Places; of the Men at Arms Part fled to the Mountains, and others faved themfelves in Padoua and Trevigi, whither alfo fled for Refuge Alviano and Gritti. There were killed Francesco Calzone, Antonio Pio an old Officer, together with Costanzo his Son, Meleagro da Forli, and Luigi da Parma; but Paolo da Sant' Angelo, being almost spent, escaped, though covered with Wounds. The Prifoners were Gian Pagolo Baglione, Giulio Son of Gian Pagolo Manfrone, Malatesta da Sogliano, and many other Officers and Men of Note, but with worfe Fortune the Proveditor Loredano, for a Quarrel arifing between two Soldiers about their Property in him as a Prifoner, one of them barbaroufly cut his Throat. The Number of the Killed and Taken was in all about Four Hundred Men at Arms, and Four Thousand Foot; for many were flopped in their Flight by the Marsh; and the Loss fustained among the Fugitives was the greater becaufe Teodoro da Trivulzi, having thut the Gates of Vicenza to prevent the Entrance of the Purfuers

THE WARS IN ITALY. 199 Purfuers with the Croud of them that fled, A. D. admitted no Person; hence Multitudes feeking a Paffage were drowned in the neighbouring River, among whom were -Ermes Bentivoglio, and Sacramoro Visconti. Such was the Overthrow which the Venetians received on the Seventh Day of October near to Vicenza, memorable for the Example it gave to Generals by which they are warned in Battles to put no Confidence in Italian Infantry, who are unexperienced in firm and close Engagements; and also for the remarkable Turn, as it were in an Instant, of Victory to that Party who had very fmall Hopes of their Safety; and this Defeat would have endangered Trevigi or Padoua, though into this latter City Bartolomeo d'Alviano, and into the other Andrea Gritti with the Remains of the Army had retired for Refuge, had not, befides the Strength of the Towns, the Time of the Year, which was near the rainy Seafon, been contrary, and the Generals incapable of difpofing at. Pleafure the Soldiers under Want of Pay to go upon new Enterprifes. The Venetians, however, afflicted with fo many Calamities, N4 and

A. D. and terrified by an Event fo contrary to 1513. their Expectations, were not wanting to provide as well as they could for the Security of Padoua and Trevigi, to which, according to Cuftom in Times of extraordinary Danger, they fent a good Number of their noble Youth,

200

AFTER the Battle the Thoughts of Treaty of the Warriors were diverted from Arms to Peace refumed. a Treaty of Peace, which was negotiated at Rome, where was arrived the Bishop of Goritz, whole principal Commission was to pay Obedience to the Pope in the Name of the Emperor and of the Archduke. He was attended by Francesco Sforza Duke of Bari, who came to pay Obedience in the Name of Massimiliano Sforza his Brother. And tho' Goritz reprefented, as at other Times, the Perfon of the Emperor in Italy, yet laying afide his usual Oftentation he entered Rome in a modeft Manner, and would make no Ufe on the Road of the Enfigns of the Cardinalship which were fent to him as far as Poggibonzi by the Pontiff.

28

AT

THE WARS IN ITALY.

197 i A. D.

201

1513. AT the Arrival of the Cardinal of Goritz, a Compromife was made by him and the Venetian Ambassadors for referring all the Differences between the Emperor and the Republic to the Arbitration of the Pontiff. But this Compromife was more in Name and Show than in Effect and Substance; for neither of the Parties, on account of the Importance of the Caufe, would acquiesce in the Arbitration of a Perfon fufpected, unlefs he received a feparate and private Promife from him not to bring in his Arbitration without his Confent*. The Compromife being made, the Pope by a Brief fufpended Hostilities between the Parties, which, though it was joyfully received by all, was but ill observed by the Viceroy, who had done nothing fince the Victory, but plunder and ravage the Country, and by fending Part of his Soldiers to the Polefine of Rovigo had done great Damage to those Parts, fometimes alledging in Excuse that 1 530052 they

* The Pope promised by a Writing under his own Hand to do nothing but what should please both Parties. Mocenigo.

A. D. they were the Territory of Cæsar, fome-^{1513.} times faying that he expected Advice from Goritz. Nor had the Compromise a more compro- happy Issue than it had in the Beginning mise be- or Progress, on account of the Difficulties tweenCæ-Jar and which occurred in the Treaty; for Cæsar the Vene- would confent to no Agreement without tianstakes no Effect, retaining Part of the Towns, and receiving a very large Sum of Money for the reft; and, on the contrary, the Venetians demanded all the Towns, and offered but a fmall Sum of Money. It was believed that the Catholic King, though he openly feemed to defire, as he had formerly done, this Agreement, had now fecretly diffuaded it, and to render it the more difficult, as it was understood, had at the fame Time put Brescia in the Hands of Casar, which Town the Viceroy, protefting that he retained it to render that Prince the more disposed to Peace, could never before be induced to deliver up to him. Of the Caufes of Ciefar's Averfenefs to Peace there were various Conjectures : It was imagined that he had done fuch Injuries and Damages to the Venetians, that he could never expect for the future to live in fincere Friendship

202

THE WARS IN ITALY. 203 Friendship with them, and therefore de- A. D. clined an Accommodation ; or for another Reason, which was because he knew that his Authority and Grandeur in Italy depended on his keeping in Heart that Army which, for Want of Money, he could not maintain without oppressing and taxing the People that were his Friends, and ravaging and plundering the Countries of his Enemies.

THE Affair of the Accommodation was therefore left imperfect by the Pontiff, and a few Days after the Germans, by Means of fome Exiles, furprifed Marano, a maritime Town of Friuli, and afterwards took Montefalcone; and though the Venetians, being defirous to recover Marano, which is Sixty Miles from Venice, . befieged it by Land and Sea, yet their Fortune proving alike in all Places, they were repulsed with Loss in both Attacks. Renzo da da Ceri was the only Perfon at that Time Ceri an who, to his high Commendation, fup-ficer. ported in fome Meafure the Reputation of the Venetian Arms. For though in Crema, of which he was Governor, there was a Pestilence.

A D. Pestilence, and no small Scarcity of Provisions, and the Place, by the Distribution of the Spaniards and Milanefe on account of the Seafon into Quarters through the circumjacent Towns, was in a manner befieged, that vigilant Officer furprifed Calcinaja, a Town in the Bergamafco, and took Cefare Fieramofca with Forty Men at Arms and Two Hundred light Horfe of the Regiment of Prospero Colonna. And a few Days after he entered Quinzano by Night, and took Prifoner the Lieutenant of the Count of Santa Severina with fifty Men at Arms; and in Trevi he took Ten Men at Arms more belonging to Prospero.

THE other Affairs of Italy at this Time proceeded in a peaceable Manner, except Attempt that the Adorni and Fieschi, with Three Thousand Men, of the Country People, and perhaps with the fecret Favour of the Duke of Milan, took Specie, and other Places in the Eastern Riviera, and afterwards approached the Walls of Genoa; but being baffled in their Attempt they marched off, almost like Men after a Defeat, with the Lofs of Part of the Troops which of the Adorni mifcarries

204

THE WARS IN ITALY. 205 which they had brought with them, and A. D. fome Pieces of Artillery.

IN Tuscany also there appeared fome Beginnings of new Difturbances; for the Florentines began to moleft the Lucchefe, in Hopes that, for Fear of the Pope, they would redeem their Peace by the Reftitution of Pietrafanta and Mutrone, alledging that it was not fit they fhould enjoy the Benefit of that Confederacy which they had violated by fecretly lending Affiftance to the Pifans. The Lucchefe complaining to the Pope, and to the Catholic King who had taken them under his Protection, of those Grievances, and finding no Redrefs, were content at last, for avoiding ences begreater Inconveniencies, to refer the Caufe tween the to the Arbitration of the Pontiff, who, tines and being alfo authorifed by the Florentines, Luccht/e comprogave Sentence that the Lucchefe, who had mifed. before reftored the Carfagnana to the Duke of Ferrara, should yield up the Towns aforefaid to the Florentines, and that there should be a perpetual Peace and Confederacy between them. Vien alter alle

AT

206 A. D.

1513.

AT the End of this Year the Caftles of Milan and Cremona, which had before, because they begun to want Provisions, capitulated to furrender if they were not relieved within a certain Time, were delivered into the Pofieffion of the Duke of Milan. Nothing now remained to the King of France in Italy but the Lantern of Genoa, which the Genoefe about the Clofe of the Year attempted to ruin and demolish by Mines. For this Purpose they approached the Wall by Means of a Kind of wooden Gallery thirty Braces long and twenty wide, capable of Three Hundred Men, and begirt all around with Woolpacks to refift the Strokes of the Artillery: A Work of fingular Artifice and Invention, but, as it frequently happens with fuch Machines, found to be of no Service upon Tryal*.

* The Garrison perceiving the Approach of the Machine, by Means of a great Fire which they had kindled on the Rampart, played on her with their Cannon till fhe funk, with the Deftruction of all that were in it, except fome few faved by fwimming or in Boats fent out for that Purpofe. Giovio.

The End of the Eleventh Book.

E$XX$DE$XX$DE$XX$D4}E$XX$DE$XX$DE$XX$D E$XX$DE$XX$D6$XX$D4}E$XX$DE$XX$DE$XX$D

Francesco Guicciardini's H I S T O R Y O F

The WARS in ITALY.

BOOK XII.

美国委会会会会会会会会会会会会会会会会会会会会会会会会会会会会

THE CONTENTS.

King of England with a potent Army invades the French Dominions, obtains a Victory, takes Terrouane and Tournay, and then makes Peace, which the Pope labours in vain to make univerfal, the King of France being intent on recovering the Dutchy of Milan, and Cæfar on profecuting the War against the Venetians. Marriage and Death of Lewis XII. Succeeded by Francis I. who passes into Italy, defeats the Swifs in the famous Battle of Marignano, and recovers Milan. Interview of the Pope and King of France at Bologna. Advantages of the Spaniards Spaniards over the French and Venetians. Pope deprives the Duke of Urbino of his Dominions, and beflows them on Lorenzo de' Medici his Nephew. Verona reflored to the Venetians, and an End put to the Venetian War.

*XX*HIS Year was alfo memorable 1513. for very deftructive Wars in the T *XXX WUltramontane Countries, of which I shall give fome Account, for the fame Reafons, and with the fame Brevity, as I related those of the preceding Year. The Origin of these Movements was the Refolution of the King of England to attack this Summer the Kingdom of France with King of England a very powerful Force, both by Sea and prepares to invade Land. In order to facilitate the Success France. of this Enterprife, he had agreed with Cafar to give him an Hundred and Twenty Thousand Ducats, to enable him to enter at the fame Time Burgundy with Three Thousand Horse, and Eight Thousand Foot, Part Swils Part Germans. He promifed also a Sum of Money to the Swifs to engage them to act in Concert with Cæfar, who confented that they fhould keep Poffeffion fefiion of Part of Burgundy as a Security A. D. 1513. till he had entirely fatisfied them for their Arrears. The King of England perfuaded himfelf alfo that the Catholic King his Father-in-law, in Confequence of the Confederacy in which he was engaged with Cæfar and himfelf, to which he had always affured them of his conftant Adherence, would at the fame Time attack the Enemy from his own Borders. The News therefore of the Truce which that King had made with the King of France, though it did not cool the Ardor for the War, was received with fo much Indignation, not only by the King, but by all the People of England, that, had not the royal Authority interposed, the Spanish Ambaffador would have been torn in Pieces by the Populace. The Conveniency of the Dominions of the Archduke was a farther Encouragement to the War, not fo much because that Prince did not prohibit his Subjects from lifting themfelves in the Service of the Enemies of France, as because he promised to grant Leave for Provisions to be conveyed from his Territories to the English Army.

THE WARS IN ITALY. 200

VOL. VI.

AGAINST

210 A. D.: 1513.

AGAINST these mighty Preparations, Meafures and most threatening Dangers, the King taken by of France did not omit to make all poffible Lewis for Provisions. By Sea he prepared a powerhis Defence. ful Fleet to oppose that which was fitting out in England; and by Land he affembled an Army from all Parts, and was efpecially careful to lift as many German Foot as he could procure. He had also before follicited the Swifs that, though they were not willing to affift him in his Wars in Italy, they would at least confent to grant him a Body of their Troops for the Defence of France. But the Cantons' being wholly intent on establishing the Dutchy of Milan, anfwered that they would not comply with his Request, unless he returned to the Communion of the Church, evacuated the Caftle of Milan (which was not yet furrendered) renounced his Pretenfions to that State, and promifed never more to moleft Milan nor Genoa. To divert the King of England with a Jealoufy of his own Security, the King had also invited into France the Duke of Suffolk as a Competitor to that Kingdom, which provoked the

THE WARSIN ITALY. 211 the English King to cut off the Head of A.D. 1513. the Duke's Brother, who had been kept a Prifoner in England fince the Time that Philip King of Castile, after his Voyage to Spain, had delivered him up to this King's Father. The King of France had alfo fome Hopes of a Peace with the Catholic King, because Ferdinando, as foon as he had heard of the League made between him and the Venetians, apprehending that the Dutchy of Milan could not be defended, had fent one of his Secretaries to France with new Propofals. And it was believed that, when he confidered that the Greatness of the Emperor and of the Archduke might occafion fome Alteration in his Government of Castile, he could not be entirely pleafed with humbling the Crown of France. Moreover, he excited James King of Scotland, his old Ally, to invade the Kingdom of England; and that Prince, who had much ftronger Inducements from his own Interest, for the Depression of France would be dangerous to his Kingdom, was very ready to engage in the Quarrel, and demanded nothing of 0 2 the

THE HISTORY OF 212 the King but Fifty Thousand Livres to A. D. 1513 purchase Provisions and Ammunition.

LEWIS, however, had proceeded but flowly in making thefe Preparations, becaufe he had diverted his Thoughts to the Enterprise against Milan, and was also retarded by his ufual Negligence, and his vain Confidence in the Truce which he had made with the Catholic King. The King of England fpent many Months in making Preparations, for his Subjects had enjoyed a long Peace, and the Methods of War being much altered, the Bows and other Arms that were in use in former Times were now become useles. The King was therefore under a Neceffity of making vaft Provision of Arms, Artillery and Ammunition, to take into Pay a good Body of German Foot, as experienced Soldiers, and to purchase great Numbers of Horses, because it was the antient Cuftom of the English to fight on Foot. For these Reasons the English Forces did not pafs the Sea into pais the Sea before the Month of July, after which they encamped feveral Days near

France and be-Boulogne, and then went and laid Siege to fiege Terrouane. Terroudne.

English

THE WARS IN ITALY. 213-Terrouane, a Town situated on the Borders A. D. of Picardy, and inhabited by the People whom the Latins call Morini. Not long after the King passed the Sea in Person, and now had in his whole Army Five Thousand Fighting Horse, and above Forty Thoufand Foot. This Multitude encamped together, and, after they had, according to the antient Cuftom of the English, furrounded their Quarters with Trenches, Carts and Ramparts of Wood, defended by Cannon planted all around, fo that they feemed to be inclosed within a walled Town, they plied their Batteries against Terrouane in feveral Places, and worked on Mines; but their Valour not answering the Greatness of their Preparations, nor the Fame of their Fiercenefs, they did not venture to give the Affault. There were in the Town, which was well furnished with Artillery, Two Hundred and Fifty Lances and Two Thousand Foot; a finall Garrifon, but not without Hopes of a Reinforcement : For the King of France, who had been careful to af-femble the Army, which was defigned to confift of Twenty-five Hundred Lances, 3 Ten O

A. D. Ten Thousand German Foot commanded 15^{13} by the Duke of Guelderland, and Ten Thousand Foot of the National Troops, was arrived at Amiens, that the Vicinity of his Forces might animate the Hopes and Refolution of the Befieged. The Garrifon were under no Apprehensions but of the Want of Provisions, with which they had neglected to fupply themfelves, except it were with Bread, of which they had enough, and annoyed the Enemy both Night and Day with their Cannon, by which the King's great Chamberlain was killed, and Talbot, Captain of Calais, had a Leg shot off. The King of France was much concerned at the Danger of Terrouane, but because he had too late, and with a French Negligence, fet about providing himfelf, and becaufe of the Difficulty of procuring the German Infantry, he had not as yet affembled all his Troops. He was refolved, however, at all Events not to hazard a Battle, for if he should be defeated the whole Kingdom of France would be exposed to most manifest Danger, and therefore he trufted to the Winter, which in those cold Countries was already

214

THE WARS IN ITALY. 215 ready on its Approach. But as foon as the A. D. Army was affembled, he continued himfelf at Amiens, but ordered the Troops to march to Aire, in the Neighbourhood of Terrouane, under the Command of M. de Longueville, otherwife entitled Marquis of Rotelin, a Prince of the royal Blood, and Captain of the King's Lifeguard, and of M. de la Palisse, with a Charge to avoid all Occasions of coming to an Engagement, and employ themfelves in furnishing with Necessaries for their Defence the Towns in that Diffrict, which had, thro' the fame Negligence, been hitherto but ill provided, and to throw, if poffible, fome Succours of Men and Provisions into Terrouane'; an Attempt difficult in itfelf, but become more difficult for Want of Agreement between the Generals, each of them, one on account of his Nobility, and the other on the Score of his long Experience in War, arrogating to himfelf the chief Management of Affairs. The Garrison, however, of Terrouane demanding a Reinforcement of Men, Fifteen Hundred Lances approached the Place at a Side most remote from the English Quarters, and 0 4 while

216

A. D. while the Cannon of the Town kept playing on Three Thousand English posted atcertain Passes to intercept the Succours info furious a Manner that they could not effect their Defign, and the reft of the Army was prevented from advancing to ftop the French by Means of certain Traverfes of Ramparts and Trenches caft up by the Belieged, Captain Frontaille made his Way to the Gate, and introduced into Terrouane Eight Hundred Men at Arms without their Horfes'as it had been defired, and then retired without Lofs; and he might in the fame Manner have put Provisions into the Place, if he had brought them with him. The French Generals encouraged by the Success of this Attempt approached another Day with a great Quantity of Provisions, in order to introduce them by the fame Way." But the English had thrown "up a new Fortification on that Side, and prefenting themfelves prevented their advancing forwards, and on the other hand fent out their Cavalry and Fifteen Thousand German Foot to cut off their Retreat. The French returning without Sufpicion, and for Conand it veniency

THE WARS IN ITALY. 217

veniency mounted on little Horfes, as foon A. D. as they were attacked immediately betook 1513. themfelves to Flight without Refistance, English in which Diforder they loft Three Hun-defeat the dred) Men at Arms, who were taken Prifoners, and among them the Marquis of Rotelin, Generals Bayard and Faiette, with many other Perfons of Note; Palifie was alfo taken, but had the good Fortune to make his Escape. It was believed that if the English had known how to follow their Victory, they would that Day have opened themfelves a Way to become Masters of the Kingdom of France. For a great Body of Germans, that had followed the Men at Arms, had refted behind; and if they had been defeated the French Army would have received fo great a Lofs that, as we are affured, the King on the first Advices imagining that the Germans alfo had been routed, looked upon his Affairs as in a defperate State, and miferably lamenting and bemoaning himfelf thought of nothing but flying into Bretany. But the English, as foon as they had put to Flight the French Cavalry, intent on the Acquisition of Terrouane, conducted the Prifoners

A. D. Prisoners with their Colours before the 1513. Walls .- The Befieged therefore defpairing of Relief, and the Germans that were Terrouane in Garrifon not willing to fuffer without taken. Hope the utmost Scarcity of Provisions, capitulated, and agreed to march out of the Place, if 'it was' not relieved in two Days, the Soldiers to pass unmolested, and to keep their Horfes; and it is not doubted that their bravely fuftaining a Siege Fifty Days was of fignal Service to the King of France. A few Days before Maximilian arrived in Perfon in the English Army, and refreshed his Memory with the Sight of those Places where, though now unlike himfelf, he had, when yet a Youth, with fo much Glory defeated the Army of Lewis XI. King of France*; while he flayed he was complimented with the Title of Commander in chief+. Lo 2 da Heler J

DIA BUT

upilaqu

When the French and Germans contended about the Bounds of their Dominions Maximilian, when very young, in the Plains of Chingatta (near Terrouane) routed Philip Des Cordes, a very experienced General of Lewis XI. at the Head of Thirty Thousand Erench. Giowio.

1 1 1 1 1 1

+ English Historians say that he did Henry VIII. the Honour to list under him, wore the English red Cross, and received a Salary of an Hundred Crowns a Day.

218

THE WARS IN ITALY. 219

BUT the King of France was not only d. D. 1513. molefted on that Side of his Dominions by the English, but diftreffed in a more dangerous Manner in a different Quarter by the Swifs. The Populace of that Nation being ardently defirous that the King fhould give up the Right which he pretended to the Dutchy of Milan, and burning with inexpreflible Hatred against him becaufe he shewed no Compliance, had fet on Fire the Houfes of many private Citizens of Lucern, whom they had fuspected of immoderately favouring the French Interest, and continuing their Proceedings against those who laboured under the like Sufpicion, had constrained all the principal of them to deliver up their Penfions upon Oath for the Service of the Savils en-Community. After this, taking up Armster Burby public Decree, they entered Burgundy gundy and beliege in a tumultuous Manner, to the Number Dijon. of Twenty Thoufand Foot, being fupplied with Artillery and a Thoufand Horfe by Cafar, who had promifed them and the King of England to go with them in Perfon, but out of his ufual Inconftancy, or from fome Jealoufy which he had conceived

A.D. ceived of them, now refuted it. They continued their March till they came before Dijon, the Capital of Burgundy, to which they laid Siege. In the City was a Garrifon of a Thoufand Lances and Six Thousand Foot commanded by Tremouille. The Bulk of the Soldiers and Subalterns among the Swifs, being apprehensive of the Treachery of their Generals, who had already begun to treat with the French, planted the Artillery, and began to batter the Town*. Tremouille being under no fmall Apprehenfions that he fhould not be able to defend the Place, had Recourfe to the last Remedy, and fuddenly came to an Agreement without waiting for a Commiffion from the King. The Articles were in Substance, that the King should be bound to renounce his Right to the Dutchy of Milan, and to pay the Swifs, at certain Times, Six Hundred Thousand Ducats; for the Performance of which Conditions he was to deliver into their Hands four honourable

* Giovio writes that it was Ulderic, Marquis of Wirtemberg, Commander of the German Horfe, and Director of the Siege, who ordered the Battery', that he might give the Befieged no Reft, because he distrusted the Faith of the Sawis.

220

Make Peace.

THE WARSIN ITALY.

22T

honourable Perfons of high Rank and A. D. Quality" as Hoftages." The "Swifs" were obliged to nothing but to return "Home to their own Habitations, fo that they were not bound to live in Friendship with the King of France for the future, but might even return whenever they pleafed; and invade his Kingdom. The Swifs on receiving the Hoftages immediately fet out on their March homewards, excufing themselves for making an Agreement without the King of England, by alledging that they had not received the Money he had promifed them at the Time when it was due. a Com-

THIS Agreement was thought to have faved the Kingdom of France; for if the Swifs had taken Dijon, they would have had it in their Power to march without Refiftance to the Gates of Paris; and it was probable that the King of England would have paffed the River Somme, and marched into Champagne, in order to join them: An Attempt, the Succefs of which could not be prevented by the French, who at that Time had no more than Six Thoufand

222 .

fand German Foot, and the Duke of A. D. 1513. Guelderland not being yet arrived were under a Necessity of keeping themselves inclofed within their Towns. The King, however, took it very much to Heart, and was highly diffatisfied with Tremouille on account of the Quantity of Money he had engaged to pay, but much more becaufe he had obliged him to recede from his Rights, as a Step very prejudicial in itfelf, and unworthy of the Grandeur and Glory of the Crown of France. Wherefore tho' the Danger would still be very great if the Swifs should be provoked to return and make a fresh Attack upon his Dominions, yet trufting to the near Approach of Winter, and being fenfible that the Enemy could not get their Forces together again under a confiderable Time, he refolved to run the utmost Hazard fooner than deprive himfelf of his Right to that Dutchy, of which he was exceffively fond. He determined then not to ratify the Agree-King of ment, but began to propose new Condi-France 1etions, to which the Swifs shewed themfules to ratify the felves utterly averfe, and threatened to Peace. cut off the Heads of the Hoftages if the Ratification 111. 14

THE WARS IN IT ALY. 223 Ratification did not arrive within a certain A. D. Time.

TERROUANE being taken, and the Archduke pretending, a Title to it by antient Right, and the King of England claiming it as his own by Conquest in lawful War, it was thought fit by Cæsar and the King to suppress the Seeds of Differition by demolishing the Walls, though it had been forbidden them by the Articles of the Capitulation. Cæsar then immediately left the Army, making this Observation on Cæsar's Observathe English, That, as far as he could per-tion on ceive by Experience, they were rash, and the English had but little Skill in War.

FROM Terrouane the King of England went and laid Siege to Tournay, a very Tournay heffieged ftrong and rich City, and most devoted and taken by antient Inclination to the Crown of by the by antient Inclination to the Crown of Englist. France, but furrounded by the Dominions of the Archduke, and therefore incapable of receiving Relief from the French while they were not Masters of the Field. This Step of the English was very acceptable to the King of France, who was afraid they would

224 1513

A. D. would come and attack him in fome more important Parts of his Kingdom, which would have reduced him to great Straits. For though he had by this time affembled a potent Army, in which, befides Five Hundred Lances in Garrifon at St. Quintin, he had Two Thousand Lances, Eight Hundred Albanian light Horfe, Ten Thoufand German Foot, a Thoufand Swifs, and Eight Thousand Foot of his own Kingdom, the English Army was much more powerful, and reported, from a daily Acceffion of new Troops, to amount, to no lefs than Eighty Thousand Fighting Men. The King therefore, who had no great Hopes of defending Boulogne and the reft of the Country beyond the Somme, to which he was apprehensive the English would turn their Arms, thought of nothing but how to' defend Abbeville and Amiens and the other Towns on this Side the Somme, and to difpute the Paflage of that River, and fo to proceed temporifing till the Setting in of the cold Seafon, or till the Diversion of the King of Scotland, from which he had great Expectations, produced fome Effect, his Army in the mean time patrolling along the

THE WARSIN ITALY.

225

1513.

the Somme to prevent the Paffage of the A. D: Enemy. "It was believed that this Refolution of the English, which was certainly unworthy of military Men, and of fo great an Army, was occasioned either by the Perfualions of Cafar, who might hope that Tournay when taken would then or in Process of Time come under the Dominion of his Nephew, to whom he pretended it belonged; or by an Apprehenfion of wanting Provisions if they marched another Way, or that other Towns to which they might lay Siege would be relieved by the Enemy. The City of Tournay, being unprovided with foreign Troops, despairing of Relief, and battered on feveral Quarters, made but a short Defence, and furrendered on Condition of Safety to the Perfons and all the Effects of the People within it, only paying, on the Account of redeeming themfelves from Plunder, an Hundred Thousand Ducats. the two betung in of

FORTUNE did not shew herself more favourable to the French in other Parts; for the King of Scotland paffing the River Vol. VI. other and Pathont of a Triped. 5173

226

A. D. Tweed, and coming to an Engagement 1513. with the English Army, in which was Catharine Queen of England in Perfon, was King of defeated with a very great Slaughter, in Scotland and flain, which fell above Twelve Thousand Scots, together with the King himfelf, his natural Son, the Archbishop of St. Andrews, and many other Prelates and Nobles of that Kingdom. After these Conquests and Victories, the Seafon now drawing on towards the End of October, the English King, leaving a numerous Garrifon in Tournay, and difbanding his German Horfe and Foot, returned into England, having reaped no other Fruit from a War undertaken with fuch vaft Preparations, and inestimable Charges, than the City of Tournay, for Terrouane being difmantled was left in the Power of the King of France. He was induced to país the Sea because, it being imposfible in those very cold Countries to continue the Operations of the War, it could be of no Service to tarry abroad at fo vaft an Expence; and befides he was thinking to take fome Care about fettling the Tuition of the new King of Scotland, a Child, and his Sifter's Son ; the

THE WARS IN ITALY. 227

UPON Henry's Departure the King of France difbanded all his Army except the German Infantry, "being delivered from King of the Fear of present Dangers, but not under from Apprehensions of the Return of Appregreater Difficulties with the fucceeding hentions, Year; for the King of England when he left France had protested with many threatening Speeches that he would return the next Summer, and that he might not again be obliged to take the Field fo late in the Year had already begun to make new Preparations. Lewis knew alfo that Cæfar was in the fame Disposition to act against him, and he was afraid left the Catholic King, who had recourse to various Subterfuges for excusing to his Adversaries the Truce he had made, that he might not wholly alienate them from him, should take up Arms in their Favour; and he had ftrong Reafons for his Apprehenfions from an intercepted Letter, in which that King, writing to his Ambaffador at Cafar's de P 2 Court,

228

A. D. Court, and discovering an Intention far . 1513. different from his Words, in which he always pretended an ardent Defire to enter into a War with the Infidels; and to pass the Seas in Perfon for the Recovery of Ferufalem, proposed to act in Concert with Cæfar for procuring the Dutchy of Milan to be transferred to Ferdinando their common Grandfon, and younger Brother to the Archduke; demonstrating to him that when this Defign was effected the reft of Italy would be neceffitated to receive Laws from them, and that it would be easy for Cafar, efpecially when affifted by his Forces, to obtain, what fince the Death of his Confort had always been his Wifh, the Pontificate, which once accomplished he inight transfer the Imperial Crown from himfelf to the Archduke; concluding that fuch grand Defigns could not be brought to Perfection but by Time and Opportunities. The King of France was fully convinced that the Animofities of the Stuifs, to whom he made very large Offers, were not in any Measure pacified ; but rather exafperated by new Provocations, for the Hoftages given them by Tremouille, being apprehenfive

THE WARS IN ITALY. 229 apprehensive, from the King's Non- A. D. observance of the Articles, that they should lose their Heads, had privately withdrawn themselves into Germany; whence the King had Reason to be afraid that either at present; or at least the next Year, taking Advantage of his other manifold Distress, they would make a Descent either into Burgundy or Dauphiné.

THESE Difficulties were in fome meafure the Caufe that induced the King to confent to an Agreement with the Pope in fpiritual Matters, the principal of which was the total Extirpation of the Pifan Council. 21/This Point, which had been under Debate feveral Months, was attended with many Difficulties, and particularly with respect to the Things done either by the Authority of that Council, or against the Authority of the Pope; the Approbation of which appeared utterly "funworthy of the Apostolic See, and the Revocation of them, it was not doubted, would occasion very great Confusion. A Commission therefore was granted to three Cardinals to confider of Means for pro-11. ... P₃ viding

230

A. D. viding against this Diforder. Some Diffi-1513. culties also arose because it did not appear convenient to grant the King Abfolution. unlefs he demanded it, and on the other hand the King refused his Confent to demand it, becaufe he would avoid branding. with Schifm his own Perfon and the Crown of France. At last the King quite tired with these Vexations, and tormented by the Importunities of all the People of his Kingdom, who ardently defired to be refored to Communion with the Roman Church, and alfo greatly moved by the preffing Inftances of the Queen, who had always shewn her Abhorrence of these Difputes, determined to comply with the Will of the Pope, and not without fome Hope alfo that this Obstacle being removed, his Holinefs, according to his Intention, which he had artfully intimated to him, would shew himself not averse to his Intereft, tho' there was a new Occasion of Difpute added to those of long standing, for the Pope had by a Brief commanded the King of Scotland not to moleft the King of England, yidgin and hats angle ามราว ก็สุดก่อน้ำเหก่า กละทาบณฑุลก

THE WARS IN ITALY.

- D. A. uding against this shine of the D.

23I.

1513.

IN the Eighth Seffion therefore of the, Lateran Council, which was held in the latter End of the Year, the Agents of the King of France, in his Name, and producing his Commission, renounced the Pifan Conventicle, and adhered to the Lateran Council, and engaged that fix Prelates of those who had been present at the Assembly at Pifa should come to Rome and perform the fame Ceremony in the Name of the whole Gallican Church, and that fome other Prelates should take a Journey thither in order to debate on the Pragmatique, with an Intention to refer themfelves on that Head to the Declaration of the Council, of whom in that fame Seffion they obtained plenary Abfolution of allo Offences, committed against the Roman Church : And thefe were the Transactions in Italy, France, and England during the Course of the Year 1513.

b DNs the Beginning of the Year 1514 1514. died Anna Queen of France, a most ex-Queen of cellent and thoroughly Catholic Princess, France having fcarce tasted the Joys of the Union P 4 which

A. D. which the fo fervently defired with the ^{1514.} Church, and extremely lamented by the whole Kingdom, and by her own People of Bretany.

232

THE Kingdom of France being reduced to the Obedience of the Church, to the utter Extinction of the Name and Authority of the Pilan Council, fome of those Potentates, who had entertained a Jealcufy of the Greatness of the King of France, now began to look about them, and to fear that the Power of that Monarch would be too much depressed. These Apprehenfions created Uneafinefs in particular to the Pope, who, tho' he ftill defired that the King fhould not recover the Dutchy of Milan, yet doubted that Lewis, under a Terror of fo many Dangers, and the melancholy Remembrance of othe Events of the paft Year, would, uint conformity to the conftant Sollicitations of. the Catholic King, which were not difpleafing to Cæfar, precipitate himfelf into a Convention with that Prince, in which, by a Contract of Marriage between his Daughter and one of the Grandfons of thofe

THE WARSIN ITALY.

233: those Monarchs, Cafar's would grant her A. D. in Dowrys the Dutchy of Milan. He 1514. therefore took upon him to perfuade the Swifs not to fuffer their Hatred of the King of France to transport them fo far as to throw him under a Neceffity of taking a Refolution no lefs prejudicial to themfelves than to him, as they knew alfo the evil Disposition of Cafar and the Catholic King towards them, from defiring and Agreement, the Confequences of which, if they fhould get into their Poffeffion the State of Milan, would prove no lefs dangerous to their own Liberty and Authority than to the Liberties of the Church and of all Italy. He advised them to perfift Pope's in their Refolution that the King of France, Advice to should not regain the Dutchy of Milan, the Savis. but at the fame time to take care that, as it often happens in human Actions," they did not, in order to avoid one Extreme, run into another no lefs pernicious and dangerous, and by too great a Sollicitude to fecure that State from returning under the King of France, be the Occasion of its falling into the Hands of others, with greater Hazard and Detriment to the Public,

234

A. D. Public, in proportion as it would be lefs eafy to find Means for refifting their Power than it had been to check the growing Greatness of that King. The Republic of the Swifs, he faid, had obtained all over the World the highest Reputation in the Arts of War by wonderful Exploits and most glorious Victories; it was now their Duty to render themfelves no lefs illustrious by the Arts of Peace, in forefeeing future Dangers from the prefent Juncture, and providing Remedies by Prudence and Counfel, and not fuffering the Affairs of the Public to run backward to fo great a Length as to prove irretrievable but by Fiercenefs and Dint of Arms. For in War it has been found by Experience in all Times that human Valour is often opprefied by the predominant Power? of Fortune. 9 It was more advisable therefore ntob moderate in nome measure ithes Agreement of Dijon, efpecially fince the King offers larger Subfidies; and promifes to make a three Years Truce with the State of Milan, provided he lis not conftrained to make a Ceflion of his Right, which being a Point that has rather a fpecious Ap-

THE WARS IN ITALY. 235 Appearance than any just Effect (for if A. D. an Opportunity should return for the King to recover that Dutchy, his Cession would be no Hindrance to him but just as far as he pleased) it would be unreasonable for the Sake of such a Difficulty to set the Good of the Public at Stake.

127 841

ON the other Side his Holinefs, by To the many Reasons, exhorted the King of King of France to make no Delay in ratifying the France. Treaty of Dijon, as a lefs Evil than to run the Rifk of having fo many Enemies next Summer within his Kingdom; admonishing him that it was the Duty of a wife Prince to embrace as good and beneficial the Choice of a leffer Evil in order to avoid a greater, and not, for the Sake of freeing himfelf from one Danger and one Diforder, to run headlong into another of greater Importance and more difgraceful. For what Honour could he get by giving up to his natural Enemies, who had purfued him with all the Arts of Treachery, the Dutchy of Milan with fuch manifest Marks of Cowardice ? Or what Reft or Security could be expected from

226

A. D. from increasing, with fo great a Diminution of his own Reputation, the Power of those who thought of nothing but annihilating the Kingdom of France? That he himself knew that no Promife, no Word of Honour, nor even Oath could fecure him against their Devices, as he had learnt, to his infinite Damage, from past Experience. It lay hard upon him, he confessed, to yield up his Rights, but the Difgrace was the lefs, becaufe a little Piece of Parchment did not make his Adverfaries more potent, and this Promife having been made by his Ministers without his Confent, it could not be faid that it had been his Refolution from the Beginning, but he would be the more excufed in executing it, becaufe he was in a manner neceffitated by the Promife made in his Name, and by fome Regard due to the Keeping of Faith. All the World knew, he faid, from what imminent Danger this Agreement had at that Juncture delivered the Kingdom of France. He commended him for endeavouring by other Motives to induce the Swifs to comply with his Intentions, and wished that for the

THE WARS IN ITALY. 237 the Security of his own Kingdom he A. D. would by all Means purfue an Agreement with them, for which End he would not fail, with all the Readinefs imaginable, to ufe his good Offices for difpofing the Swifs to conform themfelves to his Majefty's Will; but if they continued obftinate, he exhorted him in a fatherly Manner to bend and fubmit to the Neceffity of the Times, not only for all other Reafons, but alfo that he might not deprive him of an Excufe for feparating himfelf from an Alliance with his Enemies.

THE King acknowledged the Juffice of these Reasons, tho' he complained that the Pope had tacitly mixed Threats with Persuasions, and confessed that he was under a Necessity of coming to fome Resolution that might lessen the Number of his Enemies. But he was fixed in his Determination to expose himself to all Dangers, rather than recede from his Rights to the Dutchy of Milan, in which he France was encouraged by his Council and the retains his Claim to whole Court, who, tho' they were ex-the tremely concerned that the King should Milan. make

A. D. make any more Wars in Italy, yet, out of Respect to the Dignity of the Crown of France, thought it far more intolerable that he should be forced to renounce his Claim in fo ignominious a Manner.

238

Swils.

Тне fame pertinacious Humour prevailed in the Diets of the Swifs; for tho' the King offered to pay them at prefent Four Hundred Thoufand Ducats, and Eight Hundred Thousand more at different Times, and the Cardinal of Sion with many of the principal Perfons, confidering the imminent Danger if the King of France should unite with Cæsar and the Catholic King, were inclined to accept these Conditions, yet the Multitude, who were bitter Enemies to the Name of the French, and, grown proud with fo many Victories, believed themfelves able to defend the Milanefe against all other Princes in Combination, the Authority of Sion being alfo much diminished, and the other Chiefs fuspected on account of the Penfions which they used to receive from Obflinacy the King of France, infifted, with the of the utmost Obstinacy, on the Ratification of the

THE WARS IN IT ALY. 239 the Treaty of Dijon. They were even A.D. fo far transported with Rashness that they debated on making a new Invasion into Burgundy, but Sion and the other Chiefs opposed that Measure, not by open Authority, but by various Artifices and indirect Ways, referring a Resolution on that Head from Diet to Diet.

THE King of France therefore, neither attacked nor fecure of being attacked by the Swifs, continued without Intermiffion the Treaty of Affinity with the Catholic King, in which the principal Difficulty was, as before, whether the young Princess should be under the Tuition of the Father or of the Father-in-law till the were of Age fit for Confummation of the Matrimony. For if the remained with the Father, Cafar could not affure himfelf that the Marriage would take Effect; and the King, as long as he entertained any Hopes that the Report of this Affair, which he fludioufly divulged, might make any Impreffions on the Minds of others, out of a Concern for their own Interests, which might turn to his Benefit, freely gon.

240

freely furnished Matter for the Disputes A. D. 1514 which arole on this Occasion. There came to his Court Quintana, Secretary to the Catholic King, who had been there the Year before on the fame Account, and from hence with his Confent he paffed forward to Cafar, and returned again to the Kingsof France. At his Return, to give Time for the more convenient Removal of the Difficulties which obstructed a Peace, the King, and Quintana in the Name of his Catholic Majefty, prolonged the Truce that had been made Truce prolong'd the Year before for another Year on the between the Kings fame Conditions, to which was added of France very fecretly that the King of France and Arafhould not be at liberty to moleft the Dutchy of Milan ; but Afti and Genoa were not comprehended within this Article. Is This Condition the King of France kept fecret, but the Catholic King caufed 19 20 it to be published and folemnly proclaimed throughout all Spain, leaving the Public at a Lofs whether to believe the Denial of the sone or the Affirmation of the other.

In the fame Convention the Space of three Months was referved for the Accession 12 of 5 10 A.

THE WARS IN ITALY. 241 of Cæfar and the King of England, who, A. D. as Quintana affirmed, were both ready to sccede; as to the King of England he was miftaken, but the King of Aragon, who had refolved always to avoid a War on the Side of Spain, had perfuaded Cæfar that there was no better Way to obtain the Marriage under Negotiation.

THIS Prolongation of the Truce increafed the Pope's Sufpicion that between thefe three Kings fome Agreement had been concluded, or was on the Point of Conclusion, on Affairs of great Importance to the Prejudice of Italy. His Holinefs however continuing firm in his first Refolutions, that it would be very pernicious to the common Liberty for the Dutchy of Milan to fall into the Hands of Cæsar and the Catholic King, and prejudicial alfo to have it recovered by the King of France. found it very difficult to proceed, and Pope emto ballance Affairs in fuch a Manner that barraffed. the Means which promoted one of these Intentions might not prove destructive to the other, confidering that one of the Dangers proceeded from the Depression VOL. VI. 0 and .

242

1230

A. D. and Fears, and the other from the Great-1514. nefs and Security of the King of France. In order therefore to deliver that King from a Neceffity of making an Agreement with the other Princes, he continued to exhort the Swifs, who were jealous of the Truce, to accommodate their Differences with him; and to render it difficult for him at all Events to pass into Italy, he took more Pains than ever to bring about an Agreement between Cafar and the Venetian Senate. That prudent Body reflecting that a Truce would establish the Administration of Cafar in the Towns that remained to him, refolved with a constant Mind either to make a Peace or to continue in Arms, without fuffering themfelves to be removed from fo generous a Refolution by any Accident or Misfortune whatfoever. For befides their manifold Loffes and unhappy Succeffes in the War, and their Defpair of feeing a French Army in Italy this Year, they fuffered alfo under the Wrath of Heaven, or the cafual Events that depend on Fortune, a very ter-Great Fire Events that depend on Fortune, a very ter-in Venice, rible Fire happening the Beginning of this Year in Venice, which broke out by Night

on

THE WARS IN ITALY. 243 on the Bridge of Rialto, and being favoured A. D. by a North Wind, in Spite of all the Labour and Diligence that could be employed, extended itself a very long Way through the richeft and most populous Part of that City. To 200160, 110 M OILY A CONTROL AND AND Sparseful and public control of that

By the Interposition of the Pope for an Casfar and Agreement a new Compromise was made the Venebetween Cæsar and the Venetians in the into a Perfon of his Holinefs, not reftrained to Compro-Time, and with full and unlimited Power, mile. with a Secret Promise however, confirmed under his own Hand-writing, to make no Declaration but by the Confent of both Parties. As foon as the Compromife was made the Pontiff, by a Brief, commanded a Sufpension of Arms on both Sides, which was but little observed by the Spaniards and Germans. For that Part of the Spaniards which had their Quarters in the Polefine and at Effe plundered all the circumjacent Country, and the Viceroy fent Troops to Vicenza, to take it into Poffeffich when the Sentence of the Arbitration foold be given? haraque a start

0.0

TAQ YVAQT ZIFH / H/T/ Horie newly arrived in Posali ravaged at:

War in Friuli.

244 A. D.

1414.

ab In the mean time Frangipane committed great Ravages in Friuli, the Venetians not standing on their Guard, and the Germans, by means of a Confpiracy formed by fome Exiles, made themfelves Mafters of Marano, a Town of Friuli near to Aquileia, band feated on the Sea. The Venetians, to recover the Place, ordered thither Baldaffarre di Scipione with a Body of Troops, and Girolamo da Savorniano with a Multitude of Peafants by Land, who who having laid Siege to the Place, while a Squadron of Ships ftraitened it by Sea, the Germans to the Number of Five Hundred Horfe, and Two Thousand Foot came to its Relief, and being joined by the Garrison fallied out upon the Venetians, and routed them with confiderable) Lofs of Mengand of all their Cannon, and with their Shipping took from them a Galley vand many other Veffels ; after which Victory they mastered Monfalcone by Storm. The Troops at Manano were a few Days after joined by Fours Hundred Horfe and Twelve Hundred German Foot from Vicenza, who in Conjunction with the other Horfe Bur

THE WARS IN ITALY.

245

Horfe newly arrived in Friuli ravaged all d. D. the Country Wherefore Malatefta I da 1514. Sogliano, Governor of that Province, with Six Hundred Horfe and Two Thouland Foot, and Girolamo da Savorniano, with Two Thoufand Peafants who were retired to Udine, finding themfelves too weak to. refift fo great a Force; paffed beyond the River Liquenza to give Affiftance where they were able. " But the Germans dividing themselves one Part took Feltro and scoured all# the circumjacent Country ; and the Venetians, who had feized all the Paffes, attacked a Part of that Body, confifting of Five Hundred Foot, at Bassano, where they were unprovided, and overpowering them put them to Flight with the Lofs of Three Hundred killed on the Spot, and many Officers and Soldiers taken Prifoners. The other Part of the Germans were gone to lay Siege to Ofopo feated on the Top of a rugged Mountain, where, after they had battered the Caffle, and formed it feveral Times without Success, they had no other Hopes of taking it but by keeping it blockaded, flattering themfelves that the Belieged were in Want of Water. Slight But Q_3

246 A. D.

D. But the Favour of Heaven fupplying that Defect by frequent and plentiful Showers for fome Days, they fell to florming the Place anew, but being repulfed, and defpairing of reducing that Fortrefs by Block-ade or Affault, they decamped and marched off. and for matrix and the place of and the state of t

THE Pope was very uneafyrat these Proceedings, but much more concerned that he could find no Means for an Agreement fatisfactory to both Parties. For as the frequent Changes in the Situation of Affairs, from the Progresses of the contending Powers, were constantly attended with a Change of Hopes and Expectations, it happened that when Cæfar had confented to give up Vicenza, retaining Verona, the Venetians refused a Peace unless Verona were also reftored ; and now when the Venetians, humbled by fo many Blows, would have been contented with Vicenza alone, Cafar, Inot, fatisfied with Verona, demanded alfo Vicenza. The Pontiff, quite out of Patience under these Difficulties, prefumed ithat his Declaration would not be accepted : To convince the .hi2 Public,

THE WARS IN ITALY. 247 A. D. Public, however, that the Fault lay not in himfelf that an Accommodation could not be procured, he pronounced a Peace be-Peace tween the Parties with this Injunction; that prothere should be an immediate Ceffation of by the Hoftilities in all Parts, referving to himfelf without the Liberty to declare within a Year the Effect. Conditions of this Peace, in which, as well as in the Sufpenfion of Arms, the Catholic King fhould be comprehended : That Cafar should deposit Vicenza in his Hands, and all that he and the Spaniards poffeffed in the Padouan and Trevigian; the Venetians should in like manner deposit Crema, and as to all other Things each Party should keep Possession of what he now possessed till the Declaration :7 That this Sentence flould be ratified by all the Parties within a Month, and at the Rafification the Venetians should pays unto Cafar Twenty-five Thousand Ducats, and Twenty-five Thoufand more within three Months next enfuing ; but that this Sentence, if not ratified by all the Parties concerned, was intended to be void. The Pope chofe this unufual Method of Arbitration, that he might not displease either Side, Q 4

A. D. Side; and because there was no Person pre-1514.

248

Brave.

Ceri.

fent who had a Commiffion to ratify in the .) Name of his Catholic Majefty, though his Ambaffador paffed his Word for his Master's Consent, for this Reasons he referved to much Time for every one to ratify, that the King's full Powers might arrive in Seafon. But the Venetians having refolved not to give their Ratification, because the Pope at the fame time had not pronounced the Conditions of Peace as they had defired, the Sentence I le acquired in knuch Reputritsfield on soot

protuerous Actions. and his induffrious

In the mean time the Affairs of the Venetians had a profperous Courfe in the Defence of Crema, which was diffreffed within by a Pestilence and Want of Provisions, and without by a Blockade from the Enemy: For Profpero, Colonna was come to Efenengo with Two Hundred Men at Arms, Two Hundred and Fifty Actions of light Horfe, and Two Thoufand Foot; and Rinzo da Silvio Savello, with his own Regiment of Horfe and Two, Thouland Foot, was arrived on the other Side at Umbriano; both Places diftant Two Miles from Crema This hns

THE WARSIN ITALY.

240

This occasioned frequent Sallies from the A. D. Garrilon, Vand Skirmines with the Enemistry mies, who were furprifed by Renzo da Ceri with Part of the Garrifon in their Quarters at Umbriano, and put to Flight with the Dols of many of their Foot; on which Occation Profpero drew off This Troops, and quitted his Poft. Renzo a few Days after, taking the Opportunity of the Lownels of the Waters, waded the Adda, and furprifed fifty Men at Arms in their Quarters at Casliglione di Lodigiana. He acquired fo much Reputation by thefe profperous Actions, and his industrious Management, that he was univerfally accounted one of the beft Officers in all Defence of Lenger, which was diffrefight

THE Venetians after this refolving to recover Friuli ordered Alviano to march Alviano's thither with Two Hundred Men at Arms, in Friuli. Four Hundred light Horfe, and Seven Hundred Foot. The General being on his March towards Portonon, his light Horfe, which advanced before the reft, met without the Town Rizzano a German Officer with Two Hundred Men at Arms and

250

A. D. and Three Hundred light Horfe, and at 1514 the first Charge were repulsed; but Alviano advancing with the reft of the Troops a finart Battle [enfued, with doubtful Event, till Rizzano was wounded in the Face and taken Prifoner by Malatefta Sogliano, in confequence of which his Troops were broken, and retired into Portonon, which they foon abandoned as defencelefs, and betook themfelves to Flight, and the Town was plundered, and many of the Inhabitants were put to the Sword. Alviano afterwards marched towards Ofopo, which was befieged anew by Frangipane with another Part of the Germans, who on Notice of the Approach of the Venetians decamped, but having their Rear much preffed by the Enemy's light Horfe were obliged to leave their Cannon and Baggage. By these Successes the Venetians recovered almost the whole Country, and Alviano, after a fruitles Attempt on Goritz, returned with his Troops to Padoua, having in this Expedition, as he wrote to Rome, killed or taken Two Hundred Men at Arms, Two Hundred light Horfe, and Two Thousand Foot. But the Germans after 2116 67

THE WARS IN ITALY. 251

after his Departure drew together again, A. D. retook Cremonio and Monfalcone, and 1514. obliged the Venetians to raife the Siege of Marano, where a few Days before Frangipane was taken in an Ambush, and carried to Venice. For the Befiegers perceiving the Approach of the Succours, decamped almost in as much Confusion as if they had been routed, and foon after their Stradiotti were put to Flight, and Giovanni Vettorio their Proveditor with One Hundred Horfe taken Prifoners. These Changes and Vicifitudes of Fortune frequently happened in Friuli by the Vicinity of the Germans, who in their Wars in this Country employed none but Militia. Thefe Froops, after fcowering and plundering whatever came in their Way, whenever they perceived the Coming of the Venetian Troops accompanied by a Multitude of Peafants, immediately re--tired to their own Habitations, and returned again to the Field as Occasion ferved. The Venetians had ordered fome Reinforcements for Friuli, on which the Viceroy appointed Alarcone, one of the Officers of those Spaniards who had their after Quarters 252 THE HISTORY OF 4. D. Quarters between Esti, Montagnana and 514 Cologna, to march for that Country with Two Hundred Men at Arms, One Hundred light Horse, and Five Hundred Foot; but that Commander receiving Information on the Road that a Truce had been made for those Territories, to give Liberty for gathering in the Vintage, marched back to his Quarters.

THE Wars in Italy proceeding thus but flowly, the Negotiations of Peace and Concord were not intermitted; for the King of France still retaining some Hopes that the Swifs would accept of a Sum of Money in Recompense for the Renunciation of his Rights, follicited them for that Purpose with great Earnestnefs. But the Commonalty were fo averfe from granting his Requeft, that having, when the Hostages fled, constrained by Menaces the Governor of Geneva to deliver into their Hands as Prifoner the Prefident of Grenoble, whom the King had fent to that City to treat with them, they examined him feverely on the Rack to learn whether any Perfon of their Nation

THE WARS IN ITALY. 253 tion were still French-Pensioners, or held A. Ď. fecret Correspondence with the King of 1514. France, neither Humanity nor any Juftification being fufficient to reftrain their Foot, but that Coniversity auorata Information on the Road that a Iruce noisigned that a Iruce alfo that the Pontiff, who on account of his different Views was obliged to fleer with very great Circumspection between fo many Rocks, had fecretly procured that the Swifs should not agree with him without his Intervention; not to incite them to make War upon him, from which he was continually perfuading them, but either that they might remain firm to the Treaty of Dijon, or out of an Apprehenfion that their Agreement with the King would be followed by their Separation from himfelf. The King therefore threatened to precipitate himfelf into a Convention with the other Potentates, that he might not ftand alone to be infulted by all the World. Belides, he was quite weary of the excellive Charges and of the Infolence of the Soldiery. For he had brought into France Twenty Thousand German Foot, TOIS

A. D. Foot, a Number which he had not been 1514: able to compleat but when the King of England lay before Tournay; and that he might have their Affiftance in Seafon, if any new Occafion fhould arife, had retained them in his Kingdom, where they did infinite Damages to the Country. The King in this Exigence complained that the Pope intended to fhut him out of Italy, and the other Princes wanted to expel him out of France.

254

In fo difficult and perplexed a State of Affairs the King of France had a Way opened for his Security, with Hopes of recovering his former Power and Reputation, by the inexpreffible Indignation which the King of England, had conceived against his Father-in-law for renewing the Truce, contrary to his often repeated Promife that he would never more enter into any Convention with the King of France without his Confent. Henry complained in public of this indi jurious Treatment, and, declaring that this was the third Time he had been dead ceived by his Father-in-law, began to cool

THE WARS IN ITALY. 255 cool more and more in his Inclinations A. D. 151. to profecute the War against France. This Disposition of the King of England coming to the Knowledge of the Pontiff, this Pope fol-Holinefs, induced either by a Jealoufy licits a that the King of France, if the other con-Peace betinued to moleft him, would make Peace, France and contract Affinity, as he conftantly and Engthreatened, with the other two Kings, or elfe becaufe he imagined that a Peace would certainly fucceed between them, and was therefore willing to curry Favour with the King of France, and by his Interpofition make a Merit of what he could not prevent, began to exhort the Cardinal of York to perfuade his King to be content with the Glory that he had acquired, and, keeping in Mind what Correspondence of Faith he had found in Caefar, the Catholic King, and the Swils, to defift. from employing his Arms againft the Kingdom of France. We are affured that when it was represented to the Pope. that as foon as the King of France had fecured himfelf from a War with England he would turn his Armsagainst the Dutchy of Milan, he answered that he was sensible · 100

256

A. D. ble of that Danger, but it was alfo his ^{1514.} Duty to confider on the other Hand the Danger that might arife from the Difunion of those Kings; and that in so weighty a Matter it was too difficult to ballance Things so perfectly as to resolve on Meafures that should be entirely free from these Dangers; but that at all Events the Dutchy of Milan would not be destitute of the Defence of the Swifs, and that it was necessary in such uncertain and difficult Resolutions to entrust fome Part to the Disposal of Chance or Fortune.

BUT whatever was the Caufe, whether the Authority of the Pope, or the Inclination of the Parties themfelves, a Treaty of Peace was foon fet on Foot between A Treaty fet on the Kings of France and England, the Foot. Negotiation of which, begun by the Pope with York, was fhortly after transferred to England, whither the King of France on the fame Bufinefs difpatched the General of Normandy, but under a Colour of treating about the Release of the Marquifs of Rothelin. At his Arrival was published a Suspension of Arms only by Land

THE WARS IN ITALY.

Land between the two Kings during the A. I Time that the General ftay'd in the Ifland. The Inclination of the King of England to Peace was increased by new Affronts; for Cefar, who had promifed not to ratify the Truce made by the Catholic King without his Concurrence, fent to that King the Inftrument of Ratification, who in a Letter to the King of France, ratified in Cefar's Name*, keeping the Inftrument as of Service to him in his Arts of Diffimulation.

As foon as the Treaty was begun between the two Kings, the Pontiff, defirous to ingratiate himfelf with both, fent Poft to the King of France the Bishop of Tricarico to make an Offer of all his Labour and Authority, and that Prelate with the King's Confent paffed into England for the ame Purpole. At the Beginning of the b Negotiation many Difficulties arole, for the King of England demanded Boulogne in Picardy with a great Sum of Money; but the Difference at last rested folely on the Affair of Tournay, for the King of England infifted on keeping it, and the French ve Vol. MIA to Lor Require a hould made As if empowered by him.

258

made fome Difficulty of complying with A. D. 1514. his Demand. Henry therefore posted away to the King of France the Bishop of Tricarico, who, without being informed in what particular Point the Difference confifted, had only a general Commission to exhort his most Christian Majesty in his Name, that, for the Sake of fo great a Benefit as Peace, he would not infift fo nicely on Difficulties that might be started. On this, the King not willing to incur the Reproaches of his People, becaufe Tournay was a noble Town, and noted for its Fidelity to the Crown of France, proposed theAffair in Council, at which were prefent all the principal Men of the Court, who unanimoufly advifed him to embrace Peace even on Condition of lofing that City, tho" the Catholic King at this Juncture exerted his utmost Efforts to prevent it, proposing to the King of France many advantageous Conditions, and particularly to favour him in his Conquest of the State of Milan. As foon therefore as the Anfwer of the King was brought to England, which was in the Beginning of August, that he was fatisfied

THE WARS IN ITALY. 259 fatisfied as to the Affair of Tournay, a Peace A. 1514. was concluded between the two Kings for the Term of their Lives and one Year Peace concluded afterwards, on Condition that Tournay should remain to the King of England, to Conditions. whom the King of France was to pay Six Hundred Thousand Crowns in yearly Payments of an Hundred Thousand Livres: That for the Defence of their Dominions they should affist one another with Ten Thousand Foot in a Land War, but only with Six Thousand in a War by Sea: That the King of France should be obliged to furnish the King of England on every preffing Occafion with Twelve Hundred Lances, and this King to fupply the other with Ten Thoufand Foot, the Expences in this Cafe to be borne by the Party that had need of the Auxiliaries. Both the Kings nominated the King of Scotland, the Archduke, and the Empire, but neither Cæfar nor the Catholic King were nominated. The Swifs were nominated, but with a Reftriction that whofoever defended the State of Milan, or the Cities of Genoa or Afti against the King of France should be excluded from the Nomination.

260 A.D.

1514. THIS Peace, which was embraced with wonderful Readinefs, was ftrengthen'd King of France by a Contract of Affinity, for the King of marries the King England gave his Sifter in Marriage to the of Eng-land's Sif-King of France, on Condition that he fhould acknowledge that he had received ter. with her in Dowry Four Hundred Thoufand Crowns. The Nuptials were, folemnized in England, at which the King, out of the Greatness of his Resentment against his Catholic Majesty, would not fuffer his Ambaffador to be prefent.

THE Peace was hardly concluded when there arrived at the Court of France the Aufrian Instrument of the Ratification made by Match frustrated. Cafar of the Truce, together with his Commission and that of the Catholic King for concluding of the Marriage treated of between Ferdinando of Austria, and the fecond Daughter of the King, yet but four Years of Age; but a Stop was put to all further Negotiation on this Head by the Conclusion of the Peace: And the King, the better to fatisfy the King of England, ordered the Duke of Suffolk, who was

THE WARS IN ITALY. 261 was Captain General of the German Foot A. D. in his Pay, to leave the Kingdom of 1514. France; yet that Nobleman was difinified by the King with fuch Careffes and Marks of Honour, that he departed well fatisfied.

A T this Time the Pope also contracted Treaties new Alliances; for, as he was full of Ar-and Altifice and Diffimulation, he had a Mind on the Pope. the one Hand that the King of France fhould not recover the State of Milan, and on the other to amufe him and the other Princes as much as he could by various and artful Ways. With this View, by the Mediation of Cardinal San Severino, who had the Management of the French Affairs in the Court of Rome, he had propofed to the King that, fince the Times would not permit that there should be a greater or more open Alliance between them, they should at least make a Beginning, and lay a Foundation, on which they might hope to establish, at a more convenient Seafon, a very clofe Union and Correspondence, for which End he had fent him the Draught of a Convention. But the King, though he feemed to be R_3 pleafed pleafed with the Project, yet, either taken A. D. up with other Business, or expecting Anfwers from another Place, by which he might take his Meafures according to the Progress of Affairs, did not answer fo fpeedily as was hoped, and fpending fifteen Days in coming to a Refolution, the Pope made a new Convention with Cæfar and the Catholic King, for one Year, containing, however, nothing more than the Defence of their refpective States. The Catholic King had before fufpected, and not without Reafon, that the Pontiff aimed at the Kingdom of Naples for his Brother Giuliano; on which Defign he had lately been confulting with the Venetians. Scarce was the Agreement concluded when arrived the Anfwer of the King of France, in which he approved of all that the Pope had proposed, only adding, that fince he was bound to the Protection of the Florentines, of Giuliano his Brother, and Lorenzo de' Medici his Nephew, who was placed by the Pontiff at the Head of the Administration in Florence, he defired that they also should reciprocally oblige themfelves to his Defence. On Receipt of this Anfwer

262

THE HISTORY OF

THE WARS IN ITALY.

262

Answer the Pope excused his entering into A. D. Engagements with Cæfar and the Catholic _____ King, by alledging that his Majesty had been to long in answering his reasonable Demands, that he could not chufe but entertain fome Doubts of his Intention. However, he had made the Agreement but for a fhort Time, and had entered into no Engagements prejudicial to his Majesty, or tending to obstruct the Completion of the Negotiations begun between them. The King accepted of the Pope's Juftification, and they united together in a Convention, though not by an Inftrument for the greater Secrecy, but by a Schedule figned by both Parties.

THE Peace between the Kings of France and England was brought about with greater Facility and Speed than the Public expected, for none ever believed that fo much Enmity could on a fudden be converted into Kindnefs and Tyes of Mar-Peace beriage. The Pope perhaps was not pleafed tween riage. The Pope perhaps was not pleafed tween rance with this Peace, becaufe he, as well as and Engothers, believed that a Truce was to be land not acceptable expected fooner than a Peace, or if a to the R 4 Peace

264

THE HISTORY OF

A. D. Peace that the fame would be attended with harder Conditions to the King of France, or at least that he would be reftrained for fome time from attacking the State of Milan. But above all this Peace of the Two Kings was highly difagreeable to Cæsar, and also to the Catholic King, who yet, as there is no Evil in human Affairs that is not accompanied with fome Good, declared that he received two Benefits from it much to his Satisfaction : One was, that the Archduke his Nephew being excluded from all Hopes of giving his Sifter in Marriage to the King of France, and falling into Diftrust with the King of England, would be obliged to proceed in all his Affairs under the Influence of his Counfel and Authority; the other was, that it being likely enough that the King of France would have Children, the Succeffion of Angoulesme was rendered doubtful, of which he had Reafon to be glad, becaufe that Nobleman was very defirous to reftore the King of Navarre to his State, and was therefore the Object of his immortal Hatred and Jealoufy. Only the Swifs, though they retained the fame Hatred

THE WARS IN ITALY. 265 Hatred to the King of France as in Times A. D. past, declared that they were heartily glad _____ of this Agreement, because that King finding himfelf at Liberty would, as it was fupposed, turn his Arms against the Dutchy of Milan, which would give them a new Opportunity of displaying before all the World their Valour and their Faith. And it was not in the least doubted but that the King of France, being delivered in a manner from all Fears of Molestation beyond the Mountains, would return to his accustomed Defire of recovering the Milanefe; but it was uncertain whether he intended to take the Field without Delay, or defer the Expedition to the next Year; for though the Facility of the Undertaking appeared manifest, yet there were no Signs of Preparations for it.

In this Uncertainty the Pontiff, though Policy of it would grieve him very much if the the Pope. King fhould recover that State, follicited him with great Earneftnefs not to lofe the prefent Opportunity by Delay, reprefenting to him that the Country was in a bad State of Defence, for the Spanish Army was

266

A. D. was diminished and without Pay, the Peo-1514. ple of the State of Milan were impoverished, and reduced to utmost Despair, and that there was none there that could advance Money for putting the Swifs in Motion. These Persuasions were of the greater Authority, because not long before the Peace with England, the Pope expressing a Defire that the King should recover Genoa, had given him fome Hopes of inducing Ottaviano Fregolo to come to an Agreement with him. It is not doubted but that the Pope played the Hypocrite in this Affair, for which his Motives, as it is fuppofed, were his Observation of the bad Provisions for the Defence of the State, and his Apprehenfions that the King would undertake this Expedition even without his Sollicitations, becaufe he had his Men at Arms in Readinefs, and a good Body of German Foot, for which Reafons he was willing to prepoffefs and fecure himfelf of his Friendship in this artful Way; ot else becaufe, proceeding from a deeper Fetch of Policy, he knew that it was true, what the Emperor and Catholic King affirmed, and the King of France denied, that his Moft

THE WARS IN ITALY.

Most Christian Majesty was prohibited to A. D. attempt any thing against the Milanefe 1514. during the Truce, and therefore perfuading himfelf that Lewis would refuse the Expedition, he thought fit to beget in him a good Opinion of his Disposition, and at the fame time provide himfelf with an Excuse if he should follicit his Affistance on another Occafion. The Defign fucceeded according to his Wifh, for the King having refolved, either for the Reafon abovefaid, the Want of Money, or the Nearnels of Winter, not to enter upon Action till Spring, and feeming to be confident that the Pope would not be wanting to favour his Enterprife at that Seafon, answered with alledging various Excuses for his Delay, but still concealing, what perhaps was the principal, the Truce, which was not yet expired.

THE King, however, had an Inclination to make fome Attempt upon Genoa, or at leaft to fuccour the Lantern, which had by his Orders the fame Year received feveral moderate Supplies of Provisions in fmall Veffels, which pretending to enter the

267

A. D. the Port of Genoa got by Stealth under ^{1514.} the Walls of that Fortrefs. But the Place was now reduced to fuch Extremities by Hunger, that the Garrifon could no longer wait for Supplies, but were forced Lantern to furrender to the Genoefe, who, to the of Genoa vaft Difpleafure of the King, razed it to demolified.

THE Loss of the Lantern obliged the Pope de-ceives the King to lay aside for the present all King of Thoughts of molefting Genoa, but he France. wholly applied himfelf to make Preparations for attacking the Dutchy of Milan the enfuing Year; and he was in Hopes from the good Intentions of the Pope, of which he affured him, and from the Disposition that he had shewn in the Negotiations of Peace with the King of England and the Swifs, and because he had ftimulated him to the Undertaking, that he should find in him a fast Friend, and a Favourer of his Defigns, especially fince he made him large Offers, and in particular promifed to affift him in the Conquest of Naples, either for the Church or for his Brother Giuliano ; but from fome

THE WARSIN ITALY. 269 fome new Events which happened he A. D. began to entertain fome Diftruft of him.

THE Pontiff could never be brought to accommodate Matters with the Duke of Ferrara, tho' at the Beginning of his Promotion he had given him very great Hopes of it when he was at Rome, and had promifed the Restitution of Reggio at the Return of the Cardinal his Brother from Hungary. But after the Arrival of that Prelate he went on delaying the Reflitution by various Excuses, confirming however the fame Promifes, not only in Words but by a Brief, and confenting that he should receive the Revenues of Reggio, as of a State that was shortly to return under his Dominion. But his Intention was far different and inclined to feize on Ferrara, to which he was ftimulated by Alberto Carpi, Ambaffador of firous of Cafar, and a most bitter Enemy of the Ferrara. Duke, and by many others, who propofed to him the glorious Example of Julius, who had immortalized himfelf by his enlarging in fo ample a Manner the Dominion of the Church, and reprefented

A. D. fented that now he had an Opportunity of

270

^{1514.} beftowing an honourable State on his Brother Giuliano, who proposing to himfelf more immoderate Hopes, had freely confented that Lorenzo his Nephew should be invefted with the Authority of the Houfe of the Medici in Florence. The Pope then entering into these Measures eafily obtained of the Emperor, who always wanted Money, the City of Modena in Pledge for Forty Thoufand Ducats, according to an Agreement made with him . a little before the Death of Julius, defigning to erect that City, together with Reggio, Parma, and Piacenza, into a Vicariate, or perpetual Government, to be bestowed on Giuliano, with the Addition of Ferrara whenever he should find an Opportunity to make himfelf Master of it.

THIS Mortgage occafioned no fmall King of Sufpicion in the King of France, who jealous of look'd upon it as a Sign of a close Corthe Pope. refpondence with Cafar; and he was vexed that the Pontiff had given him Money, tho' Leo in Excuse alledged that Cafar

THE WARS IN ITALY. 271 Cafar had granted him Modena as a Pledge A. D. for Security of Money he had before received. The King's Sufpicion was increased because the Sultan of the Turks having obtained a great Victory over the Sophi of Perfia, the Pope regarding it as an Event dangerous to Christendom had wrote a circular Letter to all the Chriftian Princes, exhorting them to defift from mutual Hoftilities, and ferioufly to think of entering into a defensive or offensive League against the Enemies of their common Faith. But the Pope in a manner fully discovered his Disposition to the King by fending, under the fame Pretence, Pietro Bembo his Secretary, afterwards Cardinal. to Venice, to difpose the Senate towards an Agreement with the Emperor, in which the former Difficulties recurring, they would not accept it, but notified to the King of France the Occasion of the Ambaffy. Hence the King, taking it very ill that, at a Time when the Operations of War were fo near, he should feek to deprive him of the Affiftance of his Allies, renewed his former Negotiations with the Catholic King, with a Defign to terrify the

A. D. the Pope into his Measures, or, if not 1514. fuch Effect followed, to conclude an Agreement in earneft. So ardently did he defire to recover the Dutchy of Milan!

272

DURING these Transactions there were no other Movements in Italy, except against the Venetians, on whom Attempts were made in the most fecret and treacherous Manner. For, if we may believe the Venetian Writers, fome Spanish Foot Soldiers came into Padoua, pretending to be Deferters from the Enemy's Camp, and there lay in wait to affaffinate Alviano by a Commission from their Commanders, who were in Hopes that by making a fudden Approach with the Army to the Town, while all Things' were in Confusion by the Death of fuch a General, they might eafily become Mafters of it. So dittle Refemblance is there between the Methods of War in our Days and those of the virtuous Antients, who were fo far from fuborning Affaffins, that on the first Notice of any fuch base and wicked Contrivance they discovered it to the Enemy, whom they trufted to overcome by

THE WARS IN ITALY. 273 by Valour, and not by Treachery! But A. D. the Plot in Padoua coming to Light, the Villains were feized by the Magistrates, and fuffered the Punishment which they deferved.

THE Spaniards, much diminished in Motions Number, were encamped between Mon-of the tagnana, Cologna, and Este; and the Vene-Spaniards. tians, in order to oblige them to return into the Kingdom of Naples, had fitted out a Navy, of which they had conftituted Andrea Gritti Captain General, with a Defign to make a Defcent on Puglia; but he met with fo many Difficulties, that the Fleet was at last ordered to be difarmed and laid up. After this the Spaniards, at the Sollicitations of the German Garrison of Verona, marched to the Tower near Vicenza, in order to join with the others, and lay wafte the Corn-Fields of the Padouans. But after they had waited in that Post feveral Days in vain, the Germans being reduced to a very fmall Number, and in no Condition to make good the Promifes by which they had invited them, they laid afide VOL. VI. their S

274

A. D. their Defign against the Padouan, and 1514 having got from the Germans Fifteen Hundred Foot to join with their own . Forces, which confifted of Seven Hundred Men at Arms, Seven Hundred light Horfe, and Three Thoufand Five Hundred Foot, they marched to befiege Cittadella, which had a Garrison of Three Hundred light Horfe. The Spaniards marched all Night with great Expedition, and arrived before the Town two Hours after Sun-rife, and immediately planting a Battery took the Place the fame Day by Storm at the fecond Affault, with all the Horfe that was in it, after which they returned to their former Quarters about Three Miles from Vicenza. Alviano made no Motion, having received Orders from the Senate not to fight, but lay with his Army confifting of Seven Hundred Men at Arms, One Thoufand light Horfe, and Seven Thoufand Foot ftrongly encamped on the River Brenta, from whence he was continually haraffing the Enemy with his light Horfe, tho' afterwards, for the greater Security of the Army, he retired to Barciglione almost under the Gates of Padoua.

THE WARS IN ITALY. 275 Padoua. But the whole Country being 4. D. exhaufted by the Incurfions and Ravages of both the Armies, the Spaniards in Want of Provifions retired to their firft Quarters from whence they had fet out, abandoning the City of Vicenza and the Caftle of Brendola feven Miles diftant from it, having no Pay or any other Means of Subfiftence but what they could raife by Contributions from Verona, Brefcia, Bergamo, and the circumjacent Territories.

AFTER the Retreat of the Spaniards Motions Alviano posted himself with the Army in of Alviaa very ftrong Camp between Battaglia" and Padoua, where having Advice that Efte had but a small and careless Garrison, he fent thither by Night Four Hundred Horfe and One Thoufand Foot, who entering the Place before they were perceived, furprifed Eighty light Horfe of the Regiment of Corvera, that Commander faving himfelf in the Caftle, and then returned to the Army. But Alviano having received fome Reinforcements prefented himfelf before Montagnana, and offered Battle to the Viceroy, who, because he S 2 was

D. was much inferior in Force, declined an ^{1514.} Engagement, and retired into the Polefine of Rovigo; fo that Alviano meeting with no more Opposition beyond the Adice fcoured the Country every Day up to the very Gates of Verona, whence the Viceroy, apprehending that City to be in Danger, left Three Hundred Men at Arms and a Thoufand Foot in the Polefine, and with the reft of the Army entered Verona.

Brave Conduct of Renzo da Ceri.

276

BUT much greater were the Diftreffes of Crema, which was in a manner befieged by the Troops of the Duke of Milan that were quartered in the adjacent Towns and Villages; for that Fortrefs laboured under a Scarcity of Provisions, and a raging Peftilence, and the Garrifon had been feveral Months without Pay, and in Want of Ammunition and many other Necessaries, which had been often demanded; fo that Renzo, doubting whether he could any longer fupport himfelf, had in a manner protefted to the Venetians against their Neg-But the fame happy Succefs still ligence. attended him, for he had the good Fortune to attack Silvio Savello, who was at the Head

THE WARS IN ITALY. 277 Head of Two Hundred Men at Arms, A. an Hundred light Horfe, and Fifteen Hundred Foot, and to come upon him fo fuddenly that he immediately broke his Troops, Silvio himfelf with fifty Men at Arms efcaping by Flight to Lodi. After this Action the Venetians put into Crema a. fresh Supply of Provisions, and Count Nicolo Scotto reinforced the Garrifon with Fifteen Hundred Foot. Renzo from thefe Supplies increafed in Forces and Spirits in a few Days after entered the City of Bergamo, at the Invitation of the Inhabi-He takes tants, the Spaniards flying into the Capella; Bergamo. and at the fame time Mercurio and Mala-Sin testa Baglione took Three Hundred Horfe quartered without the Walls. But a few Days after Nicolo Scotto marching with Five Hundred Italian Foot, from Bergamo to Crema, was encountered by Two Hundred Swifs, routed, and taken Prisoner, and being conducted to the Duke of Milan was ordered to be beheaded. The Lofs of Bergamo roufed the Viceroy and Prospero Colonna, who with the Spanish and Milanese Troops, to the Number of Five Thousand Foot, marched to befiege S it. . with a s

A. D. it. They planted a Battery against the 1514. Gate of St. Catherine, which did great Execution, and Renzo, finding that the The City Place could not be defended, capitulated on Condition that he might march out with all his Soldiers and their Baggage, but without Sound of Trumpet, and his Colours lowered, leaving the Town to the Difcretion of the Viceroy, who compounded with the Inhabitants for Eighty Thoufand Ducats.

Alviano Surprises Rowigo.

278

BUT during these Transactions at Crema and Bergamo, an Action that was highly celebrated, and required extraordinary Diligence and Speed, was performed by Alviano in the Town of Rovigo. In this Place were quartered above Two Hundred Spanish Men at Arms, who imagined themselves very fecure because they had the River Adice between them and the Venetians. Alviano unexpectedly laying a Bridge at the Town of Anguillara, paffed the River with incredible Speed at the Head of fome active Troops, and arriving before the Town, where the Gate had already been feized by an Hundred of his Soldiers,

THE WARSIN ITALY. 279 Soldiers, whom he had fent before him A. D. dreffed like Peafants, it being Market-day, 1514. he entered the Place, and made the whole Garrifon Prifoners. On this Misfortune the reft of the Spaniards who were quarter'd in the Polefine retired to Badia as the ftrongeft Place in the Country, and afterwards wholly abandoning the Polefine and alfo Lignago, fled away towards Ferrara.

Rovigo being taken, Alviano marched with the Army to Oppiano near Lignago, Motions whither he had also conducted by the of the River his Fleet of armed Barks, and from thence to Villa Cerea near to Verona, a Poft from which, if he could not fucceed in reducing that Town, which had a Garrifon of Two Thousand Spanish and a Thousand German Foot, he defigned to annoy and diffrefs it during the Winter. But on Advice that Three Hundred Men at Arms, Five Hundred light Horfe, and Six Thousand Foot of the Enemy were on their March towards Lignago, being apprehenfive that they would intercept his Provisions, and force him to an Engage-S 4 ment,

280

A: D. ment, he decamped, and marched along 1514. obferving them till they came to the Adice. which they paffed at Albereto, in great Diftrefs for Want of Provisions, which were intercepted by the light Horfe and: the armed Barks. Here the General, having Advice that the Spaniards had recovered Bergamo, and were returning towards Verona, refolved not to wait for them, but fent his Men at Arms by Land, to Padoua, while he himfelf with the Foot, Baggage and Artillery, to avoid the Rains and the deep and miry Roads, embarked in the Night, and went down the Adice, not without Fear of being attacked by the Enemy, who were prevented by the too great Height of the Waters; but Alviano, after landing his Troops conducted them with his usual Expedition in Safety to Padoua, where the Men at Arms were arrived two Days before. Some time after he distributed the Army into Quarters between Padoua and Trevigi, and the Viceroy and Prospero Colonna, after affigning the Troops their Posts in the Polefine of Rovigo, fet out for Inspruck to affist at a Council m he i the i to fire and

THE WARS IN ITALY. 281 Council to be held by the Emperor on the A. D. prefent Occurrences.

THE Country of Friuli this Year enjoyed more Reft than ufual through the Captivity of Frangipane, who was the principal Instrument in diffurbing the Peace of that Province. The Venetians, therefore, knowng how. much they were interefted in keeping him a Prisoner, had refused to exchange him with Gian Pagolo Baglione. It had been treated before of exchanging this General for Bernardin Carvagiale, and Gian Pagolo had obtained Leave of the Spaniards to go to Rome upon his Parole of Honour to return if the Exchange did not take Effect. But while the Affair was in Agitation Carvagiale happened to die, and Pagolo, affirming that he was fet at Liberty by this Event, refused to return un-Case of der the Power of him who had taken him Honour. Prisoner. About the fame time, which was towards the End of the Year, the Adorni and Fiefchi, being fecretly favoured, as it was thought, by the Duke of Milan; entered Genoa one Night by Means of a Plot, and advancing to the Square before the flight Wound in the Hand, and took Sinibaldo dal Fiesco, Gieronimo Adorno, and Gian Camillo of Naples Prisoners.

A. D. the Palace were driven off by Ottaviano ¹⁵¹⁴ Fregolo, who with his Footguards encountering them without the Bars, and prife on valiantly fighting in Perfon above all the Genoa mifcarries reft put his Enemies to Flight, receiving a

282

£1 .

AMONG the memorable Events of this Year may be reckoned the Spectacle of Elephants in Rome, an Animal, perhaps, never feen in Italy fince the Tri-Leo X. prefented with Ele. umphs and public Games of the Romans. phants. For Emanuel King of Portugal, having deputed a very honourable Embaffy to pay Obedience to the Pontiff, accompanied it with a Multitude of Prefents, among which were two Elephants imported from India in his Ships; and the Entrance of these Creatures into Rome drew together a vaft Concourfe of People.

> A T this Juncture the King of France, who had his Mind employed on other Objects than on Pomp and Shows, was ardently intent on making all manner of Preparations

THE WARS IN IT ALY. 283 Preparations for War; and, defirous to A. D. affure himfelf of the Inclinations of the 1514. Pontiff, though determined, howfoever he stood affected, to prosecute his intended Pope fol-Enterprife, he follicited him to declare inlicited by his Favour, renewing his former Offers, of France, and declaring that, if he should be difappointed of his Alliance with him, he would accept the Conditions of the Emperor and the Catholic King which he had lately refused. He recommended to his Confideration the Power of his Kingdom, with the Confederacy and promifed Affiftance of the Venetians, the small Number of Forces of Cæfar and the King of Aragon at prefent in Italy, the extreme Want of Money of both these Kings, who were unable to pay their own Soldiers, and much lefs in a Condition to put the Swifs in Motion, who would not defcend from their Mountains unless they were paid for it : That all the People of Milan, fince they had fo feverely suffered under the Tyranny of other Lords; defired to return under the Dominion of the French : That the Pontiff had no Caufe to provoke him to employ his victorious Arms against him as an Enemy,

284

A. D. Enemy, fince the Greatness of the Kings 1514. of France in Italy, and his own in particular, had on all Occasions been of Service to the Apostolic See, for as they were always contented with the Poffeffion of their lawful Rights, they never, as manifold Experience has demonstrated, attempted Encroachments upon the reft of Italy: But far different was the Intention of Cafar and the Catholic King, whofe conftant Ambition was, either by Force of Arms, or by contracting Affinities, or by infidious Arts, to usurp the Empire of all Italy, and to bring under their Yoke the Apostolic See and the Roman Pontiffs themfelves, as well as other Powers, which has ever been the ardent Defire of Cæfar, as all the World knows. He advised him therefore to provide at once for the Security of the Church, the common Liberty of Italy, and the Grandeur of his own Family the Medici, and to embrace the Opportunity, which would never offer at another Juncture, or with any other Alliance.

By Cafar NOR was the Pope lefs follicited by the and the King of prefling Invitations of Cafar and the King Aragon.

THE WARS IN ITALY. 285

of Aragon to join in Alliance with them A. D. for the Defence of Italy, representing to him that fince their Conjunction had been powerful enough to drive the King of France out of the Dutchy of Milan, it was much more fufficient to defend that State against him. They put him in Mind of the Affront he had offered laft Year to the King, by fending Money to the Swils, when the royal Army paffed into Italy; and defired him to confider that if the King obtained the Victory he would revenge himfelf for all paft Offences, and take care to fecure himfelf from future Dangers and Sufpicions. But the Pope received deeper Impreffions from the Authority and Offers of the Swifs, who perfevering in their former Zeal offered, for Six Thoufand Rhenish Florins per Month, to posses and defend the Passes Offers of the Savifs of Monsanese, Mongineura, and Finale with Six Thoufand Men; and, for Forty Thousand Florins per Month, to attack the Dutchy of Burgundy with Twenty Thousand Men.

THE Pontiff, in this fluctuating State, irre-

286

A. D. irrefolute in himfelf, fpurred by his In-¹⁵¹⁴ clinations, and bridled by his Fears, gave Answers to each Party in general Terms, and delayed as much as poffible to declare his Mind. But the King of France infifting, almost to Importunity, on a De-Pope's Answer to claration, he finally answered that none the King better knew how much he was inclined to the King's Interest than his Majesty himfelf, fince he could not but remember how warmly he had follicited him to pass into Italy at a Time he might have obtained the Victory without Danger or Bloodshed: That his Sollicitations, for Want of obferving that Secrefy which he had to often recommended, were come to the Knowledge of the others, to the Detriment of the King as well as of himfelf; for he had been in Danger of being molefted by them, and the Obstructions to the King's Enterprife were increafed, the Adverfaries having re-established their Affairs in fuch a Manner that the Victory could not be obtained without very great Danger, and vaft Effusion of Blood. Befides, the Power of the Turkish Sultan being lately augmented by fuch extraordinary

THE WARS IN ITALY. 287 nary Succefs, it was neither agreeable to A. D. his Nature, nor confiftent with the Duty of a Pontiff, to counfel or encourage the Christian Princes to go to War with one another : He could not therefore but advife his Majesty to defist from his Preparations in Hopes of a more favourable Opportunity, at which, whenever it should happen, he should find in him the fame Difposition to promote his Glory and Greatnefs, which he might have difcerned fome Months ago. This Anfwer, tho' it did not fo clearly express his Mind, would not only have deprived the King of all Hopes that the Pontiff would favour his Defign, but, if it had come to his Knowledge, would in a manner have · affured him that he would have oppofed him both with his Counfels and Arms: Thefe were the Transactions of the Year 1514.

В U T Death, which frequently interrupts the vain Projects of Mortals in their Death of most hopeful Course, by its Interposition Lewis XII delayed the impending War. The King France. of France too freely indulging himself in the A. D. the Embraces of his young and beautiful ^{1515.} Bride but Eighteen Years old, not confidering his Age and the Weaknefs of his Conftitution, was feized with a Fever, and a Flux coming upon it, he was in a manner fuddenly carried off the Stage of this World, making the first Day of the Year 1515 memorable by his Decease.

288

HE was a just Prince, and greatly His Character and beloved by his Subjects, but met with great Mutability of Fortune, for neither Fortune. before he came to the Crown, nor during his Reign, was he attended with any conftant and fteady Course of Prosperity or Adverfity; if we confider that from a petty Duke of Orleans he most happily fucceeded to the Crown of France by the Death of Charles younger than himfelf and of his two Sons; that he acquired with the greatest Facility the Dutchy of Milan, and afterwards the Kingdom of Naples, by which he had for fome Years together all Italy in a manner at his Devotion; that he recovered Genoa, which had rebelled, in the most prosperous Manner, and that he obtained a most glorious Victory

THE WARS IN ITALY. 289 Victory over the Venetians, at which two A.D. last happy Events he was present in Per-On the other Side, while yet a fon. Youth, he was constrained by Lewis XI. to marry his barren and deformed Daughter, without procuring to himfelf by that Matrimony the Favour or Protection of his Father-in-law, after whofe Decease he was excluded from the Regency during the Minority of the new King by the Authority and Grandeur of Madam de Bourbon, and was in a manner neceffitated to take Refuge in Bretany, where he was afterwards taken in the Battle of St. Aubin. and confined two Years in a Prifon. To these Misfortunes we may add the Siege and Famine that he endured in Novara, his many Defeats in the Kingdom of Naples, the Lois of the State of Milan, of Genoa, and of all the Towns that he had taken from the Venetians, and the War made upon him by most potent Enemies in the Kingdom of France, at which Time he faw his Dominions exposed to very great Dangers. He died however at a Time when his Affairs feemed to be taking a prosperous Course, fince VOL. VI. he

A. D. he had defended his Kingdom, made 1515: Peace, contracted Affinity, and was in very clofe Union with the King of England, and in great Hopes of recovering the Dutchy of Milan.

290

LEWIS XII. was fucceeded by Mon-Francis I. feigneur François d' Angoulesme, the next King of France. in Succeffion of the Males of the Blood Royal, and of the fame Line of the Dukes of Orleans, being preferred before the Daughters of the deceafed King by the Disposition of the Salic Law, of very antient Establishment in the Kingdom of France, by which, while there are any Males of the fame Line, the Females are excluded from the royal Dignity. The His Cha- Public had conceived fo high an Opinion. racter and of the Valour, Magnanimity, natural, Conduct. Difpofition, and generous Spirit of the new King, that it was univerfally acknowledged there had not for a very long Courfe of Years paft a Prince of greater Expectations afcended the Throne; for he, was mightily recommended to the public Fayour by his perfonal Appearance, being in the Flower of his Age, Twenty-two Years, old, ٢.

THE WARSIN ITALY.

291

old, and very handfome and well made, A. D. 1515. as well as by his extraordinary Liberality, his extremely obliging Carriage towards' every Body, and his perfect Knowledge in many Affairs of State; but above all he was the Favourite of the Nobility, on whom he conferred diftinguishing Marks' of his Favour. He affumed, together with the Title of King of France, that of Duke of Milan, as belonging to him not only by the antient Rights of the Dukes of Orleans, but also as comprehended in the Inveftiture made by the Emperor purfuant to the League of Cambray, having the fame Inclination to recover it as was' in his Predeceffors. To this Undertaking he was stimulated, not only by his own' Impulfe, but also by all the young Noblemen of France, by the Glory of Gaston de Foix, and by the Memory of fo many Victories obtained by the last Kings in That he might not however put Italy. others on their Guard in order to refift him before the Time, by Advice of his Counfel, he diffembled his Intentions, and in the mean time applied himfelf to negotiate, as is cuftomary for new Monarchs, Treaties T 2

A. D. Treaties of Friendship with other Princes. 1515. many of whom foon fent Ambasiadors to him. He received them all with a chearful Countenance, but above all the reft those of the King of England. That Prince, the Offence he had received from the Catholic King still remaining fresh upon his Memory, was defirous to perpetuate the Friendship begun by King Lewis. At the fame Time arrived an Embaffy from the Archduke, at the Head of which was M. de Nausau, with Marks of great Submiffion as to a Sovereign Lord, becaufe his Master was in possession of the Earldom of Flanders, which acknowledged the Superiority of the Crown of France. Both these Embassies had a quick and eafy Difpatch; for the Confederacy between the King of England and the late King was renewed on the fame Conditions, and during their refpective Lives, referving the Space'of three Years for the King of Scotland to accede to it. And many of those Difficulties which, it was imagined, would have obstructed an Agreement with the Archduke, were ceafed. That Prince, who was

292

THE WARS IN ITALY.

293

1515.

was just come of Age, and had taken A. D. the Government of his States into his own, Hands, was induced to make this Step by feveral Motives; as, the Inftances of the People of Flanders, who were unwilling to have Wars with the Kingdom of France; a Defire to fecure himfelf from the Obftacles which the French might throw in his Way to the Succeffion of the Kingdom of Spain after the Death of his Grandfather; and also because he thought it unfafe to leave himfelf without any Tyes of Friendship between the united Powers of France and England; and, on the other Side, the King of France was very defirous to remove all Occafions that might conftrain the Archduke to be governed by the Counfels and Authority of either of his Grandfathers.

A PEACE therefore and perpetual Peace be-Confederacy was concluded between them tween the in the City of Paris, with Leave referved King of France for Cæfar and the Catholic King, without and the whofe Authority the Archduke took upon duke. him to make the Agreement, to accede within three Months. By this Conven-tion T 3

294

A. D. tion was confirmed the Marriage, fo often negotiated, between the Archduke and Renée Daughter of the late King Lewis, with a Dowry of Eight Hundred Thour fand Crowns, and the Dutchy of Berry in Perpetuity to her and her Children. The Princefs, being as yet of a very tender Age, was to have this Dowry affigned to her as foon as the came to be nine Years old; on condition that the thould renounce all Rights of Inheritance either by the Father's or Mother's Side, and namely those which might belong to her on the Dutchies of Milan and Bretany; and the King was obliged to furnish the Archduke with Men and Ships for his Voyage to Spain, after the Death of the Catholic King. At the King's Request the Duke of Guelderland was nominated, and fome affirm that, befides the Premifes, it was agreed that within three Months an Embaffy should be fent to the King of Aragon, with a Commission from both Parties, to demand of him to caufe the People to take an Oath to the Archduke as Prince of the Kingdom of Spain, which is the Title of the prefumptive Succeffor,

to

THE WARS IN ITALY. 295 to reftore the Kingdom of Navarre; and A. D. 1515. to forbear defending the Dutchy of Milan. It is not to be doubted but that each of these two Princes had more Regard in this Confederacy to the Conveniencies it feemed to offer at prefent, than Intention to obferve it for the Time to come. For what Dependence could be placed on the promifed Nuptials, the Spoule being as yet under Four Years of Age? Or how could the King of France like to fee the Archduke espouse Renée, who, by the Marriage of her elder Sifter to the King, was invested with a Right to the Dutchy of Bretany? For the Bretons being defirous to have at one time or other a Duke of their own; when Anne their Dutchefs contracted a fecond Marriage, covenanted that if her first-born Child came to the Crown of France, the Dutchy of Bretany should defcend to the next born, and to the Descendants of that Birth.

THE King of France treated also with the Catholic King on prolonging the Truce made with his Predecetfor, but with an Exception to the Condition of not T 4 molefting,

296

A.D. molefting, during the Truce, the Dutchy 1515 of Milan. He was in Hopes that he fhould eafily after this come to an Agreement with Cacfar, for which Purpofe he kept the Venetians, who offered to renew the League made with the late King, in Sufpenfe, chufing to be at Liberty to engage with Cacfar againft them. But the Catholic King, though much influenced, as he Ferdinan- was always, by his Defire to keep all Wars do refules at a Distance from the Frontiers of Spain, to prolong the Truce yet confidering that the Prolongation of the with the Truce would give great Umbrage to the French. Swifs, and that fuch a Step, by which his Words would be no longer credited, nor. his Advice regarded, might induce the Pontiff, who had hitherto ftood doubtful, to embrace the Friendship of the French, he at last refused to prolong the Truce but on the fame Conditions on which the late King had renewed it.

> FRANCIS therefore barred from all Hopes on that Quarter, and having lefs Reafon to expect that Cæfar would enter into an Agreement with him contrary to the Will and Advice of the King of Aragon, confirmed

THE WARS IN ITALY. 297 confirmed anew the League with the Vene-A. D. tian Senate in the fame Form in which it had been made by his Predeceffor. There Francis remained now the Pontiff and the Swifs ; renews the League of these latter he demanded Admittance with the for his Ambassadors, but they continuing Venetiant. as inexorable as ever refused to grant them a Pafs; and with the Pontiff, on whole Will the Florentines entirely depended, he proceeded no farther at prefent than to advife him to keep himfelf free from all Obligations of any Kind, that whenever he should be admonished by the Progress of Affairs to come to a Refolution it might be in his Power to chuse the better Part, affuring him at the fame time that there was no Perfon upon Earth more devoted to him than himfelf, or from whom his Holiness might expect a more fincere Affection, more of Honour and Integrity, or more advantageous Conditions for himfelf and his Family.

THE King having laid thefe Founda-Francis tions for his Proceedings, began with great prepares Application to provide himfelf with a good Fund of Money, and to augment his Eftablishment

A. D. Eftablishment of Lances to Four Thou-1515. fand, publishing abroad that he had no Intention to act offenfively this Year, but only to put himfelf in a State of Defence against the Swifs, who threatened, if he did not fulfil the Convention made in the Name of the late King at Dijon, to make an Irruption into Burgundy or Dauphiné. This Diffimulation paffed with many for real Truth, from the Example of the last Kings, who had always avoided involving themselves in new Wars in the first Year of their Reign ; but it made not the fame Impression on the Minds of Cafar and the King of Aragon, who were apprehensive of the King's Youth, and of the Facility with which he could, beyond what was ufual with the other Kings, ferve himfelf with the Forces of the whole Kingdom of France, in which he was vaftly beloved and efteemed. Befides, it was known that King Lewis had left great Preparations, whence it appeared that, fince there were no Apprehensions from England, the War was not the Confequence of a new Refolution taken by the King, but rather the Execution

298

THE WARS IN ITALY. 299 Execution of what had been before re- 4. D. folved.

CÆSAR therefore and the Catholic King, that they might not be oppreffed without Means for Defence, earneftly follicited an Alliance with the Pontiff and the Swifs. The Pontiff amused both Parties with fair Speeches, and endeavoured to feed them all with various Hopes, but declined as yet to make any politive Declaration. As for the Swifs, the Ardor of their first Refentment not only continued but still increased, the Causes of the public Indignation commenced from a Refufal to augment their Penfions, and from King Lewis's inviting German Foot to lift themfelves in his Service, with his uttering abufive and difdainful Speeches against their Nation, being aggravated by private Grievances, Uneafinefs and Ambition, by the Jealoufy which the Populace had conceived of many private Perfons, who had received Prefents and Penfions from the King of France, and becaufe those who were most ardently zealous in opposing the Leaders of the Party that favoured the French,

A. D. French, then commonly called GALLI-1515. CANS, having, on the Merit of their Services, with the Favour of the common People, afcended to Honour and Greatnefs, were apprehenfive of a Diminution of their Authority if the Republic should again enter into Engagements with the Crown of France. Hence the public Councils and Debates not being managed with a Zeal for the common Good, but by Ambition and civil Diffention, the Intereft of those who opposed the Gallicans Swils reprevailed, and it was refolved that the vaft, ject the Offers of or rather profuse, Offers of the French the French should be rejected.

Confederacy of $C \alpha f a r$, King of Aragon, and the Swifs.

300

In this Disposition of Minds and Circumftances the Ambassifadors of Cæsar, the King of Aragon, and Duke of Milan affembled in Council with the Swiss, and contracted with them, in the Name of their Princes, a Confederacy for the Defence of Italy, referving Time for the Pope to accede till the Sunday called Lætare in the next Lent. In this Treaty it was agreed that, in order to oblige the King of France to renounce his Pretensions to the ten 1

THE WARS IN ITALY.

201

the Dutchy of Milan, the Swifs, on the A. D: Monthly Payment of Thirty Thousand Crowns by the other Confederates, should invade Burgundy or Dauphinë; and that the Catholic King should, with a potent Army, enter the Kingdom of France, either by the Way of Perpignan or of Fontarabia, that the French King being obliged to defend his own Dominions might not have it in his Power, though he were never fo much inclined, to molest the Dutchy of Milan.

THE Refolution of the King was kept fecret till June, but at last from the Greatness of his Preparations, and the Care and Diligence with which they were carried on, it was imposfible to diffemble the Occafion of fo confiderable a Movement; for the King had provided himfelf with immenfe Sums of Money, enlifted great Numbers of German Foot, fent a large. Train of Artillery towards Lions, and laft of all difpatched into Guyenne Pietro Navarra, with Orders to levy Ten Thousand Foot on the Frontiers of Navarre. The King had lately taken this Officer into his Service. 6 1

2.101

A: D: Service, because the King of Aragon being

202

1515. incenfed against him, as looking upon him to be in a great measure the Caufe of the ill Succefs of the Battle of Ravenna; had never confented to pay his Ranfom, whichwas rated at Twenty Thouland Ducats, and had been given by the late King to the Marquis of Rothelin, to indemnify him in Part for the Hundred Thousand Crowns which he had paid for his Ranfom in England. But the new Monarch refolving to have the Benefit of his Service, had, PietroNa. when he came to the Crown, defrayed warra en his Ranfom himfelf, and afterwards taken ters into the French him into his Pay, Pietro having previoufly; to clear his Honour, fent his Excufes to Service. the King of Aragon for giving Way to Neceffity when he found himfelf abandoned by him, furrendering at the fame time into his Hands the Eftate which the King had beftowed on him in the Kingdom of Naples.

THE Public then being convinced that the War was prepared against Milan, and that the King refolved to make the Expedition in Perfon, Francis began openly to

THE WARS IN ITALY.

303 to follicit the Pope to join with him, em- A: D: ploying for that Purpofe, befides a Multitude of Persuasions and other Instruments. the Mediation of Giuliano his Brother; Grand who had lately married Philiberta, Sifter Marriage of Charles Duke of Savoy, Aunt to the Pope's King by the Mother's Side, and had fettled Brother, on her a Dowry of an Hundred Thoufand Crowns of the Pope's Money. This Alliance put the King in Hopes that the Pope would incline to be his Friend, having contracted, fo near an Affinity with him; and the rather becaufe having before treated with the Catholic King about matching Giuliano with a Kinfwoman of his of the Family of Cardona, it appeared that more out of Respect to him than for any other Reafon he had preferred this Match to the other. And the King did not doubt' but Giuliano would heartily promote his Interest with the Pope, from an ambitious Defire of acquiring by his Means fome State fufficient to fupport him in a Mannerfuitable to fo grand a Marriage, and of more firmly establishing and rendering perpetual the Government of the Cities of Modena, Reggio, Parma and Piacenza; which

304

A. D. which the Pope had lately given him, ¹⁵¹⁵ and in which he could hardly expect to maintain himfelf, without the Favour of mighty Princes, after the Death of his Brother.

> But the Hopes of the King began foon to be blafted, for the Pope had granted to the King of Aragon the Croiffades* of the Kingdom of Spain for two Years, by which, it was believed, he would raife above a Million of Ducats; and had befides given a very favourable Audience to Alberto da Carpi and Girolamo Vich, Ambafiadors of Cafar and the Catholic King, who were very affiduous in their Attendance on him, and were thought to communicate in all his Counfels. The Pope industriously kept the Public in this State of Ambiguity, giving fair Words, and shewing the best of Intentions to those who interceded for the King of France, without effectually coming to any Conclusion, but acting as one who -

* A Tax, fo called becaufe it was levied for the Support of those who wore the Badge, and fought under the Banner of the Crois against the Infidels, as in the Holy Wars. THE WARS IN ITALY. 305 who defired above all things that the A. D. Dutchy of Milan should not fall into the Hands of foreign Princes.

THE King therefore, willing to be fatisfied of the Pope's Disposition, deputed to him new Ambaffadors, among whom was Guillaume Budé of Paris, a Man of profound, and perhaps fingular, Erudition in the Studies of Humanity, as well Greek as Latin, above all the Men of our Times. After these he sent Antonio Maria Palavicino, a Perfon acceptable to the Pontiff; but he might have fpared all this Trouble, for Leo had, before his Arrival, very pri-Pope confederates vately, as far back as July, entered into a gainfi the Convention with the other Princes for the French. Defence of the State of Milan. But as he was willing that this Refolution fhould remain an abfolute Secret till the Neceffity of Affairs constrained him to declare himfelf, and was moreover defirous that his Declaration should be supported by some Excufe, he fometimes demanded the King's Confent that the Church should keep Poffeffion of Parma and Piacenza, and fometimes made other Petitions, with an Intent VOL. VI. that TT

306

A. D. that from a Denial of one or other of 1515. his Demands it might appear that it was Neceffity rather than Choice that induced him to join with the King's Enemies; yet doubting that the King would deny him nothing that he could with any manner of Decency propose, he continued to amuse him with various, ambiguous, and irresolute Answers.

, 177/10 1. J By T. Leo, was paid in his own Coin, and was treated by others in the fame cunning and artful Manner; for Ottaviano Fregofo, Doge of Genoa, dreading the formidable Preparations of the King of France, and on the other Hand apprehenfive of Danger from the Succefs of the Confederates, on account of the Inclination of the Duke of Milan and the Swifs to his Adverfaries, had, by the Mediation of the Duke of Bourbon, very Ottavia- privately entered into an Agreement with the King of France, having, both while capitulates with the Treaty was under Negotiation, and the French after it was concluded, with the greatest Constancy always affured the Pope of the contrary. And because Ottaviano had been

THE WARS IN ITALY. 307 A. D. been an old and intimate Friend and 1515. Acquaintance of Leo and his Brother Giuliano, who had favoured him in his Attempt to make himfelf Doge, the Pontiff repofed fo much Confidence in him, that when the Duke of Milan, fuspecting his Defign from general Report, was disposed to attack him with Four Thoufand Swifs, who were already advanced to Novara, in conjunction with the Adormi and Fielchi, his Holinefs interposed, and prevented their further Proceedings.

THE Articles on which Ottaviano The Concapitulated were in Substance as follows :: ditions. That the King should be reftored to the Dominion of Genoa, together with the Castelletto: That Ottaviano should divest himfelf of the Title of Doge, and be conftituted by the King perpetual Governor, with Power to difpose of the Offices of Genoa: That the King should give him the Command of One Hundred Lances, invest him with the Order of St. Michael, and fettle on him, an annual Provision during Life: That the King should not rebuild the Fortress of Codifa, U 2 which and a f

A. D. which had been a great Eyefore to the 1515. Genoefe, and fhould grant to the City of Genoa all those Covenants and Privileges which had been difannulled and burnt by King Lewis: And lastly, that he should affign a certain Portion of Ecclesiaftic Revenues to Federigo Archbishop of Salerno, Ottaviano's Brother; and to Ottaviano himself, if he should ever happen to be driven out of Genoa, some Lordships in Provence.

308

WHEN this Capitulation came to be Ottaviano justifies made public it was no hard Matter for his Con-Ottaviano to justify his Refolution, becaufe, duct. as every one knew, he had just Reason to be afraid of the Duke of Milan and the Swifs. What only cast fome Stain upon his Character was his frequently repeated Denial of the Truth to the Pope, from whom he had received fo many Favours, and not keeping his Word with him, in which he had promifed to make no Agreement without his Confent. However in a long Letter which he afterwards wrote to the Pope in his Justification, after he had accurately laid before him all the c 11 1. Gitt Reafons

THE WARSIN ITALY. 309 Reafons that had induced him, with all A. D. the Excuses he could make in Defence of his Honour, and of his Proceedings, in which he had by no means acted in Contempt of that Devotion which was due to him as Pontiff and his Benefactor, he concludes that his Justification would be more difficult if he were to write to private Perfons, or to a Prince who meafured the Affairs of State by private Confiderations; but fince he wrote to as wife a Prince as any in this Age, whole Wifdom enabled him to judge that it was impoffible for him to fecure his State by any other Method, it was superfluous to make Excufes to one who knew already, and perfectly underftood what was lawful, or at least usual for Princes to do, not only when reduced to fuch a Neceffity, but even for Improvement of their States, and putting them in a more flourishing Condition.

BUT by this Time the Face of Affairs was altered, and Words and Counfels were exchanged for Deeds and Execution; for the King of France was arrived at Lions, U 3 attended attended by all the Nobility of France A. D. 1515 with the Dukes of Lorrain and Guelderland, on his March towards the Moun-King of tains with a greater and more flourishing France marches Army than had for a very long Time; for Italy. passed out of France into Italy. The King was fecure from being molefted beyond the Mountains, for the King of Aragon, who had at first, from an Apprehension that these vast Preparations might be turned against himself, guarded his Frontiers, and that the People might with the more Alacrity fight in Defence of Navarre, united for ever that Kingdom to Castile, as foon as he was fatisfied that the War manifestly directed its Courfe to Italy, difbanded all the Troops that he had affembled, and had no more Regard to the Promife which he had made that Year to the Confederates to make War in France, than he had to the Promifes he had made them in the Year preceding.

310

> A T the Fame of the March of the French Army, the Viceroy, who, after he . had for many Months remained in a kind of

THE WARS IN ITALY. 311.

of Truce with the Venetians, was arrived A. D. in the Vicentine in order to approach the 1515. Enemy, who were very ftrongly encamped in the Neighbourhood of Olmi near to Vicenza, returned with his Army to Verona, with a Defign, as he reported, to march to the Defence of the Dutchy of Milan. The Pontiff also ordered his own Men at Arms and those of the Florentines to march for Lombardy under the Command of his Brother, who was elected General of the Church, in order to fuccour the faid Dutchy, according to his Agreement made not many Days before with the other Confederates, tho', with his ufual Diffimulation, he pretended Pope that they were defigned only for the Secu-diffembles rity of Piacenza; Parma, and Reggio, King of and had gone fuch great Lengths with France. the French Ambassadors that the King, perfuading himfelf that he might depend upon his Alliance, had difpatched Orders from Lions to his Ministers with full Powers for concluding an Agreement, confenting that the Church should keep Poffellion of Piacenza and Parma till the bairu ·U 4 received es no

THE HISTORY OF 312 A. D. received from him fuch a Recompence as 1515. the Pope himfelf fhould approve.

BUT all these Remedies, for Reasons which will appear hereafter, were of no-Service; it was decreed that the Dutchyof Milan should be faved or lost only with the Danger and by the Blood of the Swifs. That People, not retarded by any Neglect, or the fmall Supply of Money, defcended with all Diligence into the Milanefe, to the Number of more than Twenty Thousand Men, Ten Thoufand of whom drew off towards the into Italy. Mountains, with a Defign to poffefs themfelves of the narrow Paffes of the Valleys which from the Foot of the Alps that divide Italy from France extend themfelves into wide and open Plains, and fo prevent the Progress of the French. . 5

Swi/s

descend

THIS Refolution of the Swifs greatly difturbed the King, who before had affured himfelf of Victory from the Multitude of his Forces: For his Army confifted of Two Thousand Five Hundred Lances, Twenty-two Thousand German

· il thill

· · · · · · · · ·

THE WARS IN ITALY.

313 German Foot commanded by the Duke A. D. 1515. of Guelderland, Ten Thousand Balques *, (fo were called the Infantry inlifted by Pietro Navarra) Eight Thousand French, and Three Thousand Pioneers, who received the fame Pay as the other Foot. French The King, on confulting with his Officers, confult on agreed that, confidering the Valour of Alps. the Swifs, it would be impoffible to force them from the ftrong and narrow Paffes even with a much fuperior Number, which could be of no Service in fuch strait Places; that it would be difficult to perform any thing of Moment in a fhort Time, and more difficult to ftay long in fo barren a Country, with fo great an Army, tho' vaft Convoys of Provisions were continually on the Roads towards the Mountains. In these Perplexities fome, who had more Hopes from making a Diversion than from a direct Attack, proposed detaching Eight Hundred Lances by the Way of Provence, and fending Pietro

In the Original Guaschi, which the French properly enough translate Bafques, which we chufe to keep, and is as much as to fay Biscayners, for Navarro, as we read before, was ordered to levy Soldiers on the Frontiers of Navarre, which joins to Bifcay.

A. D. Pietro Navarra with his Ten Thousand 1515-Basques by Sea, who might join with the, Lances at Savona. Others objected against this Scheme, that fo great a Compass required too much Time, that the Forces would be weakened, and the Reputation. of the Enemy too much increased by betraying a Want of Refolution to encounter with them. It was then refolved that, without turning much out of the Road they were in, they fhould attempt a Paffage at fome other Quarter, which either might not be observed, or at least not fo well guarded by the Enemy; for which Purpose Emard de Prye should march with Four Hundred Lances and Five Hundred Foot by the Way of Genoa, not with Hopes of making a Diversion, but to infest Alessandria, and the other Towns on this Side the Po.

Two Roads over the Alps.

314

THERE are two Roads over the Alps which are ufually taken by those who travel from Lions to Italy; one by Monfanefe, a Mountain within the Dominion of the Duke of Savoy, which is the shortest, ftraiteft, and generally the most frequent-. ...

ed;

THE WARS IN ITALY. 315 ed; the other winds about from Lions to A. D. Grenoble, and passes over the Mountain of 1515-Mongineura, within the Jurifdiction of Dauphiné; both the Roads meet at Sufa, where the Plain begins to open, but that of Mongineura, though fomewhat longer, vet being eafier, and more convenient for conveying the Artillery, was always taken by the French Armies. The Swils, intenton guarding thefe two Paffes and fome others that led to the neighbouring Places, had posted themselves at Sula, because the Paffes lower down towards the Sea were fo narrow and fteep that it would be very difficult for the Cavalry of fo great an Army, and feemed impoffible for the Artillery to make its Way through them. On the other hand Trivulzio, whom the King had entrusted with this difficult Affair, attended by a vaft Number of Pioneers, and having about him fome fkilful and industrious Perfons, who were well experienced in the drawing of Artillery, whom he ordered to view the Places that had been proposed, employed himself in fearching out the eafieft Way of Paffage that was not obstructed by the Swifs; the Army in the

A. D. the mean time, the greater Part of which ¹⁵¹⁵ was extended along the Road between Grenoble and Brianfon, proceeded but flowly, in Expectation of what would be refolved, and alfo of receiving fome neceffary Supplies of Provision.

316

AT this Juncture the King, who had fet out from Lions, was addreffed by a Gen-Henry ex- tleman deputed from the King of England, cited who, in the Name of his Mafter, remonagainft the King strated, in very strong Terms, against of France. his diffurbing the Peace of Chriftendom by his Paffage into Italy.' The Caufe of fo great a Change was, that Henry being jealous of the Friendship contracted between the Archduke and the King of France, whole Affairs, he fancied, went on with too profperous a Career, had begun to hearken to the Ambaffadors of the Catholic King, who never ceafed demonftrating how pernicious to him he would find at last the Greatness of the King of. France, whom, on account of his natural Hatred, and becaufe he had made his first Campaign against him, he could not but regard as his bitter Enemy. But he was more

THE WARS IN IT ALY. 317 more excited against him by Emulation, A. D. and Envy of his Glory, which he imagined would increase beyond Measure if he should fubdue the State of Milan. He confidered with himfelf that when he came to the Crown, though he found his Kingdom at perfect Reft, and grown very rich by a long Peace, and himfelf in Poffeffion of fo great a Treasure accumulated by his Father, yet he had not, till after fome Years, ventured to attack the King of France, and then at an Opportunity when he was alone, furrounded by fo many Enemies, and worn out by fo many Labours and Vexations. But the prefent King, fomewhat younger than himfelf, when he came to the Crown, though he found his Kingdom wearied and exhaufted by fo many Wars, had yet ventured, in the first Months of his Reign, to undertake an Enterprife, in which he was fure to meet with Oppofition from fo many Princes. As for himfelf, he thought, with fuch great Preparations, and fo many Opportunities, he had brought back to England no Gain nor Honour but the Conquest of Tournay, and that at an infinite and and intolerable Expence; whereas the 4. D. 1515 King of France, if he obtained the Victory, as probably he would, by the Acquifition of fo fine a Dutchy, would return into his Kingdom in full Triumph and Glory, having opened a Way alfo, and, perhaps before he left Italy, taken an Opportunity, for attacking the Kingdom of Naples. Stimulated by fuch Motives and Incentives his old Antipathy eafily revived in his Breast, and as he could not for Want of Time give any Check to Francis with his Arms, and perhaps feeking alfo Occafion to furnish himself with more Pretences for justifying his Designs, he took care to fend him this dehortatory Meffage.

BUT the King of France, not retarded in his Expedition by Henry's Remonstrances, proceeded from Lions to Dauphine, where he reviewed the German Forces, arrived fome time before under The Black the Command of Robert de la Marche, and called the Black Band. These Troops had been raifed in Lower Germany, and were in high Effimation for their Valour, and conftant Faithfulnefs in the French Service. Ât 3000

218

Band.

THE WARS IN ITALY. 319

At this Time Gianjacopo da Trivulzi fig- A. D. nified to the King that it was practicable to convey the Artillery over the Mountains New Pafbetween the maritime and Costian Alps, fage over the Alps. and defcend towards the Marquifate of Saluzzo, where, though the Difficulties were almost inconceivable, yet confidering the vaft Number of Pioneers well provided with all Manner of Tools, he could not fail at laft to fucceed: That fince there was no Guard on that Side, neither on the Tops of the Hills nor at the Entrances into the Valleys, it was better to attempt furmounting the Ruggedness of the Mountains, and the Precipices of the Dales, which, though a Work of vaft Labour, yet did not endanger the Lives of the Men, than to use Efforts for compelling the Swils to abandon the Paffes, and forcing Troops fo much dreaded, and obstinately bent to conquer or die, especially confidering that, if they met with Refistance, the Army could not continue there many Days, fince no Strength nor Art could convey, over fuch rough and barren Places, Provisions enough to fublist fo great a Multitude. This Counfel was embraced, and 320 THE HISTORY OF A. D. and the Artillery, which had refted in a 1515. Place convenient for turning it any Way, was immediately moved along that Road.

TRIVULZIO had given Notice that the Difficulty of conveying the Cannon French would be very confiderable, but it was convey their Arfound by Experience much greater than tillery over the. had been imagined, for it was necessary to Mountains with afcend to the Tops of very high and rug-Difficulty: ged Mountains, which could not be mounted without vast Labour and Toil. becaufe there were no Paths, and every now and then there wanted a fufficient Breadth for the Artillery, till it was widened Foot after Foot by the Pioneers, who still advanced before the rest, and were employed fometimes in enlarging the narrow Paffes, fometimes in levelling the Hillocks that obstructed the Way. From the Tops of the Mountains they defcended by very abrupt Precipices, most frightful even to behold, into the vafily deep Grounds near the Channel of the River Argentiera, in which Defcent the Horfes that drew the Artillery, though very numerous,

together with the Shoulders of the Pioneers

that

THE WARS IN ITALY. 321 that attended it, not being fufficient to A. D. guide and fupport it, they were often obliged to difinount the heavy Pieces of Cannon, and to let them down, fufpended by very thick Cables, by the Hands of the Soldiers, who in these difficult Circumstances were ready to undergo all manner of Fatigue. Nor was their Toil at an End after they had passed the first Mountains and Valleys, for they had others to pass with the fame Difficulties. At last, after a continued Labour of five Days, the Artillery arrived in the Plains of the Marquifate of Saluzzo on this Side the Mountains, having met with fuch Obstructions and Difficulties, that it is most certain if there had been any Refiftance, or if the Mountains, as the greater Part of them ufually are, had been covered with Snow, all Labour would have been in vain; but they were fecured from any Opposition; because the Swifs posted at Sula were intent on guarding the Places through which you must come after paffing Monfanese, Mongineura, or the neighbouring Mountains, and had imagined that it was impracticable to convey Artillery over fuch Vol. VI. X rugged

A. D. rugged Eminences; and the Seafon of the ^{1515.} Year, it being about the Tenth of August, had removed the Impediment of the Snows, which were already melted.

322

THE Men at Arms and the Foot, not without many Difficulties, paffed the Mountains at the fame time, fome by the fame Road, others by the País they call the Dragoniera, and others again over the high Tops of the Mountains of the Rocca Perotta, and of Cuni, Paffes lower down towards Provence. Monf. Palisse, after paffing by this last Road, had an Opportunity of performing a memorable Action; for departing from Singlare with four Squadrons of Horfe, under the Conduct of the Peafants, after a very long March, he arrived at Villa Franca, a Town feven Miles from Saluzzo, and of more Note than it otherwife deferves, becaufe near it rifes the formuch, celebrated River Pa. In this Place Prospero Colonna was quartered with his Company, without the least Sufpicion of Danger, because of the great Distance of the Enemy, in whom he had no Apprehenfions of that Quicknefs, which he

THE WARSIN ITALY. 323 he himfelf, who was naturally very flow, A. D. 1515. was never wont to use, and fome fay that he intended that fame Day to join the Swifs. But, however that be, it is certain that he was dining at his Table when the Troops of Paliffe came upon him, unper-profpere ceived by any before they were in the fame Colonna taken Pri-Houfe ; for the Inhabitants of the Town, forer. with whom Paliffe, intent on fo great a Prey, had before held private Intelligence, had, with as little Noife as poffible, feized the Centinels. Thus was Prospero Colonna, fo famous a General, and of fo great Importance in that War on account of his Credit and Authority in the Dutchy of Milan, taken Prisoner on the Fifteenth Day of August in a Manner not fuitable to his former Glory. With Prospero was taken Pietro Margano, a Roman. and Part of his Company, the reft at the first Alarm difperfing themfelves into various Parts made their Efcape.

THE Paffage of the French, and the Misfortune of Prospero Colonna caused an Alteration in the Counsels of every Party concerned, and changed the State of Af-X 2 fairs

324

A. D. fairs in general, creating new Difpolitions 1515. in the Minds of the Pope, the Viceroy, and the Swifs. For the Pope, who had firmly perfuaded himfelf that the King would never be able to pass the Mountains against the Opposition of the Swifs, and had great Confidence in the Valour of Prospero Colonna, being now much funk in Spirits, commanded his Nephew Lorenzo, Captain General of the Florentines, to whom, because his Brother Giuliano Pope lay ill of a lingering Fever at Florence, he alarmed had committed the Charge of conducting at the Success of the Army into Lombardy, and who three the King of France. Days after the Misfortune of Prospero was arrived at Modena, to proceed flowly. Lorenzo, taking this Opportunity to recover the Castle of Rubiera, which had been feized by Guido Rangone, and for which he paid him at last, upon their Agreement, Two Thoufand Ducats, wafted many Days in the Territories of Modena and Reggio. Befides this, the Pontiff, having recourse to his usual Arts, difpatched away very privately Cintio his Confident to the King of France, to make his Excuses for all that had hitherto paffed, and

THE WARS IN ITALY. 325 and to enter on a Treaty of Agreement A.D. by the Mediation of the Duke of Savoy, with a View that from this Beginning he might the more eafily proceed much further, if the Defence of the Dutchy of Milan fucceeded unhappily.

BUT Cardinal Bibbiena and fome Evil others, influenced more by private Paffionslors about than by the Interest of their Prince, would the Pope. have hurried the Pontiff into more precipitate Measures; for they represented to him that it was to be feared the Fame of the profperous Succefs of the French Army, and the Incitements and perhaps alfo the Affiftance of the King would encourage the Duke of Ferrara to attempt the Recovery of Medena and Reggio, and the Bentivogli to return to Bologna : That in the Midst of so many other Troubles it was difficult to contend with fo many Enemies, for which Reafon as it was a better and doubtlefs a more prudent Meafure to anticipate their Good-will by Kindnefs, and fo win their Hearts as to make them, at all Events, his faithful Friends, they therefore perfuaded him to recall X 3

A. D. recall the Bentivogli to Bologna, and re-1515. ftore Modena and Reggio to the Duke of Ferrara.

326

THIS Counfel would certainly have Faithful Counfel been followed without Delay, if Giulio de' of Cardinal Giu. Medici, Cardinal, and Legate of Bologna, whom the Pope had fent thither to take lio. upon him the Administration of Affairs in those Parts, in fo critical a Time, and to be a Moderator and Counfellor to the unexperienced Youth of Lorenzo, had not been of a contrary Opinion. The Cardinal was deeply concerned at the Difgrace which the Pope would incur from fo weak and pufillanimous a Step; a Difgrace certainly greater than the Glory that Julius had obtained by acquiring fuch confiderable Dominions to the Church. He was moved also with Grief at the Infamy and Reproach that would be caft on the Memory of his Legateship, on which he had no fooner entered, it would be faid, than he gave up Bologna, the principal City of the whole Ecclefiaftic State into the Hands of its old Tyrants, facrificing to their Revenge fo great a Number

THE WARS IN ITALY. 327 Number of the Nobility, who had openly A. D. declared against them in favour of the Apostolic See. Induced by these just Motives he sent fome proper Persons to the Pontiff, and by Reasons and Intreaties prevailed on him to hearken to safer and more honourable Counsels.

GIULIO, tho' of illegitimate Birth, Cardinal had been promoted by Leo to the Car-Ginlio ildinalship in the first Months of his Pon-legitimate tificate, in which he followed the Example of Alexander VI. as to the Effect tho' not in the Manner. For Alexander, when he created his Son Cæfar Borgia a Cardinal, proved by Witneffes, who depofed, what was true; that his Mother at the Time of his Procreation had a Hufband, inferring from hence that, according to the Prefumption of the Laws, the Son ought to be efteemed the Offspring of the Husband rather than of the Adulterer. But in the Cafe of Giulio, the Witneffes, preferring the Favour of Men before the Truth, depofed that his Mother, who was a Virgin and not married when he was begotten, had obtained of his Father Giuliano X 4 ----

A. D. Giuliano a Promife of Marriage before ^{1515.} fhe admitted him to her Embraces.

328

THESE new Events produced alfo fome Viceroy temporifes Alteration in the Difpolition of the Viceroy, who had not yet left Verona, on account of the Difficulty of taking the Field without Money, and becaufe he expected a new Supply of Troops from Cæfar, who was arrived at Infpruck, that he might leave, as Neceffity required, fufficient Garrifons in Verona and Brefcia. On these and other Pretences he began to excuse his Inactivity, and to temporife in Expectation of the Success of the Operations in the Dutchy of Milan.

> THE Swifs also were put in a Commotion by this Turn of Affairs; for immediately after the Passage of the French they retired to Pinaruolo, tho' afterwards on Advice that the King had passed the Alps, and joined his Forces at Turin, they removed to Civas, which, because the Inhabitants resulted to give them Provisions, they took by Force and plundered, and afterwards did the same at Vercelli, almost

THE WARS IN ITALY. 329 almost in the Eyes of the King, who A. D. was at Turin; but at last they assembled together at Novara, where those who were not so extremely averse to the French Interest, taking Encouragement from the Souris at bad Situation of their Affairs, began to debate about coming to an Agreement with the King of France.

Now the French Troops which came by the Way of Genoa, joining with Four Thousand Foot, paid, at the Instances of Ottaviano Fregolo, by the Genoefe, took Pope de-clares a-Posseffion first of the Town of Castellaccio, gainst the and afterwards of Aleffandria and Tortona, French. in which Cities there was not a Soldier, and made themfelves Mafters of all the Country on this Side the Po. The King advanced to Vercelli, where he received the first Information that the Pope had declared against him, the Duke of Savoy fignifying it to him in his Name. Tho' the King was extremely concerned at this Declaration of the Pontiff, he did not however fuffer his Judgment to give Way to his Indignation, but, that he might not exasperate him, commanded by public Pro-

A. D. Proclamation, both in his Army and ^{1515.} among the Troops that had taken Aleffandria, that none fhould dare to moleft or in any manner infult the Dominions of the Church.

330

THE King after this refted feveral Diforder-Days at Vercelli, waiting the Iflue of fome viour of Affairs under Negotiation with the Swifs, the Swifs. who treating without Intermiffion feemed on the other Hand full of Inconstancy and Confusion. In Novara, taking Occafion to be tumultuous becaufe the Money which the King of Aragon was obliged to pay them was not yet arrived, they fell upon the Commissaries of the Pope, and took away by Violence the Money that he had fent them, and in the fame Rage broke up from Novara with an Intention to return to their own Country; which was what many of them defired, who, having already been three Months in Italy, and loaded with Money and Plunder, were willing to carry home the Riches which they had gained in Safety to their own Houfes. But they had hardly left Novara when the King of Aragon's Money arrived,

THE WARS IN ITALY. 33I rived, and tho' at first they were fo rash A. D. as to feize it, yet reflecting on the Shame and Reproach that must refult from fuch precipitous Refolutions, they came in fome Meafure to themfelves, reftored both that and the other Money, and were contented to have it orderly distributed among them by the Commiffaries. After this they removed to Galera in Expectation of Twenty Thousand more of their Countrymen, who were faid to be on their March, and Three Thousand of them were arrived with the Cardinal of Sion, being defigned to garrifon the City of Pavia.

THE King therefore, whole Hopes of an Accommodation with the Swils were much diminished by so many Variations in their Conduct, marched from Vercelli towards Milan, leaving at Vercelli, with the Duke of Savoy, the Bastard his Brother, Lautrech, and the General of Milan, to continue the Negotiations begun with the Swils. He left also the Castle of Novara besieged, the City having opened its Gates to him at the Departure of the Swils. The Castle, after a few Days Battery,

332

A. D. Battery, furrendered on Condition of 1515. Safety to the Lives and Effects of the Garrifon. The King afterwards, having Pavia furrendered to him, paffed the Tefino, and the fame Day Gianjacopo da Trivulzi with Part of the Troops extended himfelf to San Cristofano near to Milan, and afterwards to the Suburb of the Gate of the Tefino, in Hopes that the City, which he knew to be very uneafy under the Rapines and Exactions of the Swifs and the Spaniards, and therefore defirous to return under the French Government, and to have at prefent no Garrifon, would receive him within its Walls. But the Fear of the Swifs had a mighty Influence on the People of Milan, and they had ftill fresh in their Memories what they had fuffered the last Year, when, on the Retreat of the Savis to Novara, they made an Infurrection in favour of the King of France. They refolved therefore, tho' they wished the King Success, to wait the Iffue of the Enterprife, and fent to Trivulzio to intreat him to advance no further. And the next Day they fent Ambaffadors to the King, who was at-Bu-

THE WARS IN ITALY. 333 Bufaloro, humbly to befeech his Majefty A. D. to content himfelf with the Difposition of 1515. the People of Milan, who were most devoted to his Crown, and ready to furnish him with Provisions, and not to infift on a more manifest Declaration, which would be of no Service towards a Decifion of the War, no more than it had been in their declaring themfelves laft Year for his Predeceffor, which had not in the least promoted his Cause, but had done vaft Prejudice to the City. They would have him go then in God's Name, and overcome his Enemies, affuring himfelf that when he came Master out of the Field the City of Milan would most readily receive him. The King, who was at first greatly incenfed against the Milanefe Apology of the for their Refufal to receive Trivulzio, gave Milanefe the Ambaffadors a favourable Reception, accepted. and anfwered that he was content to comply with their Defires.

FROM Bufaloro the King proceeded with his Army to Biagraffa, and while he ftaid there the Duke of Savoy, after giving an Audience to Twenty Swifs Ambaffadors

 A. D. baffadors fent to him at Vercelli, went, 1515. accompanied by the Baftard and the other Commiffioners of the King, to Galera, and contracted a Peace with the Swifs in the Name of the King on the following Articles Articles Articles Articles Conditions: That there should be a perpeof Peace tual Peace between the King and the between the French Nation of the Swifs during the Life of and Swifs. the King, and Ten Years after his Death :

334

That the Swifs and Grifons should reftore the Valleys which they had feized belonging to the Dutchy of Milan: That they fhould difcharge that State from the Obligation of paying them a yearly Penfion of Forty Thoufand Ducats : That the King should grant to Massimiliano the Dutchy of Nemours, with a yearly Penfion of Twelve Thoufand Livres, the Command of Fifty Lances, and a Wife of the Blood royal: That he fhould reftore to the Swifs the antient Penfion of Forty Thoufand Livres: That he should bestow three-Months pay on all the Swifs that were at prefent in Lombardy, or on their March thither; and pay to the Cantons at convenient Times Six Hundred Thoufand Crowns promifed by the Treaty of Dijon, befides

THE WARS IN ITALY. 335 befides Three Hundred Thouland for the A. D. Reftitution of the Valleys; and that the King fhould conftantly keep Four Thoufand Swifs in his Pay. The Powers nominated by common Confent were the Pope, in cafe he reftored Parma and Piacenza, the Emperor, the Duke of Savoy, and the Marquis of Monferrato. But no Mention was made of the Catholic King, the Venetians, or any other Italian State.

BUT this Agreement was concluded Peace and broken off almost in one Day by the off. Arrival of a new Body of Swifs *, who animated by their past Victories, and in Hopes of acquiring no less Riches than those with which they saw their Companions loaded, were utterly averse to a Peace, and to obstruct it refused to restore the Valleys; so that the first Swiss being unable to repress the Ardor and Eagerness of the others, they removed their Camp, to the Number of Thirty-five Thousand, to Moncia, in order to take up their Quarters

* Twenty Enfigns of Infantry commanded by Rossia, a Man of great Authority. Giovio.

A. D. Quarters in the Suburbs of Milan, Alberto ¹⁵¹⁵ Petra, a famous General, with a Number of Enfigns, leaving them and taking their Rout homewards by the Way of Como, which the King had purpofely left open and unguarded*.

> THE Peace then being broken almost as foon as made, Affairs returned to their former difficult and doubtful Situation, and even in a much greater Degree by the Approach of new Forces and new Armies to the Dutchy of Milan. For the Viceroy, leaving Marc' Antonio Colonna with an Hundred Men at Arms, Sixty light Horfe, and Two Thousand German Foot in Garrifon at Verona, and Twelve Hundred Germans in Brescia, was at last come to encamp on the Po near Piacenza with Seven Hundred Men at Arms, Six Hundred light Horfe, and Six Thoufand Foot, and had laid a Bridge in Readinefs for paffing the River. And that he might have no just Cause of Complaint Lorenzo

> * Above Ten Thousand Men, commanded by Alberto Pietra and Giov. Defpachio, Generals of the Bernefe, took their Way home by the Lago Maggiore and Domoffula. Giovio.

Motions of the Spanilb and Ecclefiaftic Armies.

336

THE WARS IN ITALY.

337

de' Medici, who had for many Days very A. D circumfpectly halted at Parma with his, Army of Seven Hundred Men at Arms, Eight Hundred light Horfe, and Four Thousand Foot, removed to Piacenza. But he had before, at the Request of the Swils, while they were treating with the French, fent Four Hundred light Horfe commanded by Mutio Colonna, and Lodovico Count of Pitigliano, the first an Officer of the Church, and the other of the Florentines, to ferve them in collecting Provisions; and this he did not fo much from a Defire to affift the common Caufe. as to give no Occasion to the Swils, if they came to an Accommodation with the King of France, to exclude the Pope from the Peace.

ON the other Side Bartolomeo d'Alviano, who had given the King Hopes that he Expeditious would keep the Spanish Army employed March of fo as not to have it in their Power to hurt him, as foon as he was informed that the Viceroy had left Verona, took his March from the Polefine of Rovigo, and paffing the Adice, proceeded all along the Po, Vol. VI. Y with 338 with Nine Hundred Men at Arms, Four-A. D. 1515. teen Hundred light Horfe, Nine Thoufand Foot, and a fuitable Train of Artillery, and was arrived with vaft Expedition before the Walls of Cremona. this Swiftness, unufual with the Generals of our Times, Alviano used to boast, and compare it to that of Claudius Nero, when he led a Part of the Army ordered to oppose Afdrubal on the River Metauro*.

Situation of the Armies.

Thus was the State of War not only various, but confused and much entangled. In the Neighbourhood of Milan, on one Side, was the King of France with an Army well provided with all Neceffaries, and now removed to Marignano, in order to facilitate his Conjunction with Alviano. and to obstruct that of the Spanish and Ecclefiaftic Troops with the Swifs: On the other Side lay an Army of Thirty-five Thousand Swifs, a Body of Infantry full of Fiercenefs, and hitherto in refpect to the French invincible; the Viceroy on the Po, near Piacenza, and on the high Road to Lodi.

" Livy, Dec. III. Lib. 7: and Plutarch in his Life of Hannibal.

THE WARS IN ITALY. 339 Lodi, with a Bridge laid for paffing the A. D. -River in order to join the Swifs; and in _____ Piacenza lay Lorenzo de' Medici, with the Troops of the Pope and the Florentines, ready to join the Viceroy for the fame Purpofe; Alviano, an active and daring Commander, was encamped with the Venetian Army in the Cremonele, almost on the Bank of the Po, in order to affift the King of France, either by joining him, or by diverting the Ecclefiaftic and Spanifb Armies. The City of Lodi, feated in the Middle at an equal Diftance from Milan and Piacenza, was abandoned by all, but it had been first plundered by Renzo da Ceri while he was in the Venetian Service. For that Officer, on occasion of fome Mifunderstanding between him and Alviano, had lately by Protestations, and in a manner by Threatenings, obtained of the Senate his Difmiffion, and had lifted himfelf with Two Hundred Men at Arms, and Two Hundred light Horfe, in the Service of the Pontiff; but not being able readily to get together all his Soldiers, because the Venetians had prevented many of them from going out of Padoua where they were Y 2 quartered,

A. D. quartered, he was gone from Lodi in order ¹⁵¹⁵ to raife Recruits for filling up the Regiment with which he had been taken into Pay.

340

But the Cardinal of Sion, who, being before terrified by the Negotiations which his People held with the King of France, and by the wavering Disposition of the City of Milan, had with a Thoufand -Swils, and Part of the Troops of the Duke of Milan fled to Piacenza, and from thence proceeded to Cremona to prefs the Viceroy to advance forwards, took his Way back from thence to Milan, before the French Army had, obstructed, that Road, leaving fome of his Soldiers, tho' Lodi aban- but few, to fecure Lodi, who being alarmed doned to at the Advance of the King of France to the French Marignano abandoned that City.

Pope fe- WHILE the Viceroy lay on the Bank cretly correfponds of the Po, and before Lorenzo de' Medici with the was advanced to Piacenza, his Soldiers King of intercepted Cintio fent by the Pontiff to the King of France, and as there were found upon him Briefs and credential Letters,

1.1

THE WARS IN ITALY. 341 ters, though he immediately difmiffed the A. D. Meffenger out of Reverence to the Perfon who had fent him, he began ftrongly to fuspect that the Hopes which had been given him that the Ecclefiaftic Army was to pass the Po in Conjunction with his own, were fruitlefs, and the rather becaufe about the fame time he had learnt that Lorenzo de' Medici had privately fent one of his own Attendants to the fame King. And he was not wrongly informed; for Lorenzo, either from his own Motion, or by Command of the Pope, had fent to excuse himself to the King for leading an Army against him, on account of the Neceffity he was under to obey the Pope, but that, as far as it was poffible for him, without provoking the Indignation of his Uncle, or ftaining his own Honour, he would do his utmost Endeayours to fatisfy him, as it had always been, and was now more than ever, his Defire.

BUT as foon as Lorenzo arrived at Piacenza, there began between the Viceroy and him with others that affifted on paffing in Council, a Debate whether it were beft^{the Pa}.

Υ3

to

342

to pass the Po in Conjunction, in order to A. D. 1515. join the Swifs, feveral Reasons offering on each Side. Those who were for paf-Reafons fing the River alledged that there was no for it. Reafon to diffuade them from taking Poffeffion of Lodi, and that while they were Masters of that Post, it would be difficult for Alviano to join the French Army, and practicable for themselves to join the Swifs, either by advancing towards Milan to feek them out, or by the Motion of the Swils towards them; and if the French should post themselves, as it was reported to be their Defign, or were already posted, on the Road between Lodi and Milan, they would have at their Backs the joint Forces of their Enemies, which could not but be troublefome and dangerous; and perhaps too it might not be difficult to find a Way, though by a greater Compass, to join with the Swifs: That this Refolution would be of great Service, and even neceffary to the Enterprife, both for removing from the Swifs all Occasions of entering on new Treaties of Agreement, and for augmenting their Forces, of which they ftood in Need against fo great an Army, and cfpecially

THE WARS IN ITALY. 343 especially with Horse, of which they had A. D. 1515. none; and befides it was no more than what was required from the Faith and Honour of the Pontiff and Catholic King, who were obliged to fuccour the State of Milan, and had fo often profeffed the Correspondence of their Intentions to the Swifs, who finding themfelves deceived, might from true and hearty Friends become most bitter Enemies; and, lastly, that the Interest of their own proper States required fuch a Step, because if the Swifs should lose the Battle, or make an Agreement with the King of France, there would be no Forces left in Italy fufficient to reftrain that Prince from over-running the whole Ecclefiaftic State to the very Gates of Rome.

On the other Side were offered many Reafons, and this chiefly, that it was not to be fuppofed that the King had not by Reafons this time fent Troops to take Poffeffion of against it. Lodi, and if they should find the French Masters of that Place, it would be neceffary for them to make a shameful Retreat, and, perhaps, not without Danger, fince Y 4 they they might have at the fame time the 1515 French and Venetians either in Front or Flank, and the Bridge could not be repaffed without Time, and without fome Confusion. Such a Rifque might indeed be run, if the Reward were worth the Danger; but fuppofing that Lodi fhould be abandoned to their Possession, of what Service could it prove for promoting the Succefs of the Undertaking? How could it be deemed practicable, while fo potent an Army was posted between Lodi and Milan, either for them to go and join the Swifs, or for the Swifs to come and join them? Befides, it might, perhaps, be a dangerous Step to entrust the whole Force of the Pontiff and the Catholic King in the Hands of that rash and unreasonable People, a great Part of whom, they knew, had made Peace with the King of France, and there were great Contentions between thefe and the others who opposed it.

344

> Ar laft it was refolved that the next Day both Armies fhould with all Expedition, without any Baggage, pafs the Po, leaving good Garrifons in Parma and Piacenza

THE WARS IN ITALY. 345 Piacenza for Fear of the Venetian Army, A. D. 1515. whofe light Horfe had for feveral Days been fcouring and plundering all over the Country. In agreeing to this Refolution neither of the Parties, as it was then ge-faftic and nerally thought, acted with Sincerity, each Spanifs thinking, by pretending a Willingnefs to diffrufful país, to transfer the Blame on the other, of each other. without putting himfelf in Danger. For the Viceroy entertaining a Jealoufy of the Meffage of Cintio, and knowing with what Cunning and Artifice the Pope proceeded in his Affairs, perfuaded himfelf that it was his Will that Lorenzo fhould not proceed any further : And Lorenzo, confidering how loth the Viceroy was to put his Army in the Power of Fortune, formed the fame Judgment of others that they paffed upon him. In the Afternoon the Spanifs Troops began to pass the Bridge, and were immediately to be followed by the Ecclefiaftic Army; but by the Coming on of Night it being neceffary to defer their Paffage till the next Morning, they did not only not pass at all, but the Vicerov returned with his Army on this Side the River, on Advice, brought by Four Hundred

A. D. dred light Horfe fent out from both 1515. Armies to obferve the Motions of the Enemies, that an Hundred French Lances had entered Lodi, wherefore the Viceroy and Lorenzo returned to their first Quarters, while Alviano marched with his Army to Lodi.

346

THE King of France at this fame Time removed his Camp from Marignano to San Donato three Miles from Milan, in which City the Swils affembled their whole Force, where one Party of them abhorring a War, and the other as much averfe to a Peace, frequent Confultations were held, and many Tumults happened among them. At last, when they were met together in a full Affembly, the Cardinal of Sion, who was most ardent in his Exhortations to Perseverance in the War, began with most vehement and pathetic Words to stimulate them to delay no longer, but march out and attack the King of France that fame Day, and not stand fo much in Awe of the numerous Cavalry and Artillery of the Enemy, or fuffer themfelves to be fo far diffurbed as to lofe the

THE WARS IN IT ALY. 347 the Memory of the native Valour of the A. D. Swifs, and the Victories obtained over the 1515. French. " What, fays Sion, have the speech of People of our Nation undergone all this the Car-dinal of Fatigue, exposed themselves to fo many sion to Dangers, and spilt fo much Blood to lofe the Savifa. in one Day fo vaft a Stock of Glory, and leave fo great Renown and Reputation to Enemies whom we have overthrown? Are not these the same French who affisted by us have obtained fo many Victories, abandoned by us have been constantly overcome by every Adverfary? Are not these the fame French who but last Year were, by an inconfiderable Number of our Men, with fo much Glory, defeated at Novara? Are they not the fame French who, aftonished at our Valour, and confounded at Reflections on their own shameful Cowardice, have cried up to the Skies the Name of the Swifs? A Name famous when we we were in Conjunction with them, but become more famous fince we feparated from them ! Our Troops that fought at Novara had neither Cavalry nor Artillery, and expected a fpeedy Reinforcement; and yet at the Perfuasions of Mottino.

348

A. D. Mottino, that illustrious Ornament of the 1515. Helvetians, they valiantly attacked the Enemy in their Trenches, boldly advanced to feize their Cannon, routed them, and flew their German Infantry till they had blunted their Weapons, and tired their Arm3 with the Slaughter. And can you think they will now have the Courage to expect the Charge of Forty Thoufand Swifs, an Army ftrong and refolute enough to meet the Forces of the whole World united together in the Field? They will fly, believe me, at the very Report of our Coming. They have not ventured to approach fo near Milan in Confidence of their own Valour, but in Hopes of your Divisions. The Perfon or Prefence of their King will not fupport them, for out of Fear of endangering his Life or his State he will be the first to confult his own Safety, and induce the reft to follow his Example. If you dare not attack them with this Army, that is, with the whole Strength of Swifferland, with what Forces can you ever hope to refift them? For what End are we defcended into Lombardy? To what Purpose is our Arrival at Milan, if

THE WARSIN ITALY. 349 if we thought we should be afraid to A. D. encounter with the Enemy? What will become of the lofty Speeches, and fierce Menaces that we have been throwing out all this Year, when we boafted of a Defign to make a Defcent into Burgundy, and when we rejoiced at the Agreement with the King of England, and at the Inclination of the Pontiff to confederate with the King of France, as imagining that the more the Powers were which united against the State of Milan, the more Glory we should acquire in defending it? It would have been better for us not to have obtained fuch noble Victories for these Years past, and not to have driven the French out of Italy, but to have refted fatisfied within the Bounds of our antient Renown, rather than afterwards with one Confent to deceive the Expectations of all the World by betraying fuch base Cowardice. This Day will all Men judge whether the Victory of Novara were owing to our Bravery or to Fortune. If we fnew ourfelves afraid of the Enemy, it will be univerfally afcribed either to Chance or Temerity; if we exert the fame Refolution, every

A. D. every one will confess that we are indebted 1515. for it only to our own Valour, and having. as no doubt we shall have, the fame Succefs, we shall not only be the Terror of the prefent Age, but also had in Veneration by Posterity, whose Judgment and Praifes will exalt the Name of the Swifs above that of the Romans, of whom we do not read that they shewed fuch Undauntedness, or obtained any Victory with fo much Valour, or ever without Neceffity chose to fight against Enemies under fuch great Difadvantages. Of us they will find it recorded that we fought a Battle near Novara, where with few Troops, without Artillery, without Cavalry, we put to Flight a mighty Army, furnished with all Manner of Provisions, and commanded by two famous Generals, one without Doubt the beft in all France, and the other the beft in all Italy. They will read alfo the Battle at San Donato, fought with the fame Difficulties on our Side, against the King of France in Perfon, and against fo great a Number of German Infantry, who, the more numerous they are, will fall the more acceptable Sacrifice to our Hatred, make

350

THE WARS IN ITALY. 351 make it fo much the eafier for us to ruin A. D. for ever their Military, and the more effectually deter them from rafhly pretending to rival the Arms of the Swifs. It is not certain, but on the contrary, from many Difficulties appears even impoffible, that we shall be joined by the Viceroy or the Troops of the Church ; and therefore to what Purpofe is it to expect them? Nor is their Prefence neceffary; nay we ought rather to be pleafed at fuch a Difappointment, for now all the Honour will be ours, and the vaftly rich Spoils and Plunder of the Enemy's Camp will be all our own. Mottino would not fuffer the Glory to be communicated even to ourfelves, much lefs to others. And shall we be fo bafe-minded, and fet fo low a Price upon our Valour, as, even fuppofing it poffible for us to join them, to be willing to wait in order to be Sharers in fo great a Profusion of Honours and Praises with Strangers? Neither the Fame of the Swifs, nor the State of Affairs require any further Delay or Confultation : It is now neceffary that we should be on our March, now, now is the Time to haften and attack the Enemy.

352

A. D. Enemy. Let Cowards confult, who think not of encountering with Dangers, but of fecuring themfelves by Flight; but it is the Part of a fierce and warlike Nation, fuch as ours, to prefent themfelves before their Enemies as foon as they can get a Sight of them. Go to, then, with the Help of God, who with just Hatred purfues the Pride of the French, with your usual Animofity take your Pikes, and beat your Drums, and let us march without lofing a Moment, and haften to try the utmost Force of our Weapons, and fatiate our Hatred with the Blood of those whose Pride renders them a Nuifance, and their Cowardice a Prey to all Mankind,"

> INCITED by this Speech the Swifs immediately took their Arms in a Fury, and as foon as they were got out at the Roman Gate drew up in Order, and tho' there remained not much of Daylight fet forwards on their March towards the French with fo much Alacrity, and fuch Shouting, that one who knew no better would have taken it for certain that they had had already obtained fome very notable A. D. 1515. Victory. The Officers ftimulated the Soldiers to quicken their March, and the Soldiers defired their Officers not to forget to give the Signal of Battle as foon as ever they were approached to the Camp of the Enemy; for they were determined to frew the Field with Carcafes, and intended that Day to extinguish the very Name of the German Infantry; and efpecially of those Troops which prognosticating their own Death carried by way of Distinction black Enfigns. In this fierce and refolute Disposition they approached Marignathe French Camp, and but two Hours no. before Night began the Battle. They attacked the Artillery and Entrenchments with fuch Fury and Violence, that they entered the Trenches almost as foon as they arrived, and broke and difperfed the first Battalions that opposed them, and made themselves Masters of Part of the Artillery. But the French Cavalry advancing, and a great Part of the Army, with the King himfelf, furrounded by a valiant Squadron of Gentlemen, the Ardor of their Fury was in fome measure re-VOL. VI. preffed, Z

THE WARSIN ITALY.

353

354

A. D. preffed, and there began a very terrible Battle, attended with various Events, but very deftructive to the French Men at Arms, who were forced to give Way. This Fight lasted till four Hours after Night, in which fome of the French general Officers were killed on the Spot, and the King himfelf received many Thrufts of Pikes. By this Time both Parties were fo tired that they could no longer hold their Weapons in their Hands, and feparated from one another without Beat of Drum, or Orders from their Officers, the Swifs betaking themfelves to their Reft in the Field of Battle, and neither Party molefting the other, but expecting, as it were by a tacit Truce, the next Daylight. But the first Attack proving fo fuccefsful to the Swifs, for whom by the Care of the Cardinal a Convoy of Provisions and Refreshments from Milan arrived while they were taking their Repofe, Expresses were dispatched to all Parts of Italy with Advices that the Swifs had put the Army of their Enemies to Flight. The King was not idle during the Remainder of the Night, but being fenfible

THE WARS IN ITALY. 355 fenfible of the Greatness of the Danger A. D. took care to draw off his Artillery into proper Places and in due Order, and employed himfelf in ranging his German and Galcon Infantry in just Battalions, and his Cavalry in Squadrons. When Daylight appeared the Swifs, defpifing not only the French Army but all the Forces of Italy united together, renewed their Attack with the fame Rage and Impetuofity, and with great Temerity. They were valiantly received by their Enemies, but with more Policy, and in better Order, for on one Side they were galled by the Cannon, on the other by the Arrows of the Gascons, and at the fame time charged by the Horfe, fo that they fuffered in Front and on both Flanks. And at Sunrife, when the Fight was clofeft and fierceft, and Circumstances reduced to an Extremity of Labour and Danger, Alviano, who, on the Arrival of an Express from the King over Night, had immediately put himfelf in Motion with the light Horfe and the most expeditious Part of his Army, the reft following Body after Body, arrived on a fudden, and fell with Z 2 great great Fury on the Rear of the Stoils, A. D. 1515. who, tho' they still maintained the Fight with the greatest Boldness and Valour, yet finding fo vigorous a Refiftance, and from the Arrival of the Venetian Army defpairing of the Victory, feveral Hours after Sunrise sounded a Retreat, and putting their Shoulders to the Artillery which they had brought with them, turned their Battalions, and conftantly keeping their ufual Order marched with a flow Pace towards Milan, to the great Aftonishment of the French, of whom not a Man in all the Army, either among their Foot or Horfe, durst venture to purfue them; only two of their Companies, who had fled into a Country Seat, were burnt in it by the Venetian light Horfe. The reft of their Army retired in perfect Order, and retaining the fame Fiercenefs in their Countenances, and in their Eyes, returned to Milan, leaving behind them in the Ditches, as fome fay, fifteen Pieces of heavy Cannon, which they had taken from the French in the first Attack, for Want of Conveniences to bring them along.

-Swifs defeated.

356

Iт

THE WARS IN ITALY.

357

IT is univerfally agreed that a fiercer and more terrible Battle had not been fought in Italy for very many Years; for by the Fury with which the Swils began the Attack, and afterwards by the Mistakes through the Darkness of the Night, the Arrangement of the whole Army being difordered, and the Combatants mingling in Confusion without Command or Signal, every Event was left entirely to the Difpofal of Fortune. The King himfelf was often in Danger, and was more indebted for his Prefervation to his own proper Valour, and to Chance, than to the Affistance of his Attendants, by whom he was frequently in the Confusion of the Battle, and the Darkness of the Night, abandoned. Hence Trivulzio, a General who had feen fo many Events, protefted that this was a Battle not of Men but of Saying of Giants, and that of Eighteen Battles in Trivulzio which he had been prefent, every one of Battle. them, in Comparison of this, was but a Battle of little Children. And it is not doubted that, had it not been for the Affiftance of the Artillery, the Victory \mathbb{Z}_{3} would

358

 A D. would have been gained by the Swifs, 1515. who having entered the French Entrenchments at the first Attack, and afterwards made themselves Masters of most Part of their Artillery, had always gained Ground. Befides, the Coming of Alviano was of no fmall Importance, fince his Arrival at a Time while the Victory was yet dubious put Spirits in the French, and Terror in the Swifs, who imagined that he had brought with him the whole Venetian Army.

Number of Killed were uncertain in any Battle, as it is almost in all, was very uncertain in this, People varying in their Accounts, fome out of Paffion, others through Ignorance. Some make the Loss of the Swifs amount to above Fourteen Thousand, others will have it but Ten Thousand, others again more moderate make it but Eight Thoufand, and there are not wanting fome who reduce it fo low as Three Thousand, all of the vulgar Sort, and of Names obscure. But of the French were killed in the Battle of the Night Francis Brother

to

THE WARS IN ITALY.

359

to the Duke of Bourbon, Imbercourt, San- A. D. cerre, the Prince of Tallemont Son to Tremouille, Boyfi Nephew to the late Cardinal of Rouen, Count Saffart, Chatelarth of Savoy, Buffi d' Amboyfe, and Mouy, Enfign of the King's Gens d' Arms, Perfons all diftinguished by their Nobility and great Estates, or for their honourable Posts in the Army. The Number of the Killed is for the Reasons before assigned variously reckoned, fome making it Six Thousfand, others reducing it to Three Thousfand, among whom were fome Officers of the German Infantry.

AFTER the Swifs were retired to Milan they fell into very great Difagreement whether it were beft to enter into a Convention with the King of France, or ftay there for the Defence of the City. Those Officers who had before follicited an Agreement, being willing to alledge fome lefs difhonourable Reason for their Departure, demanded their Pay of Massimiliano Sforza, who, it was very manifest, had no Money to spare; and the next Day afterwards all the Swifs Troops, at Z_4 the

360

A. D. the Perfuasions of Roft their Captain General, fet out on their March home-Swi/s re- wards by the Way of Como, giving Hopes turn home to the Duke that they would foon return to the Relief of the Caftle, in which was left a Garrifon of Fifteen Hundred Swils and Five Hundred Italian Foot, With these Hopes Massimiliano Sforza, accompanied by Giovanni da Gonzaga, and Girolamo Morone, with fome other Milanefe Noblemen, betook himfelf to the Caftle, after giving his Confent, tho' not without Difficulty, that' Francesco Duke of Bari, his Brother, might retire into Germany, while the Cardinal of Sion went to wait upon Cæfar to follicit Succours, promifing to return within a few Days. The City of Milan being thus City of Milan fur-left without any Garrison furrendered to the French the King of France, and agreed to pay a very large Sum of Money *; but he re-fufed to enter the Place while the Caffle was in the Hands of the Enemy, as if it were unworthy of a King to make his Entry into a Town that was not wholly at his Devotion. In the mean time he ordered

* 300,000 Crowns at three Payments. Gievio.

THE WARS IN ITALY.

361

ordered folemn Maffes to be celebrated for A. D. three Days fucceflively in the Place where _____ he had obtained the Victory; the first to return Thanks to God for his Succefs. the Second to pray for the Souls of those that were killed in the Battle, and the laft to befeech God to grant a Peace; and on the fame Spot he caufed a Chapel to be erected for a perpetual Memorial. All the Towns and Fortreffes of the Dutchy of Milan followed the Fortune of the Victory, except the Caftles of Cremona and Milan, the Siege of which last was committed to the Direction of Pietra Navarra, who, to the Admiration of all Men, tho' the Caftle was very ftrong, abundantly fupplied with all Neceffaries for its Defence, and had a Garrison of Two Thousand good Soldiers, engaged to reduce it within a Month.

THE Viceroy, on the News of the Victory of the French, flayed a few Days in his old Quarters, more out of Neceffity than Choice, becaufe it was difficult for him to put his Army in Motion without Money. At length, receiving a certain Quantity,

362

THE HISTORY OF

A. D. Quantity, and borrowing Six Thoufand 1515. Ducats of Lorenzo de' Medici, he decamped, and retired to Pontenuro, with an Intention to march for the Kingdom of Naples. For though the Pontiff, on Advice of the unfortunate Event, had at first made the Public believe that he intended to imitate the Constancy of his Predecessor, the Ambaffadors of the Allies encouraging him to refolve on fhewing his Face to Fortune, and endeavour by all means to keep the Swifs in a good Disposition, or if they proved inconftant to fupply their Places with hired German Infantry, yet on a ferious Review it appeared to him that no Pope un-Provisions for his Safety could be made der Apwith that Speed which his Danger reprehenfions from the French quired, and that the first Blow was likely to fall upon himfelf. For though the Reverence of the Church might induce the King of France to abstain from molesting the Ecclefiaftic State, yet he did not believe it sufficient to restrain him from attacking Parma and Piacenza as Members of the Dutchy of Milan, or from molefting the State of Florence, in which Affair all Regard ceafed, and yet the Pope would think

THE WARS IN ITALY. 363 think himself as much injured as if an At- A. D. 1515. tack had been made upon the State of the Church. Nor indeed were his Apprehenfions groundlefs, for the King had ordered a Bridge to be laid over the Po near Pavia for passing Troops to take Poffeffion of Parma and Piacenza, and after the Acquifition of these Cities, if the Pope ftill continued averfe to embrace the King's Friendship, the Forces were intended to proceed by the Way of Pontremoli to Tufcany, and attempt to drive the Medici out of Florence.

But by this Time the Pope had given Commiffion to the Duke of Savey, and the Bifhop of Tricarico, his Nuncio, to enter into a Treaty with the King of France, who being ftill fulpicious of new Confederacies against him, and inclined to the Reverence of the Apostolic See by the Terror which the Perfecutions of Julius had excited in the whole Kingdom of France, was very Pope endefirous of an Agreement. A Confede-ters into racy therefore was foon concluded between $\frac{an Al}{liance}$ them for the Defence of the States of Italy; with the and particularly it was ftipulated that the France. King

364

A. D. King should take into his Protection the Perfon of the Pontiff, the State of the Church, Giuliano, Lorenzo de' Medici, and the State of Florence; fhould grant a Lordfhip in France and a Penfion to Giuliano and to Lorenzo, with the Command of fifty Lances; and confent that the Pontiff fhould grant free Paffage through the State of the Church to the Viceroy on his Return with his Army into the Kingdom of Naples: That the Pope should be obliged to recall his Troops from Verona, and from the Afliftance of Cafar against the Venetians; that he should restore to the King the Cities of Parma and Piacenza, in Compensation of which the Dutchy of Milan should be bound to take all its Salt from Cervia, which was computed to be very beneficial to the Church, and had lately been flipulated by the Pope in his Confederacy with the Duke of Milan: That it should be referred to the Arbitration of the Duke of Savoy whether the Florentines had violated the Confederacy made with King Lewis, and in Cafe of any Violation the Duke was to declare the Penalty. This Article the King faid he infifted

THE WARS IN ITALY. 365infifted on more for the Sake of his Ho- A: D. nour than for any other Reafon. 1515.

THE Treaty being concluded Tricarico immediately fet out Post for Rome, to perfuade the Pontiff to ratify it : And Lorenzo, that he might the sooner be rid of the Viceroy, withdrew the Troops he had in Piacenza to Parma and Reggio, and he himself waited on the King, to recommend himself to his Favour, and to persuade him, according to the artful Instructions of his Uncle, that he defired in all Events to depend only on his royal Protection.

THE Pope was not without Difficulty induced to ratify the Peace, for it grieved him very much to part with Parma and Piacenza, and he would willingly have waited till he had first known the Refolution of the Swifs. The Diet of that Nation was assembled at Zurich, the principal of all the Helvetic Cantons, and the greatest Enemy to the French, where they treated about succouring the Castle of Milan; though they had abandoned the Valleys and the Towns of Bellinzone and Lugarna,

366

A. D. Lugarna, but not the Caftles, yet the 1515. King, on the Payment of Six Thousand Crowns to the Governor, had gotten Poffeffion of the Caftle of Lugarna; but the Grisons had not as yet abandoned Chiavenna. Tricarico, however, at last reprefenting to his Holinefs that it was to be feared the King would without Delay attack Parma and Piacenza, and fend Troops into Tuscany, and magnifying the Lofs of the Swils in the Battle, he was Pope rati- content to ratify, but with these Qualififies the cations and Restrictions: That neither he Peace with Rehimfelf nor his Agents for him fhould be ftrictions. bound to make a formal Ceffion of Parma and Piacenza, but only leave them evacuated of his Troops and civil Officers for the King to take Poffeffion of them; that the Pontiff fhould not be bound to withdraw his Troops from Verona, becaufe he was not willing to do fuch an Injury to Cafar, but he fecretly promifed to recall them on the first convenient Opportunity; and that the Florentines fhould be abfolved from any pretended Contravention of the League. In this Agreement it was alfo provided that the King fhould not take under under his Protection any Feudatary or Sub-A. D. ject of the State of the Church, and 1515. should not only not obstruct the Pope, as their fupreme Lord, in proceeding against them, and chaftifing them, but should alfo be obliged, when follicited, to affift him for that Purpose. Mention was also made of an Interview between the Pope and the King in fome convenient Place;* which was proposed by Francis, but defired by both Parties; by the King, for the better Establishment of this newly contracted Friendship, for fecuring the States of his Friends in Italy, and because he was in Hopes by his Prefence, and by his Offers of large Estates to the Pontiff's Brother and Nephew, to obtain his Confent for attacking, as he most ardently defired, the Kingdom of Naples; by the Pope, with a View, by this officious Condefcenfion, to entertain the King, while he was in his Prosperity, after his engaging Manner, by which he was most excellently qualified for winning upon the Hearts of Men. Many, however, condemned fuch a Refolution as unworthy of the Majefty of the Pontificate, judging it more

THE WARS IN ITALY.

367

268

A. D. more proper for the King, if he wanted ^{1515.} fuch an Interview, to come and feek it of the Pope at Rome. But his Holinefs alledged in Excufe that he condefcended in this Manner from a Defire to induce the King to forbear molefting the Kingdom of Naples during the Life of the Catholic King, which, on account of an Indifpofition of Body, under which he had laboured above a Year, it was thought, could not be long.

Caffle of IN the mean time Pietro Navarra was Milan be bufily employed in befieging the Caffle of Milan, and having made himfelf Mafter of a Cafemate in the Ditch of the Caffle on the Flank towards the Gate of Como, and with Engines for Battery and Fences of Beams*, made his Approaches to the Ditch and to the Wall of the Caffle, he worked at a Mine in that Place, and having ruined the Defences, he fet about feveral other Mines, and with large Chiffels cut off a great Piece of the Wall on the Flank of the

> * Orig. Gatti e Trawate, the first a warlike Instrument with feveral Claws or Prongs for loofening and pulling out the Stones of the Wall, the other a Defence for covering the Workmen.

THE WARS IN ITALY. 269 the Caftle, which he fupported with Props, A. D. in order to make it fall at the fame Time that he fet Fire to the Mines. But tho' thefe Contrivances were not, in the Opinion of many, fufficient to reduce the Place without much Time and Difficulty, and certain Advice was received that the Swifs, according to the Refolution taken in the Diet of Zurich, were preparing to relieve it, yet by virtue of a Treaty commenced between Giovanni da Gonzaga, a General of the Duke of Milan, who was in the Caftle, and the Duke of Bourbon his Kinfman, and afterwards carried on with the Duke of Bourbon by Girolamo Morone in concert with two Savifs Officers in the Caftle, to the great Surprife of all Surren. the World, a Capitulation was concluded dered. on the fourth of October. Girolamo Morone was highly blamed on this Occasion for having, either out of too much Timidity, or too little Faithfulnefs, perfuaded the Duke, with whom he had a very great Authority, to this Agreement; but he excused himself on account of a Quarrel that broke out between the Swifs and Italian Infantry in Garrifon.

VOL. VI.

Aa

By

370 A. D. 1515.

Articles of the Capitulation.

By the Conditions of this Capitulation Massimiliano Sforza was immediately to deliver up to the King of France the Caftles of Milan and Cremona, and to make over to him all the Rights which he had to the State of Milan: On this Confideration it was agreed that he should receive of the King a certain Sum of Money to difcharge his Debts, and might retire into France, where the King was to allow him a yearly Penfion of Thirty Thousand Ducats, or use his Interest that he should be created a Cardinal with the like Revenue: That the King should pardon Galcazzo Visconti and certain other Noblemen of the Dutchy of Milan who had been zealous in the Intereft of Maffimiliano: That he flould give the Swi/s who were in the Caftle Six Thoufand Crowns : That he should confirm to Giovanni da Gonzaga thofe Eftates which the Duke had given to him in the Milanefe, and fettle a Penfion on him; and fhould alfo confirm to Morone his patrimonial Eftates, and those which were bestowed on him by the Duke, with the Offices that

THE WARS IN IT ALY. 371 that he held, and should constitute him A. D. 1515. Master of Requests of the Court of France. On this Agreement Massimiliano, otherwife Moro after his Father's Name, came out of the Caftle, and fet out directly for France, faying at his Departure that he was delivered from the Bondage of the Stoils, the Abuses of Calar, and the Cheats of the Spaniards. Every one however praifed Fortune more for her Justice in speedily deposing from so high a Station, than for her Blindnefs in exalting to it, a Man who, from his Want of Capacity, the Extravagance of his Sentiments, and the extreme Sordidnefs of his Manners, was unworthy of any Poft of Honour or Greatness.

BUT before the Caftle of Milan was furrendered came Ambaffadors to the Venetian Embaffy King Antonio Grimano, Domenico Trivi- to the Jano, Giorgio Cornaro, and Andrea Gritti, King of four of the principal and most honourable Members of the Venetian Senate, to congratulate him on his Victory, and to request his Assistance, to which he was bound by the Articles of the Confederacy,

in

Aa 2

372

A. D. in the Recovery of their Towns: An 1515. Enterprife which had no other Obstruction but from the Forces of Cæfar, and those auxiliary Troops of the Pope which were with Marc' Antonio Colonna in Verona; for the Viceroy, after leaving the Territory of Piacenza, and then halting fome time in the Modenese, to see whether the Pope would ratify the Agreement he had made with the King of France, as foon as he was certified of the Ratification, proceeded on his March through Romagna for Naples.

THE King readily ordered to the Afliftance of the Venetians the Baftard of Savoy and Teodoro da Trivulzio, with Seven Hundred Lances and Seven Thoufand Foot; but while they delayed their March, either in Expectation of the Succefs of the Enterprife on the Caftle of Milan, or becaufe the King defigned thefe fame Troops for the Siege of the Caftle of Cremona, Alviano, who was not permitted by the Venetians to follow the Viceroy, becaufe they were defirous to recover, if it were poflible, Brefeia and Verona

THE WARS IN ITALY. 373 Verona without the Affiftance of others, A. D. 1515. marched with the Army towards Brescia. But the Garrifon being just before reinforced with One Thousand German Foot, Bergamo having feveral Days before furrendered to the Venetians, he refolved to march first and lay Siege to Verona, as not fo well fortified, and for the greater Conveniency of Provisions, and because if Verona were taken, Brefcia remaining alone, and difficult, on account of its Situation, to be fuccoured from Germany, would fall an eafy Conqueft. But this Undertaking was retarded from an Apprehenfion that the Viceroy and the Troops of the Pope, which were in the Territories of Reggio and Modena, would pass the Po at Ofia in order to relieve Verona; all Fears of which now vanishing at the Departure of the Viceroy, a new Obstacle arofe from the Sicknefs of Alviano, who was taken ill at Ghedi in the Brescian, and departed this Life in the Beginning of Death and October under Sixty Years of Age, mighti- Character ly regretted by the Venetians, but much no. more by his Soldiers, who, not knowing how to fatisfy themfelves with his Remembrance,

Aa 3

374

membrance, kept his Body twenty-five A. D. 1515. Days in the Army, carrying it about with them wherever they marched with extraordinary Pomp; and when it was afterwards to be conveyed to Venice, Teodoro Trivulzio would not fuffer a País to be demanded, as many had proposed, of Marc' Antonio Colonna for its free Paffage through the Veronele, faying, it was not fit that a Man who was never afraid of Enemies in his Lifetime should give any Sign that he feared them after his Death. He was interred by public Decree with extraordinary Marks of Honour in St. Stephen's Church at Venice, where his Monument is still to be feen, and the funeral Oration was made by Andrea Navagiero, a young Venetian Nobleman of great Eloquence. Alviano was by every . one acknowledged to be a General of vaft Boldnefs and Courage, and one who executed his Refolutions with the utmost Expedition, but, either through the Malice of Fortune, or, as many were of Opinion, because he was rash and precipitous in taking his Meafures, was frequently defeated by his Enemies, and perhaps, what is

THE WARS IN ITALY. 375 is more, where he was Commander in A. D. chief never obtained a Victory.

O N the Death of Alviano the King, at Trivulzio the Request of the Venetians, granted General Leave to Trivulzio to take upon him the Venetians. Command of their Army. They defired him for their General on account of his Skill and Reputation in military Difcipline, and becaufe, from their common Inclination to the Faction of the Guelfs, there had been always a good Correspondence and mutual Benevolence maintained between him and that Republic. While the new General was proceeding to the Army the Troops of the Venetians took Peschiera, after they had first routed Three Hundred Spanish Foot, and fome Horfe that were coming to relieve it; they next recovered Afola and Lona, which were abandoned by the Marquis of Mantoua.

O N the Arrival of Trivulzio the Army, at the Inftances of the Senate, laid Siege to Brefcia, tho' it appeared to him very difficult to be taken without the Affiftance of the French, for the Town was ftrong, A a 4 and

376

A. D. and had Two Thousand German and Spanish Foot in Garrison, a very confiderable Number of the Guelfs had been forced to leave the Place, the Winter was just at Hand, and the Seafon feemed much difposed to Rains. The General was not Brescia befieged deceived in his Judgment of the Event by the Venetians, of the Undertaking; for after they had begun to play on the Walls from a Battery planted on the Ditch at the Side whence the Rivulet Garzetta takes its Courfe, the Garrifon, which made frequent Sallies, took once an Opportunity to march out to the Number of Fifteen Hundred German and Spanish Foot in order to attack the Guard of the Artillery, for which Service were appointed One Hundred Men at Arms, and Six Thousand Foot, and charged them fo vigoroufly, while others of the Befieged, who were difpofed along the Walls for that Purpofe, with their fmall Arms kept a continual Fire, that they eafily put them to Flight, tho' Gian Pagolo Manfrone with Thirty Men at Arms for fome time fuftained their Fury. They killed about Two Hundred Foot, fet Fire to the Powder, and brought off Ten

THE WARS IN ITALY.

377

Ten Pieces of Cannon into Brefcia. On A. D. 1515. this Difaster Trivulzio thought fit to remove the Army to a greater Distance from the Town, in Expectation of the French, and retired to Coccai twelve Miles from that City, the Venetians in the mean time taking care to provide a new Supply of Cannon and Ammunition. When the French had joined them they returned to the Siege, and erected Batteries in two different Places, one on the Side of the Gate of the Pile towards the Caftle, and the other on the Side of the Gate of San Giovanni. In one of these Posts lay encamped the French Army, which, on the Difmiffion of the Germans because they would not fight against a Town in the Poffeffion of Cafar, was reinforced with Five Thoufand Gascon and French Foot under Pietro Navarra. The other was poffeffed by the Venetians commanded by Trivulzio, on whom lay the whole Care and Burden of the War, for the Bastard of Savoy was taken ill, and had left the A Breach was made, but the Army. Affault was not given becaufe the Befieged had drawn Trenches, and caft up Ramparts,

A. D. parts, and with vaft Diligence and Refo-^{1515.} lution provided every Thing neceffary for their Defence. Pietro Navarra therefore had recourfe to his ufual Remedy, and fet about conftructing of Mines, and at the fame time cutting the Wall with Pickaxes.

378

AT this Time Marc' Antonio Colonna Action of marched out of Verona with Six Hundred M. Anto- Horfe, and Five Hundred Foot, and nio Color-meeting on the Plains with Gian Pagolo na. Manfrone and Mercurio Bua, who with Four Hundred Men at Arms and Four Hundred light Horfe were appointed to garrifon Valeggio, he charged and broke them, in which Encounter Giulio Son of Gian Pagolo, his Horfe being killed under him while he was fighting, was taken Prisoner, and his Father fled to Goito; the victorious Party afterwards took Poffeffion of Lignago, where they made fome Venetian Noblemen Prifoners.

> BUT at Brescia the Siege appeared more and more difficult and incommodious, for the Mines prepared by Pietro Navarra

THE WARS IN ITALY.

379

Navarra did not fucceed according to the A. D. Expectations he had given, and Intelligence being received that Eight Thousand Foot were on their March from Germany to fuccour the Place, which the Generals before Brescia could not warrant from taking Effect, it it was at last agreed by the Venetians, to cover in fome Measure the Shame of a Retreat, that the Garrifon, if not relieved within thirty Days, should deliver up the City, and the Venetians promifed that they fhould have Liberty to march out with Colours flying, with the Artillery and all their Effects. This Engagement every one knew to be of no Signification, fo well were they affured of Succours; but it was of fome Service to the People in Brelcia, by freeing them in the mean time from Molestations. The Venetians after this fent Eight Thousand Foot to Bre, a Caftle belonging to the Counts of Lodrone; but as foon as these Troops perceived the German Foot, who had taken Possession of the Castle of Anfo by Surrendry, advancing forwards, they cowardly retreated to the Army. Nor were there to be found greater Marks of " Refolution

380

 A. D. Refolution in the Generals, who, under 1515. terrible Apprehensions of being at the fame time attacked by the Troops from Germany, by those in Brescia, and by Marc' Antonio with the Garrison of Verona, retired to Ghedi, whither they had before, for fear of fuch a Disaster, fent their heavy Artillery, and almost all their Baggage. Thus the Germans entered Brescia without Brescia' relieved.
Brescia' relieved.

> In the mean time the Pope and the King of France had agreed on an Interview at Bologna, the King chufing that Place rather than Florence, becaufe he would not be at fo great a Diftance from the Dutchy of Milan, efpecially fince he was continually treating, by the Mediation of the Duke of Savoy, of an Accommodation with the Swifs, and becaufe, as he faid, it would have been neceffary, if he paffed into Tufcany, to lead with him a great Train of Soldiers, fince it would not be fuitable to his Honour to enter Florence with lefs Pomp than King Charles

THE WARS IN ITALY. 381 Charles had done before him, and the Pre- A. D. 1515. parations for fuch a Solemnity would have caufed a Delay of fome Days, which would have been very difagreeable to the King, as well in other Refpects, as becaufe he would have been neceffitated to keep on Foot his whole Army, no Part of which, though it was very expensive, he had as yet difbanded, nor intended to difband while he ftayed in Italy. The Pontiff then entered Bologna the Eighth Day of December, and two Days after the King made his Entry, having been received on the Borders of the Reggian by two Apostolic Legates, the Cardinals of Fiesco and de' Medici. He was attended by no Men at Arms, nor by any great Retinue, and being introduced, according to Cuftom, in-to the public Confiftory before the Pontiff, between he himfelf in Person, the Grand Chan-the Pope and the cellor making a Speech in his Name, of-King of fered him his Obedience, which he had France. not paid before. After this they held Communication for three Days together, being lodged in the fame Palace, and fhewing one towards another extraordinary Marks of mutual Benevolence and Affection. -0-

A. D. fection. On this Occasion, besides confirma ing anew both by Words and Promifes the Obligations formerly contracted, they had long Conferences about the Affairs of the Kingdom of Naples, which the King not being provided to attack at that Time, contented himfelf with the warm and hearty Affurances given him by the Pontiff of his favouring that Enterprife whenever they should hear of the Death of the King of Aragon, which in common Opinion could not be far off, or else as soon as his Confederacy with that Prince, which would terminate in fixteen Months, should expire. The King interceded alfo for the Restitution of Modena and Reggio to the Duke of Ferrara, which the Pope promifed to reftore on the Duke's reimburfing him the Forty Thoufand Ducats which he had paid to Cæsar for Modena, besides a certain Sum of Money in Recompence for what he had expended on those Cities. The King interpofed alfo his Mediation in Favour of Francesco Maria Duke of Urbino. This Duke had the Command of Two Hundred Men at Arms in the Service of the Church, and was appointed to attend Giuliano

382

THE WARSIN ITALY.

382

Giuliano de' Medici to the Army. But A. D. Giuliano falling fick, and Lorenzo conftituted General in his Stead, the Duke not only refufed to go, alledging that though, for the Sake of his old Friendship with Giuliano, he had, contrary to his Dignity, confented to attend him as a fimple Officer, and fubject to the Command of others, in the Army of the Church, of which he had been fo often Captain General, and fuperior to all, he would not yield the fame Submiffion to Lorenzo, but befides, after he had promifed to fend the Troops that were under his Command, recalled them when they were upon their March. For it feems he had just before fecretly agreed, or was then treating of an Agreement, with the King of France, and after the Victory of the King never ceafed, by means of proper Perfons, to incenfe him, as much as he could, against the Pontiff. His Holinefs, mindful of thefe Injuries, and having before projected to transfer that Dutchy to his own Family, denied the King's Requeft, reprefenting to him, in the mildest Expressions, how difficult it would be with regard to the Affairs of the Church

384

A. D. Church to grant his Demand, and how 1515. pernicious an Example it must prove for encouraging Subjects to rebel against their Sovereigns. The King patiently fubmitted to the Reafons and Will of the Pontiff, though he had defired, for his own Honour, to preferve the Duke, who was fallen into Danger for his Adherence to him; and he was advifed alfo to take him under his Protection by many of his Council and Court, who reprefented how unpolitic a Refolution it had been in the late King to permit Valentino to opprefs the petty Sovereigns of Italy, by which he rofe to fuch Grandeur, that, if his Father Alexander had lived much longer, he would without Doubt have done much Mischief to his Affairs. The Pope promifed the King to grant him Power to levy, for one Year, the Tenth Part of the Ecclefiaftic Revenues in the Kingdom of France. It was agreed alfo that the King should have the Nomination of Benefices, which before belonged to the Colleges and Chapters of Churches; an Ordinance of great Advantage to the Kings of France, who by that Means had the Difpofal of fo to many vaftly rich Benefices; and on the A. D. other Side his Majesty confented that the Annates of the Churches of France should be paid to the Pontiff according to the true Value, and not according to the antient Rates, which were much lefs. But in this Article the Pope found himfelf deceived, for when he defigned to profecute those who ooncealed the true Value, and had deputed Commissiries in the Kingdom of France for that Purpofe, no Documents were to be had, nor Profecutions obtained against the Incumbents, fo that every one continued, to pay according to the old Rates. The King alfo promised not to take under his Protection any of the Cities of Tuscany; but not long after, on folliciting the Pope's Confent for receiving into his Protection the Lucchefe, who had offered him Twenty-five Thoufand Ducats, alledging that he was bound to it by the Obligations of his Predeceffor, his Holinefs refused to grant it, though he promised to give no manner of Molestation to that People. They refolved alfo to fend Egidio, General of the Augustin Friars, and a most excellent Preacher, to the . VOL. VI. Вb Emperor

THE WARS IN ITALY.

385

386

A. D. Emperor in the Name of the Pope, in 1515. order to difpose him to reftore Brescia and Verona to the Venetians, and to accept of a Recompense in Money. These Affairs being difpatched, though nothing was put in Writing except the Articles relating to the Nomination to Benefices, and the Payment of the Annates according to the true Value, the Pope, to oblige the King, declared Cardinal Adrian de Boifi, Brother to the Grand Mafter of France, and Prime Minister. The King afterwards departed highly fatisfied with this Conference, and in great Hopes of the Good-will of the Pontiff, who shewed all the outward Marks of mutual Satisfaction, but his inward Sentiments were very different, for he was still grieved as before that the King fhould be in Poffeffion of the Dutchy of Milan, and he was extremely chagrined at his being obliged to relinquish Piacenza and Parma, and no lefs at the Restitution of Modena and Reggio to the Duke of Ferrara, though the Performance of this laft Article was not long after eluded. For the Pope, while he was in Florence, where he staid a Month after his Departure from Bologna. THE WARS IN ITALY. 387 Bologna, being promifed the Money which A. D: the Duke was to pay as foon as he fhould ^{1515.} be put in Poffeffion of the faid Cities, and Writings being drawn between them for that Effect by common Confent, would not plainly deny to fulfil the Agreement, but by interpofing various Excufes and Delays, and always promifing fairly, could never be brought to have it put in Execution.

THE King, after his Return to Milan, 1516! immediately difbanded his Army, retaining only, for the Defence of that State, Seven Hundred Lances, Six Thoufand German Foot, and Four Thousand French, of that Kind of Soldiery, which they call Volunteers; and in the Beginning of the Year 1516 he returned with the utmost Expedition into France, leaving as his Lieutenant Charles Duke of Bourbon. He now imagined his Affairs in Italy on a good Footing by the Confederacy he had contracted with the Pope, because he had much about the fame time made a Convention with the Swifs, who, tho' ftimulated by the King of England to take the Bb 2 Field

288

Field afresh against him, renewed the A. D. 1516. Confederacy, obliging themfelves at all Times to furnish him, in the Name and League renewed with the Enfigns of the Public, with any between the King Number of Foot he should demand to of France take into his Pay, to ferve either in Italy and the or elfewhere, and to act as well offenfively Swifs. as defensively against any Power, except only offenfively against the Pope, the Empire, or Cæsar. On the other Hand the King confirmed their antient Penfions, and promifed to pay them at certain Times the Six Hundred Thousand Ducats stipulated at Dijon, befides Three Hundred Thousand more when they restored the Towns and Valleys belonging to the Dutchy of Milan. But the five Cantons which were in Poffeffion of them refufing to reftore them, and to ratify the Agreement, the King began to pay the other eight Cantons their proportionate Share of the Money, who accepted it, but with an express Condition of not being bound to march in his Pay against the five Cantons.

THE WARS IN ITALY. 389 A. D.

1516. IN the Beginning of this Year the Bishop of Petrucci, an old Acquaintance Pope's of the Pontiff, affifted by him and the Defign Florentines, expelled Borghefe, the Son of upon Siena. Pandolfo Petrucci his Kinfman, who had the Government of Siena, from that City, and took upon himfelf the fame Authority. What induced the Pope to this Step was his Defire that Siena, being fituated between the State of the Church and that of the Florentines, should be governed by one who was at his Devotion, and perhaps much more his Hopes that whenever the Times should favour him with an Opportunity, he might, with the Confent of the Bishop himself, bring it under Subjection either to his Brother or to his Nephew.

THE Affairs of Italy were ftill embroiled by the Difputes between Cæfar and the Venetians, the Republic being eager to recover Brefcia and Verona by the Affiftance of the French; other Parts feemed to enjoy a tolerable State of Reft. But on a fudden appeared the Beginnings B b 3 of

390

A. D. of new Movements, which were excited 1516. by the Operation of the King of Aragon, who being apprehenfive that his Kingdom of Naples would be endangered by the Greatness of the King of France, treated with Cæfar and the King of England about commencing a new War againft him. It was not difficult to prevail on Maximilian, who was always defirous of Novelties, and could hardly of himfelf preferve the Towns taken from the Venetians, to come into his Measures : And the King of England, on whom the Memory of his Father-in-law's Breach of Promifes had lefs Influence than his prefent Emulation and Hatred of the King of France, alfo gave his Confent, to which he was befides stimulated by his Defire that the King of Scotland in his Minority should be under the Tutelage of Persons either recommended by him, or dependent on him *. But their Defigns would

> * His chief Governor was John Stuart, Duke of Albany, Coufin German to the late King James, and appointed to that Charge at the Recommendation of the King of France, in whofe Favour he effablished many Regulations and Changes, which gave Umbrage to the King of Bngland.

THE WARS IN ITALY. 391 would have been profecuted with better A. D. 1516. Conduct, and with greater Forces, if there had not intervened, while they were on the Carpet, the Death of the King of Death and Aragon, who, after labouring under a Character tedious Indisposition, died in January at King of Madrigalegio, a very poor Village, in his Aragon. Progrefs with his Court to Seville *. He was a Prince of most excellent Wisdom and Valour, and if he had made Confcience of keeping his Promifes would hardly have left Room for Cenfure; for that niggardly and tenacious Temper, for which he was calumniated, was demonstrated a Falshood by his Death, when after a Reign of Forty-two Years he left no Treasure of Money behind him. But it almost constantly happens, through the depraved Judgment of Men, that in Kings Prodigality, tho' in conjunction with Rapacity, is reckoned more commendable than Parfimony when joined with abstaining from the Property of others. The rare Virtues Bb 4 of

* He died at Madrid, then an obscure Village, in the County of Toledo, in his Way from Cafile to Andalufia with a Defign to raise Troops and man out a Fleet at Cartagena, aged, according to Giovio, 75, of which he reigned in Spain about 40 Years.

392

1516.

of this King were attended with a very A. .D. rare Profperity, which, if you except the Death of an only Son, was perpetual and uninterrupted during the whole Courfe of his Life; for the Misfortunes of the Females and of his Son-in-law were the Occafion of his retaining his Greatnefs till his Death, and the Neceffity of his departing out of Caftile on the Death of his Confort was rather a Sport than a Stroke of Fortune. In all other Events he was extremely fortunate; being the fecond Son of the King of Aragon he obtained that Kingdom by the Death of his elder Brother; by contracting Marriage with Isabella he enjoyed the Kingdom of Castile, victorioufly driving away his Adverfaries who were in Competition with him for that Crown. After this he recovered the Kingdom of Granada, which had been in the Poffeffion of the Enemies of our Faith near Eight Hundred Years. He added to his Dominions the Kingdoms of Naples and Navarre, with Oran and many other important Places on the Coafts of Africa. Ever fuperior, and almost always Conqueror wherever he met his Enemies, and where where Fortune appeared in manifest Con- A. D. 1516. junction with Industry, he usually covered his ambitious Defires with the Cloke of a laudable Zeal for Religion, and a pious Intention of promoting the common Welfare. About a Month before his Death died the Great Captain, absent Death of from Court, and diffatisfied with his the Great Prince. The King however was pleafed Captain. to have fuch Honours paid to the Memory of his noble Exploits, both by himfelf and by the whole Kingdom, as were feldom shewn to any in Spain but at the Death of Kings, for which he was highly applauded by all the People, to whom the Name of the Great Captain for his boundlefs Liberality was most precious, and for the Reputation of his Prudence, and Skill in the military Art, above all the Generals his Cotemporaries, was had in the higheft Veneration.

THE WARS IN ITALY.

393

By the Death of the Catholic King King of the King of France was the more animated France meditates to the Enterprize against Naples, on which the Conhe was inclined to fend immediately the queft of Duke of Bourbon with Eight Hundred Lances

394

A. D. Lances and Ten Thousand Foot, per-1516: fuading himfelf that, from the Tumults excited in that Kingdom on occasion of the Death of the King, and its ill State of Defence, the Archduke being unable to fend any Succours in Seafon, he might eafily make himfelf Master of it. He doubted not that the Pope, on account of the Hopes he had given him when they met together at Bologna, and the Friendship they had contracted together. at the Interview, would be favourable to the Undertaking; and no lefs out of Regard to his own Interest, fince he must of neceffity take Umbrage at the exorbitant Greatness of the Archduke, the Inheritor of fo many Kingdoms left him by the Catholic King, and the prefumptive Succeffor of Cæfar. He was befides in Hopes that the Archduke, being fenfible that to have him for his Enemy might be of great Prejudice to his Endeavours in fettling the Kingdom of Spain, and particularly the Kingdom of Aragon, to which, if Power had been joined to Right, fome of the fame Family would have afpired, would proceed with Moderation in oppofing

THE WARS IN ITALY. 395 poling him. For while the late King and A. D. his Confort Ifabella were living it had 1516. indeed been interpreted that, in the antient Succeffion Parliaments of that Kingdom which ex-of Aragon. cluded Females from the Succeffion, it was not intended to prejudice the Males born of them, when in the male Line there were no Brothers, Uncles, or Nephews of the late King, or of one who was nearer to him than the Iffue by the female Side, or at least in an equal Degree, and on this Account the Succeffion was declared to belong to the Archduke Charles after the Death of Ferdinando. But tho' for this was brought as a Precedent that Martin King of Aragon dying without male Isfue, Ferdinando the Grandfather of this, Ferdinando had, by the Sentence of the Judges deputed from all Parts of the Kingdom for this Purpofe, tho' related to Martin by the female Line, been preferred to the Count of Urgel and the others related to Martin by the male Line, but in a more remote Degree than Ferdinando, yet there had been always to this prefent Time a fecret Murmuring among the People that in this Interpretation and Declaration

396

Declaration the Power of Ferdinando and A. D. 1516. Isabella had more Influence than Justice, it appearing to many not a just Interpretation that Females should be excluded, and yet their Iffue admitted, and that the Sentence given for old Ferdinando was rather extorted by the Fear of his Arms than a Conviction of Reafon. The King of France being well apprifed of thefe . Things, and knowing also that the People of the Provinces of Aragon, and Valentia, and of the County of Catalonia, which are all comprehended under the Kingdom of Aragon, were defirous of having a King of their own, was in Hopes that the Archduke, to avoid endangering his Succeffion to fo many great and confiderable States, would at last be induced to yield him the Kingdom of Naples on fome reafonable Composition. At the fame Time, to gain his Ends by Favour as well as by Force, he was pleafed that Prospero Colonna, who had agreed to ranfom himfelf for 35000 Ducats, should be released for half that Sum; whence many were of Opinion that Prospero had made him a fecret Promife not to bear Arms against him,

THE WARS IN ITALY. 397 him, or perhaps to be affiftant to him in A. D. the Neapolitan War, tho' with fome Refriction or Referve to fave his Honour.

WHILE the King's Thoughts were taken up with these Projects, and he was on the Point of refolving to put his Troops in Motion without Delay, he found himfelf obliged by fome new Incidents to turn all his Cares on providing for his own Defence : For Cæsar having received, in Confequence of the Negotiations before begun with the King of Aragon, an Hundred and Twenty Thousand Ducats, was preparing, according to his Agreement with that King, to attack the Dutchy of Milan, after he had first put Succours into Verona and Brefcia, which was neceffary because the Venetian Army, now under the Command of Teodoro da Trivulzi appointed Actions of Parties. General after the Return of Trivulzio to Milan, was encamped within Six Miles of Brescia; and with their Stradiotti scoured the whole Country. The Garrifon of Brescia one Day made a Sally on these Rovers, but after a sharp Contest, each Party receiving continual Reinforcements, were

A. D. were repulfed within the Walls with the 1516. Lofs of many killed on the Spot, and the Brother of the Governor of the City was taken Prisoner. Within a few Days after Lautrech, General of the French Army, and Teodoro da Trivulzi, receiving Intelligence that Three Thousand German Foot were efcorting a Sum of Money fent to pay the Soldiers, detached Janus Fregolo and Giancurrado Orfino with fome Troops felected out of both Armies to the Caffle of Anfo to prevent their Paffage, who killed about Eight Hundred of the Germans, the rest with the Money escaping to Lodrone. The Venetians fent afterwards Twenty-five Hundred Foot into the Val di Sabbia, to fortify the Castle of Anfo, who burnt Lodrone and Aftorio.

Maximilian's Expedition into Italy.

398.

THE Danger that Brefcia, thus diftreffed and molefted, would furrender, obliged Cæfar to haften his March. He led with him Five Thoufand Horfe, Fifteen Thoufand Swifs granted him by the Five Cantons, and Ten Thoufand Spanish and German Foot, and took the Road from Trento- to Verona. The French and Venetian

THE WARS IN ITALY.

399

netian Army therefore, leaving good Gar- A. D. rifons in Vicenza, and Padoua, went and 1516. posted themselves at Peschiera, with a Defign, as it was pretended, to prevent the Emperor from paffing the River Mincio. But the Execution, as it often happens, did not answer the Resolution; for as soon as they perceived the Approach of the Enemy, they had not Courage enough to execute in the Field what they had refolved in their Tents, but paffed the Oglio, and retired to Cremona, the Reputation and Boldness of the Enemy increasing as their own diminished. Casar, either induced by bad Counfel, or impelled by his evil Fortune, halted to befiege Afola, which had a Garrifon of an Hundred Men at Arms and Four Hundred Venetian Foot. where he fpent feveral Days to no Purpofe, which Delay is undoubtedly believed to have been the Caufe of his ill Succefs. Decamping from Afola he paffed the River Oglio at Orci Nuovi, and the Enemy leaving in Cremona Three Hundred Lances and Three Thousand Foot retired on the other Side the Adda, with an Intent to dispute the Passage of that River. By their

400

A. D. their Retreat the Emperor became Master ^{1516.} of all the Country between the Oglio, the Po, and the Adda, except Cremona and ·Crema, the first garrifoned by the French, and the other by the Venetians. Caefar was attended by the Cardinal of Sion, by many Exiles of the Dutchy of Milan, and by Marc' Antonio Colonna in the Service of the Pope with Two Hundred Men at Arms. His Progrefs ftruck the greater Terror into the French, as their chief Hopes depended on the fpeedy March of Sixteen Thousand Swifs, to whom they had advanced three Months Pay. Calar, after paffing the Oglio, proceeded to the River Adda, defigning to pass it at Pizzichitone, but finding that his Paffage would be difficult at that Place, he marched to Rivolta, the French being drawn up in Order at Cafciano on the other Side of the River. But the Swifs not being yet arrived, and the Adda French te- being fordable in feveral Places, the next Day the French Army retired to Milan, treat to Milan. not without reproachful Reflexions on Lautrech, who had published, and written, to the King, that he would ftop Cafar from paffing that River. That Prince having

THE WARS IN ITALY. 40I having thus passed without Opposition, the A. D. 1516. City of Lodi immediately furrendered to him; and from thence approaching within a few Miles of Milan he fent a Herald to demand the Town, threatening the Milanefe that if they did not drive away the French Army within three Days he would treat their City worfe than it was treated by his Predeceffor Frederic Barbaroffa. That Emperor, not contented with burning and demolifhing Milan, caufed the Ground on which it flood to be fowed with Salt, in Memory of his Anger and of the Rebellion of the Citizens.

But among the French, who were retired under great Confternation into Mi- French confult at lan, was a Variety of Propofals; fome in-Milan. clining bafely to abandon the Town, becaufe they did not think themfelves in a Condition to oppofe the Enemy, nor did believe that the Swifs, though they were known to be already on the Road, would ever arrive; for they had Intelligence that the Cantons had either already ordered, or were upon the Point of ordering, that the Swifs fhould relinquish the Service of Vol. VI. C c both

402

A. D. both the hoftile Parties; and it was doubt-1516 ed that the Troops on the Road would be more ready to pay Obedience to the Orders of their Masters, than those in the Service of the Enemy. Others detefted this Refolution of a Departure as infamous and difgraceful, and putting more Confidence in the Coming of the Swifs, and in their own Ability to defend the City, advifed taking the best Measures for its Prefervation, and that laying afide all Thoughts of hazarding a Battle they should keep all the Foot with Eight Hundred Lances in Milan, and distribute the other Forces with those of the Venetians and all the light Horfe into the neighbouring Towns, to guard them, and to cut the Enemies fhort of Provisions. The first Counfel, however, would have been followed, had it not been earnestly diffuaded by Andrea. Gritti and Andrea Trivisano the Venetian Proveditors, whofe Authority yet could do no more than just prevail with them not to be too hafty in their Refolution to depart, fo that when they had now determined to be gone, certain Advice came that Alberto Petra with Ten Thousand Swifs and Grilons

THE WARSIN ITALY. 403 Grisons would the next Day be in Milan. A. D. 1516. This News revived the drooping Spirits of all; but not depending, however, on their own Strength for the Defence of the Suburbs, they retired within the Walls, fetting Fire to the Suburbs by Advice of the Venetian Proveditors, who gave them this Counfel, either becaufe they judged it neceffary for the Prefervation of the City, or because they were willing to take this Opportunity to gratify the antient Enmity that fubfifted between the Milanefe and Venetians. They expelled also out of the City, or kept under honourable Cuftody, many of the principal Perfons of the Ghibelline Party, as inclined to embrace the Authority of the Empire out of Zeal for a Faction, and becaufe there were fuch Numbers of them with the German Army.

CAESAR in the mean time took Poft with his Army at Lambra two Miles from Milan. While he was there the Swifs arrived in that City, where they profeffed themfelves ready to defend Milan, but refufed to go out to Battle against the other Swifs. Their Coming put new Spirits in C c 2 the

A: D. the French, but gave much greater Ter-1516. ror to Cafar, who, confidering the inveterate Hatred of that Nation against the House of Austria, and recalling to Mind what had happened to Lodovico Sforza from a Meeting of opposite Savi/s, began to be apprehenfive that they would ferve him in the fame Manner, fince he thought them more likely to deceive him who lay under Difficulties how to pay them, than the French, who wanted no Money to pay, or corrupt them. And his Sufpicions were increased because Giacopo Stafflier, Commander in Chief of the Swifs, had with great Arrogance demanded of him the Pay, which, not to mention other Difficulties, was deferred becaufe the Money that was coming from Germany was stopped by the Spanish Foot who were in Garrison at Brescia for the Payment of their Arrears. Maximilian therefore; in a wonderful Commotion from the Fear of his Danger, decamped in a Hurry, and retired towards the Adda*, none doubting hut

> * Triaulzio wrote counterfeit Letters directed to the chief Officers of the S-wifs, in which he put them in Mind of executing what they had promifed him by the Agreement

Cæsar retreats from Milan.

404

THE WARS IN ITALY. 405. but if he had approached Milan three A. D. 1516. Days fooner, which Time he wasted be-. fore Afola, the French, who were then under much greater Doubt and Uncertainty of the Coming of the Swifs, would have returned beyond the Mountains : Or, even if he had not fo foon decamped, it was firmly believed that either the French, who had no full Confidence in the Faith of the Swils because of the Regard they fnewed to their Countrymen with Cafar, would have followed the first Counfel; or that the Swifs themfelves, taking an Excufe from the Commandment of their Superiors, which was already published, would have abandoned the French.

CESAR paffed the River Adda, but was not followed by the Swifs, who halted at Lodi, protesting they would depart if they were not paid within four Days. But Cæsar, who was encamped in the Territory of Bergamo, continually gave them Hopes of Payment, faying that he C c 3 expected ment within two Days: These Letters being intercepted by Maximilian threw him into violent Suspicions that he was betrayed by the Savis. Giavia.

406

THE HISTORY OF

A. D. expected new Supplies of Money from 1516. the King of England, and threatened to return to Milan. Thefe Proceedings held in vast Suspense the French, who were more uncertain than ever of the Faith of the Swifs, who, befides the Slownefs which they purpofely used in coming, and their conftant Affeverations that they would never fight against the Swifs in the Enemy's Army, had received the Orders of the Cantons commanding them to quit the French Service, in Obedience to which about Two Thousand of them were already gone, and it was feared that the reft would follow them, though the Cantons on the other hand affured the King that they had fent private Orders to their Troops not to quit him. At last Cæsar, after exacting Sixteen Thousand Ducats of the City of Bergamo, making a Motion, in Expectation of the Success of a Plot, towards Crema, and returning without Effect into the Bergamasco, refolved to fet out for Trent. He acquainted the General Officers of the Army with his Refolution, and affured them that his Motive to it was from an Intention to provide himfelf

THE WARS IN ITALY. 407. felf with new Supplies of Money, with A. D. 1;16. which and those from the King of England now on the Road, he would foon be Cafar returns inwith them, encouraging them to waitglorious with Patience for his Return. His Army, to Gerafter plundering Lodi, and forcing the Castle without Artillery, plundered also the Town of Sant' Angelo, being straitened for Want of Provisions, and then took up their Quarters in the Ghiaradadda. After the Departure of Caefar there were fome Hopes that the Swi/s, who were joined by the whole Army at Romano, would again have paffed the Adda, because the Marquis of Brandenburg was arrived in the Camp, and the Cardinal of Sion at Bergamo with Thirty Thousand Ducats remitted by the King of England. Under this Apprehension the Duke of Bourbon, who had been left by almost all the Swifs, and by the Venetians, was advanced with the Army to the further Bank of the River. But the Defigns of the Enemy were eafily frustrated, for the Swifs, not finding the Money that was brought fufficient to pay their Arrears, returned by the Valley of Valtelina into their own Country; and for the Cc4

408

A. D. the fame Reafon Three Thoufand Foot, 1516. Part Spaniards Part Germans, went over to the Camp of the French and Venetians, who with their combined Forces, after paffing the Adda, had never ceafed molefting for feveral Days together the Enemy with various Incurfions and Skirmifhes with different Success, fometimes the greater Lofs falling on the French, who in a great Skirmish near Bergamo lost Two Hundred Men at Arms; fometimes on the Enemy, who in a like Conflict had Cefare Fieramofca taken Prifoner. The Remainder of the Troops receiving a Ducat each Man drew off to Brefcia, but as they were greatly incommoded by the light Horfe Marc' Antonio Colonna with the German and fome Spanish Foot betook himfelf to Verona, and all the reft difperfed themfelves.

SUCH was the End of the Movement Pope ful made by Cæfar, in which the King of the King France had ftrong Sufpicions of the Pope; of France. for having requested of his Holiness that, according to the Obligations of the League made between them, he would fend Five Hundred

THE WARS IN ITALY.

Hundred Men at Arms to the Defence of A. D. 1516. the State of Milan, or at least order them to the Frontiers, and pay the Hire of Three Thousand Swifs, as he charged him with having offered by Antonio Maria Pallavicino, the Pope coldly answered as to the Payment of the Swifs, and excufing himfelf from fending his own Troops on account of their bad Condition, promifed to fend those of the Florentines, which accordingly put themfelves on their March, with fome of his own Soldiers, very flowly towards Bologna and Reggio. The Sufpicion that the Pontiff was privy to this Expedition of Cæfar was increased by confidering that his Holinefs, on the first Advice that the Emperor was entered into Italy, appointed for his Legate to him Bernardo da Bibbiena, Cardinal of Santa Maria in Portico, who always used to oppose the French Interest at the Court of Rome; and much more by the Pope's permitting Marc' Antonio with his Troops to ferve under Cafar. But the Truth was that the Coming of the Emperor with fo great a Force made the Pope uncafy on account of his own Interest, being appre-

409

A. D. apprehensive that Casar, if he should 1516. come off Conqueror, would, according to his antient Inclination, attempt to opprefs all Italy; yet out of Fear, and becaufe it was agreeable to his Nature to proceed in this Manner, he concealed his own Sentiments, and endeavoured to render himfelf as little obnoxious as poffible to either Party. Wherefore he durst not recall Marc' Antonio, nor durft he fend the ftipulated Auxiliaries to the King, and he appointed a Legate to Cafar. And on the other Hand when Cæfar had broke up from Milan, he contrived that the Legate, on Pretence of Sickness, should stop at Rubiera, and look about him, before he proceeded any further, and observe on which Side the Victory feemed to incline; and after this, to foften the King's Heart, he was pleafed that his Nephew Lorenzo fhould continue the fame diffembling Profeflions of Dependence on him which he had begun at Milan, and should cause the Florentines to prefent him with a Month's Pay for Three Thousand Swifs. The King accepted the Money, but to thew that he had a right Notion of the Pope's

410

THE WARS IN ITALY. 411 Pope's Artifices, faid that, fince he found A. D. him always contrary to him in War, and that his Confederacy did him no Service in Times of Danger, he would make a new League with him, which fhould bind him only in Times of Peace and Security.

CÆSAR'S Army being broken, the Venetians, without waiting for the French, one Night on a fudden approached Brefcia with Scaling-Ladders, trufting to the Smallnefs of the Garrifon, which amounted to no more than Six Hundred Spani/b Foot, and Four Hundred Horfe; but the Ladders proving too fhort, and the Defendants making a vigorous Refistance, the Attempt miscarried. After this arrived the French Army under the Command of Odet de Foix, lately appointed Governor of Milan in the Place of the Duke of Bourbon, who had refigned. The two Armies now in conjunction play'd upon Brescia from four Batteries, in order to render it imposible for the few Defendants to refift in fo many Places. The Garrison however defended themfelves as long as they had any Hopes that Seven

412

Seven Thousand Foot of the County of A. D. 1516 Tirol, which by Orders from Cæfar were come to Montagnana, would advance forwards; but as all Attempts for that Purpole were fruftrated by the Oppolition which the Venetians made at the Caffle of Anfo and at other Paffes, they did not care to stand the Assault which was to be given the next Day, a great Length of the Wall being ruined, but capitulated on Condition that the Soldiers might Brescia recovered march out of the Town and Caftle only by the Venetians. with their Effects if they were not relieved within Twenty-four Hours.

A T the fame Time the Pope prepared to deprive Francesco Maria della Rovere Pope covets the by Force of Arms of the Dutchy of Ur-Dutchy of Urbino. bino, and begun to proceed against him with Cenfures, publishing a Monitory, in which was expressed that the Duke being in the Service of the Church had refused her the Troops for which he had received her Pay, and had made a fecret Agreement with her Enemies; the Murder he had fo long ago committed of the Cardinal of Pavia, of which he had been abfolved by

THE WARS IN ITALY. 413 by Grace, not by Justice; other Murders A. D. perpetrated by him; that in the greatest 1516. Heat of the War against Pope Julius, whofe Nephew, Subject, and General he was, he had fent Baldassarre da Castiglione to lift in the King's Service; that he had at the fame time refused a Passage to some Troops that were marching to join the Army of the Church; and that in the State which he held as a Feudatary of the Apostolic See, he had perfecuted the Soldiers of the fame See in their Flight from the Battle of Ravenna. The Pope had formed a Defign to attack the Duke feveral Months before, being not only provoked against him by late Offences, but by the Memory of his former Refufal to affift his Brother and him in their Return to Florence; but he was reftrained in fome meafure by the Shame of perfecuting the Nephew of a Pope by whole Means the Church had arrived to fuch a Height of Grandeur, and much more by the Intreaties of his Brother Giuliano, who in the Time of their Exile having lived many Years in the Court of Urbino with the Duke Guido, and after his Death with the present

414

A. D. prefent Duke, could not bear to fee him deprived by his own Family of that Dutchy in which he himself had been supported and honoured. But Giuliano dying of a lingering Diforder in Florence, and Cæsar's Undertaking proving abortive, the Pontiff, stimulated by Lorenzo his Nephew and Alfonfina his Mother, who coveted the Appropriation of that State to themfelves, refolved to delay no longer, alledging, to acquit himfelf of Ingratitude, with which he was charged by many, not only the Injuries received from the Duke, with the Penalties which, according to the Difpolition of Justice, were incurred by a Vaffal who was contumacious to his Lord, and by a Soldier, who being under military Obligations, and having received Money, refused his Troops to one who had paid him, but much more the Danger of tolerating in the Bowels of his State a Man who, having already, without any Regard to Faith or Honour, begun to offend him, he might be certain, would not fail, when a fairer Opportunity offered, to be fo much the more

THE WARS IN ITALY. 415 more ready to commit the like Offences A. D. 1516.

IN the Profecution of this War, as foon as Lorenzo, with an Army composed feffion of of the Soldiers and Subjects of their. Church and of the Florentines, touched upon the Borders of that Dutchy, the City of Urbino, with the other Towns of that State, freely fubmitted to the Pontiff, the Duke, who was retired to Pelaro, confenting that, fince he could not defend them, they fhould confult their own Safety. Pefaro did the fame as foon as the Enemy came before it; for tho' it had within it Three Thousand Men, the City was fortified, and the Sea open, yet Francesco Maria, leaving Tranquillo da Mondolfo his Confident in the Caftle, fet out thence for Mantoua, whither he had before fent his Wife and Son, either putting no Confidence in his Soldiers, or as many, excufing his Fear with his Love, affirmed, becaufe he could not bear to be abfent from his Confort. Thus was the Dutchy of Urbino, together with Pefaro and Sinigaglia, in the Space of four Days reduced under

416

A. D. under the Obedience of the Church, ex-1516. cept the Caftles of Sinigaglia, Pelaro, San Leo, and Rocca di Majuolo. But the Caftle of Sinigaglia immediately after furrendered, and the Castle of Pefaro, tho' very ftrong, after two Days Battery, agreed to furrender if it were not relieved in twenty Days, on Condition that no new Fortifications or Batteries should be made during that Time, which Agreement being but ill obferved was the Occafion that Tranquillo, who had received no Succours within the Term prefixed, refufing to yield up the Caftle, began to fire his Cannon anew, and made a Sally upon the advanced Guards of the Befiegers. But his Fate was the harder, for Lorenzo, as foon as he had taken Poffeffion of the Town, returning to Florence, the Generals that were left with the Army had caft Intrenchments about the Caftle, and manned out fome Veffels to prevent all Relief by Sea, and when the Time for furrendering was expired the Batteries immediately began to fire. But on the fame Day the Soldiers of the Garrifon mutinied against Tranquillo, and for their own Security delivered

THE WARSIN*ITALY*. 417 livered him into the Hands of the com- A. D. manding Officers of the Befiegers, who, 1516. as a Punifhment for his breaking the Capitulation, fentenced him to be hanged on a Gallows. A few Days after furrendered the Fortrefs of Majuolo, which was a Place the Poffeffion of which was neceffary for forming the Siege of San Leo, fince it is but a Mile diftant from it, and fituated over againft it.

ABOUT San Leo were posted Two Thousand Foot, to keep it blocked up, becaufe it was fo very ftrong by its Situation that there were no Hopes of reducing it but by Famine. The Place however was three Months after taken by a Stratagem owing to a Carpenter, who one Night by means of a very long Ladder getting upon a Precipice or Cliff, efteemed the most difficult of that Mountain, ordered the Ladder to be taken away, and remaining in that Place the whole Night, as foon as Day appeared fet about climbing by the Help of fome iron Inftruments, till he made his Way at last to the Top of the Mountain, whence descending, VOL. VI. Dd and

418

A. D. 1516. and with his Inftruments rendering eafier fome of the most difficult Places, he returned the next Night by the fame Ladder to the Camp. Here giving Affurances that the Mountain might be climbed, he returned on a Night appointed by means of the fame Ladder to his Poft, and was followed by One. Hundred and Fifty of the choiceft Foot; and after they had lodged during the Night on the Precipice, because it was impossible to climb in the Dark, they began at Break of Day to afcend Man after Man by those very narrow Places, and about thirty of them, with a Drum and fix Colours, were already got to the Top of the Mountain, where they lay close to the Ground expecting their Companions who were clambering after them, when it being now broad Day, a Watch of the Garrifon going off from their Poft efpied those who lay proftrate on the Ground, and gave the Alarm. The Men feeing themfelves difcovered, without waiting for their Companions, gave the Signal, as they had agreed, to those in the Camp, who, according to the Orders that had been given, with . .

THE WARS IN ITALY. 419 with a Multitude of Ladders fuddenly A. D. 1516. attacked the Mountain in many Places to distract the Garrison, who running to their appointed Posts, and being terrified at the Caffle of Sight of fix Colours within their Forti-San Leg fications, who were fcouring the Plain on taken by Top, and had already killed fome of Stratagem them, betook themfelves to the Caftle which was built on the Mountain. But the others who had by this time climbed up after their Companions, opened the Gate which gives an Entrance upon the Mountain, and fo gave Admission to those who had not as yet climbed. The Mountain being thus taken, the Garrifon of the Caftle, tho' it was well provided with all Neceflaries, furrendered the fecond Day. After the Conquest of this State, which, together with Pefaro and Sinigaglia, feparate Members from the Dutchy of Urbino, yield not a Revenue of more than -Twenty-five Thousand Ducats, Leo, following the Process which he had begun, deprived Francesco Maria of these Dominions by folemn Sentence, and afterwards gave the Investiture of them in a Confiftory to Lorenzo his Nephew, all the Dd 2 Cardinals,

A. D. Cardinals, for the greater Validity, fetting 1516. their Hands to the Bull expedited for this Lorenzo Effect. But Domenico Grimano, Bifhop de' Medici of Urbino, and a great Friend to the Duke, invefted with the refused to concur with the reft, and there-Dutchyof fore, being apprehensive of the Anger of the Pope, a few Days after departed from Rome, and did not return till after his Death.

420

THE King of France was difpleafed at the Ruine of the Duke of Urbino, who was deprived of his State for treating with his Majesty. But he was more displeased at many of the Pope's Actions ; for Profpero Colonna, when he returned from France, Pope dif- having ftopt at Buffeto, a Town of the affected to Pallavicini, and from thence, fufpecting the French the French, removed to Modena, met with Intereft. Girolamo Morone, who was alfo retired thither as a Place of Safety, being apprehenfive of the French, becaufe, contrary to their Promifes, they had ordered that he fhould go for France. Thefe two were continually plotting all the Time that Prospero stayed at Modena, and afterwards at Bologna, how to furprife, by means of fome

THE WARS IN ITALY. 42 I fome Exiles, fome important Place of the A. D. 1516. Dutchy of Milan, in which Defign they had also the Concurrence of Muzio Colonna, to whom the Pope, being privy to the Plot, had granted Quarters for his Regiment in the Modenese. Befides this, the Pope had advifed the Catholic King (which was now the Title of the Archduke by the Death of his maternal Grandfather) to enter into no new Agreements with the King of France : And Ennio Bishop of Veruli, Apostolic Nuncio, and afterwards, though almost decrepit, promoted to the Cardinalship, besides doing many other ill Offices to the King with the Swils, exhorted the Five Cantons to cultivate the Friendship of the Emperor. Hence, as a Treaty was at the fame time carrying on between Cafar (who, keeping himfelf between Trent and Inspruck, terrified the French more with Noife and Show than Efforts) the King of England, and the Swifs, for making a fresh Attack on the Dutchy of Milan, the King of France was apprehenfive that these Affairs were transacted with the Confent of the Pontiff, whole evil Disposition appeared Dd 3 alfo

422

alfo in another Instance, by raising Diffi-A. D. 1516. culties, and making various' Exceptions in granting him the Tenths of the Benefices of the Kingdom of France, which he had promifed him at Bologna. Such, however, is the Majesty of the Pontificate that the King fludied to pacify him by many kind Offices; hence when he defigned, after the Departure of the Emperor, to fend Troops to exact Contributions of Money from Mirandola, Carpi and Correggio, as Imperial Towns, he defifted on the Pope's remonstrating that he had before taken the Lords of those Places under his Protection. And when the Moors of Africa with a Multitude of Ships infefted the Lower Sea*, the King offered, for the Security of those maritime Parts, to fend a good Fleet of Ships, which Pietro Navarra was by his Confent fitting out at Marseilles, to be manned with Six Thoufand Foot, for attacking, with a View only to Plunder, the maritime Places of Barbary. The Pontiff, however, not altering his

> * The Tuscan Sea, or the Sea which washes Tuscany and the Southern Coasts of the Kingdom of Naples, in Opposition to the Adriatic, or Gulf of Venice, which is called the Upper Sea.

THE WARS IN ITALY. 423. his Sentiments, though he partly denied, A. D. 1516. and partly excufed the Facts, never gave ear in the leaft to the earnest Importunities of the King for removing the Bishop of Veruli from Swifferland. Nor did he ever remove Muzio Colonna from the Modenese, where, as he pretended, he took up his Refidence by his own Authority, till, by the Departure of Profpero Colonna from Bologna, and the entire Frustration of what they had been fo long concerting. his Stay was become of no Importance. But his Departure proved most unfortunate to him, for not long after, having with the Forces of the Colonna's and fome Spanish Foot furprifed Fermo by Night, while he was bufy in plundering the City, he rereceived a Wound, of which he died in a few Days.

In this State of Affairs the Venetian Senate being importunate for the Recovery of Verona, Lautrech having in his Army Six Thousand German Foot, whom the Venetians had agreed to pay for this Enterprife, advanced to the Adice, with a Defign to pass that River at Ufolingo, and in D d 4 conjunction

424

A. D. conjunction with the Venetian Army to 1516. lay Siege to Verona. But afterwards the Report of the Coming of the Lautrech Swils increasing, and the Umbrage taken declines the Siege of Verona. at the Stay of Prospero Colonna in Modena being augmented, becaufe the Cardinal of Santa Maria in Portico had taken up his Refidence in the fame City, the French General drew off his Forces, not without the Complaints of the Venetians; and retired to Pefchiera, distributing his Troops in the Territory on both Sides of the River Mincio. And though all Fears and Jealoufies on the abovementioned Accounts were ceafed, and above Two Thoufand Spanish and German Foot had deferted from Verona, and enlifted under the Venetians, and Deferters continually came over, he remained in those Quarters above a Month, expecting, as he faid, fome Money from France, and that the Venetians would make greater Provision of Money, Artillery and Ammunition. But the truer Reason was his Expectation of the Succefs of the Negotiations between his Master and the Catholic King. - For the King of France knowing how neceffary his his Friendship was to the other King, in A. D. 1516. order to remove the Difficulties of his Paffage into Spain, and for the Establishment of those Kingdoms, was not content with the Agreement which they had before concluded at Paris, but endeavoured to impose on him harder Conditions, and to make Peace by his Mediation with the Emperor, which could not be effected without the Restitution of Verona to the Venetians. And the King of Spain, by the Advice of M. de Cheures, by whofe Authority, being as yet but fifteen Years of Age, he was wholly governed, did not refuse to accommodate his Resolutions to Times and Neceffities.

THE WARS IN ITALY.

425

THERE affembled therefore at Noyon, on the Part of the King of France, the Congress Bishop of Paris, the Grand Master of the Houshold, and the President of the Parliament of Paris; and on the Part of the Catholic King, the faid M. de Cheures, and the Grand Chancellor of the Empire. While Lautrech expected the Event of this Congress, the Soldiers, according to the Custom of the Military in our Age, were continually

426

A. D. continually employing their Arms against 1516. the unhappy Peafants. For while Lautrech, after laying a Bridge at the Country Seat of Monzarbanio, was employed in cutting off the Corn in the Fields of the Territory of Verona, and in fcouring all the Country with his light Horfe, and a Part of his Troops, quartered in the Mantouan, did fuch vaft Damage to that Country that the Marquis of Mantona, to free himfelf from the Trouble of Quarters, was content to pay the General Twelve Thousand Crowns, the Garrison of Verona made daily Incursions into the Vicentine and Padouan, and plundered the miferable City of Vicenza. Lautrech, however, afterwards being stimulated by the moving Complaints of the Venetians, pafied the Adice by the Bridge laid at U/olingo, and having made a vaft Booty in the Country, becaufe it was not in the leaft imagined that the Army would pass on that Side, came before Verona with an Intent to lay clofe Siege to it, having in the mean time with the Affiftance of the Men of the Country taken Poffession of Chiusa, in order to render more difficult the

THE WARS IN ITALY. 427 A. D. the Paffage of the Succours which might 1516. be fent from Germany. But the very Day that he approached Verona the German Infantry, either voluntarily, or at his fecret Inftigation, though they had been maintained three Months at the Coff of the Venetians, protefted they would not, where the principal Interest of the King of France was not concerned, fight against any Town in the Poffession of Cafar. Lautrech therefore repassed the Adice, and encamped at the Diftance of a Mile from the Walls of Verona; and the Venetian Army, which confifted of Five Hundred Men at Arms, as many light Horfe, and Four Thoufand Foot, not thinking itfelf fecure on the farther Side of the River, paffed it and joined him.

AT this Juncture, the Commissioners of the two Kings came to an Agreement Treaty of on the Fifteenth Day of August at Noyon, on the following Conditions: That between the Kings of France and Spain there shall be a perpetual Peace, and a Confederacy for the Defence of their Dominions against all Powers whatsoever: That the King

428

A. D. 1516. King of France shall give his Daughter, then a Year old, in Marriage to the Catholic King, and shall make over to her in Dowry the Right which he claims to the Kingdom of Naples according to the Partition formerly made by their Predeceffors, but with this Provifo, that till the Daughter comes to an Age fit for Matrimony the Catholic King shall pay every Year to the King of France towards her Maintenance an Hundred Thoufand Crowns; but if fhe should die before her Marriage, and the King fhould have another. Daughter, fhe shall be given to the Catholic King on the fame Conditions; and in cafe there should be none, then Renée should be given, who had been promifed in the Treaty made at Paris: That if any one of thefe Ladies died in Marriage without Children, that Part of the Kingdom of Naples shall revert to the King of France : That the Catholic King shall reftore the Kingdom of Navarre to its antient King within a certain Time; and, if it be not reftored, it shall be lawful for the King of France to affift him in the Recovery of it : But this Claufe was to be underftood, as the

THE WARS IN ITALY.

429

the Spaniards afterwards affirmed, with A. D. 1516. the Proviso, if that King first gave him fatisfactory Evidence of his Right: That Cafar shall have Liberty to accede to this Peace within the Term of two Months, and it shall be lawful for the King of France to affift the Venetians in the Recovery of Verona; but if Caefar deposit that City in the Hands of the Catholic King, with free Liberty to furrender it within Six Weeks to the King of France to be difposed of at his Discretion, he shall receive of Francis an Hundred Thousand Crowns, and the like Sum of the Venetians, Part of it at the Time of Surrendry, and the reft within Six Months, and shall moreover be acquitted of about Three Hundred Thoufand Crowns received of King Lewis when they were in Confederacy; and that in fuch a Cafe there shall be a Truce between . Cafar and the Venetians for Eighteen Months: And that Cæsar shall remain in Poffession of Riva di Trento and Rovere, with all that he poffeffes at prefent in Friuli ; and the Venetians continue to hold the Caftles belonging to Cafar which they keep at prefent, till the Kings of France and

A. D. and Spain shall have decided the Differ-1516. ences between them concerning their Frontiers. Both Parties nominated the Pontiff.

430

THE Agreement made at Noyon did not prevent the Venetians from continually Verona folliciting Lautrech to lay Siege to Verona, besieged. for they were uncertain whether the Emperor would accept the Peace, and they were defirous to recover it the fooner by Force of Arms becaufe of the Quantity of Money they were to pay. On the other Part the King of France was better pleafed with an Agreement than Force, for the Establishment of the Peace with Cafar. Lautrech, however, had no Excuse left, for the Venetians had made great Levies of Foot, and made all the Provisions that he had demanded, and the Germans no longer refused to march with the reft, and therefore complied with their Defire. The Armies then passed the Adice separately, one by a Bridge laid above the City, the other by a Bridge laid below. The French posted themselves at Tomba, and planted Part of their Artillery against the Gate of Santa

THE WARS IN ITALY. 431 Santa Lucia, and the reft, with the Ger- A. D. 1516. man Infantry, before the Gate of San Malfimo, to play all on the Place where the Wall between the Cittadel and the City comes to join with the Wall of the Town, that, by making practicable Breaches for entering the City and Cittadel at once, the Defendants might be neceffitated to divide themselves into two Parties separated by a Length of Wall. The Venetian Army paffed the Adice below Verona into the Campus Martius, and posted itself at San Michele between the River and the Canal, with a Defign to ruin the Defences on that Side, and to batter the Works towards Bifhop's Gate, as the weakest and least fortified Place. In the two first Days they ruined with their Cannon the Defences, which were of confiderable Strength; and the Batteries of the Venetians playing in Flank, though with greater Difficulty, destroyed the Outworks of three Bastions, on which they began on each Side to batter the Wall with eighteen heavy Cannon, and fifteen of a proper Size for Battery; and on the third Day each Army had made a Breach in the Wall of Seventy Braces, and

432

A. D. and continued battering to make the 1516. Breaches much larger. But the Venetians, on whofe Side the Wall was weaker, tho' they had in a manner levelled the Baftions and their Ramparts, yet they had not entirely deftroyed the inner Defences that flanked them, for being fo low, and almost within the Ditch, the Bullets either went over them, or buried themfelves in the Earth before they came at them. At the fame Time they undermined the Wali, which, though it was underpropped, fell before the Time defigned by the Generals. In Verona were Eight Hundred Horfe, Five Thousand German and Fifteen Hundred Spanish Foot, all under the Command of Marc' Antonio Colonna, who was no longer in the Service of the Pope but of Cæfar. The Befieged were very diligent in caffing up Ramparts, providing for their Defence wherever it was neceffary, and making a ftout and refolute Refiftance, highly to the Honour of Marc' Antonio, who being wounded, though but flightly, by a Musket Ball in the Shoulder, was never wanting, at any Hour of the Night as well as Day, to expose himself to all manner of Fatigues and Dangers. The Batteries THE WARS IN ITALY. 433 Batteries of the French, which were erected A. D. against the four Places where the Towers ftood between the Gate of the Cittadel and the Gate of Santa Lucia, had now razed the Walls to fuch a Degree, that each of the Breaches was capable of receiving Soldiers in Line of Battle; and the Cannon of the Venetians had done as much Execution. Lautrech however demanded more Artillery for enlarging his Batteries, and without giving Ear to the Exclamations of the Venetians, who were continually ftimulating him to ftorm the Place, was ready to embrace all Occafions for deferring the Affault. And it happened for his Purpose that a Convoy of Waggons, loaded with Eight Hundred Barrels of Powder, and great Quantities of Ball, coming to the Army through the Plains of Verona, through the Fault of the Drivers, who strove to get one before another, the rapid Motion of the Wheels ftruck Fire, which lighting in the Powder blew it up, together with the Waggons and the Oxen that drew them. But the Befieged were forced to ftruggle with other Difficulties, for in the City, VOL. VI. Еe which

A. D. which had now for fo many Months beefi diftreffed by the Neighbourhood of the Enemy, there began to be a Scarcity of Provisions, none entering but in fmall Quantities, and by Way of the Mountains.

The City relieved.

434

SUCH was the melancholy Situation of Affairs in Verona, when there arrived Nine Thousand German Foot fent by Cafar to relieve that City. These Troops advancing to Chiusa got Poffeffion of it by Agreement, and made themfelves Mafters of the Caftle of Corvara, feated on a Hill, near the Adice, towards Trent, and feveral times taken and retaken in the War between Caefar and the Venetians. On the Approach of these Forces Lautrech, ftruck with Fear either real or feigned, raifed the Siege, contrary to the Will of the Venetians, and retired to Villafranca, accompanied by Part of the Venetian Troops, the reft, under Gian Pagolo Manfrone, retiring beyond the Adice, over a Bridge that was prepared, to Boleto. The Venetians therefore, defpairing of making themselves Masters of Verona, sent all their heavy Artillery to Brefcia; and the Germans

THE WARSIN ITALY.

Germans finding no Opposition posted A. D. themselves at Tomba, where the French 1516. Army had encamped before, whence Part of them entered the City, and the other which remained without was employed in introducing Provisions into the Place, after which they departed, leaving in Verona a Garrifon of between Seven and Eight Thousand German Foot, for most of the Spaniards, not being able to agree with the Germans, were, under Colonel Maldonato, gone over to the Venetians. It was the Opinion of the Public that this Relief was of no great Moment, for it brought no other Money than Twenty Thousand Rhenish Florins fent by the King of England, and the Troops confumed almost as great a Quantity of Provisions while they stayed as they had brought with them thither. As the Forces retired to Villafranca were daily eating up and exhausting the Veronefe and Mantouan, and the French Troops no longer to be restrained by the Orders of their King from repairing to their Garrifons, the Venetians to keep them in the Field were obliged to fupply them with all their ne-Ee 2 ceffary

435

A. D. ceffary Food from the City of Brefcia, ^{1516.} which coft them above One Thousand Crowns a Day.

AT last the Sinews of War were Verona re. flackened, and the Courfe of Affairs flored to manifestly tended towards a Peace; for the Venetians, and Advice was received that Cafar, who Peace had at first earnestly follicited his Nephew made beto make no Agreement with the King of tween them and France, at length fuffering his greedy Cafar. Defire of Money to get the Afcendent over his natural Antipathy to the Name of the French, and his antient Project of fubjecting Italy, had accepted and ratified the Peace, and had determined to reftore Verona according to the Form of the Articles of the Agreement. Hence refulted another Event in Favour of the King of France; for all the Cantons of the Swifs, feeing a thorough Accommodation effected between Cafar and him, and that both Parties had laid down their Arms, were inclined to make an Agreement with him as the Grisons had done before, Galeazzo Visconti mightily bestirring himself for that End. In recompense for this good Office

THE WARS IN ITALY. 437. that Nobleman, who was in Difgrace A. D. with the King *, and an Exile, obtained of 1516. him Reftoration to his Country, and in Procefs of Time many Favours and Honours.

By the Convention between the King of France and the Swils it was agreed, Conventhat the King flould pay them within the tween the Term of Three Months Three Hundred King of and Fifty Thousand Ducats, and from and the thenceforth a perpetual yearly Penfion : Savifs. That the Swifs should be obliged to grant Leave to the King by public Decree, whenever he should require it, to inlist into his Service a certain Number of their Foot: But in this Article the Swifs proceeded differently; for the Eight-Cantons obliged themfelves to lend their Troops even when the King acted offenfively against the States of others, but the Five Cantons no otherwife than for the Defence of his own Dominions: That it should be in the Power of the Swifs to reftore to the King of France the Caftles of Lugano and Lucerna, strong Passes, and

* Orig. in Contumacia del Re, outlawed by the King.

A. D. and of Importance to the Security of the 1516. Dutchy of Milan; and that if they fhould chufe to reftore them, the King fhould be bound to pay them Three Hundred Thoufand Ducats : But as foon as the Convention was made, the Swifs demolifhed thefe Caftles.

$ 517.

438

THESE were the Transactions in Italy during the Course of the Year 1516; but in the Beginning of the next Year the Bishop of Trent came to Verona, and offered to Lautrech, with whom he had a Conference between Villafranca and Verona, to refign that City, which, he faid, he held in the Name of the King of Spain, to the King of France within the Term of Six Months appointed by the Articles. But a Difficulty remaining, whether the Term was to begin from the Day of the Ratification of Cæfar, or from the Day when it was acknowledged to be held for the King of Spain, fome Days were fpent in difputing the Point. But the Troops at Verona, demanding their Pay in a tumultuous Manner, constrained the Bishop of Trent to hasten the Proceedings:

THE WARS IN ITALY.

439 ceedings : Wherefore dating the Beginning A. D. of the Term from the Day in which Cafar had given him Commission, he agreed to refign Verona on the Fifteenth Day of January, at which Time having received of the Venetians the first Fifty Thousand Ducats, and Fifteen Thousand more, which according to the Convention were to be paid to the Troops in Verona, and of Lautrech a Promife that the Artillery in Verona should be conveyed to Trent, he configned that City to Lautrech, who received it in the Name of the King of France, and immediately after, in the Name of the fame King, configned it to the Venetian Senate, and, for them, to Andrea Gritti the Proveditor. But inexpreffible was the Joy and Satisfaction of the Venetian Nobility and People for having at last feen a happy End of fo long and dangerous a War, tho' after infinite Cofts and Trouble, for, as fome of their Hiftorians affure us, they expended in the whole War fince the League of Cambray no lefs than five Millions of Ducats, of which Five Hundred Thousand were raifed by the Sale of Places. Incredible 216

THE HISTORY, Sc.

A. D. alfo were the Rejoicings of the Veronefe and of all the other Cities and People within the Jurifdiction of the Republic, fince they now promifed themfelves, from the Benefit of Peace, to enjoy Reft and Quiet, and to be freed from that World of Vexations and Calamities, under which they had for a long Time fo miferably fuffered, fometimes from one and fometimes from the other of the contending Parties.

The End of the Twelfth Book,

", CC.

and of the Sixth Volume.

Entrance and a will a to take

